Bar Planned On Soviet Armored Cars In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—The Western powers have agreed to bar the use of Soviet armored cars to transport Russian honor guards to the Soviet war memorial in West Berlin, an official French spokesman said Saturday.

The memorial is in the British sector of West Berlin and the matter is in British hands to execute at a time of their choice, the spokesman said. The Russians have been using armored cars since an angry West Berlin crowd stoned a Soviet bus last month.

The French spokesman (France is chairman of the Western three-power Berlin kommandatura this month) attached no political significance to the move but informed quarters said Soviet compliance could result in a loss of face for the Russians.

FLAREUP POSSIBLE

Whether the planned Allied move would touch off another flareup in the Berlin crisis remained to be seen. Western officials already were concerned at a Russian military buildup in East Germany and said they were completing fixed missile sites around Berlin and along the three 20-mile wide air corridors used by the Allies.

The Russians Saturday sent armored cars into West Berlin with a change of guard for the war memorial in Tiergarten Park. British military police jeeps escorted the cars from the Sandkrug Bridge border crossing point to the monument.

The French spokesman said it was not known whether the Russians would be asked to substitute a bus for the armored cars but stated:

"It is the most natural thing in the world for the Soviets to return to changing their guard in a bus as they have done before. There is no reason for them to come in armored cars."

Last Tuesday the Western Allies stopped the Soviet convoy from entering West Berlin through the U. S. Army's Checkpoint Charlie and forced them to use the British sector shortcut to the war memorial. This resulted in a mild loss of face for the Russians.

Rep. Triche To Seek Oil Lease Probe

Plans To Request Investigation By Tidelands Group

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. Risley Triche, a top House administration floor leader, expressed concern Saturday about Louisiana's offshore mineral leases and said he would request a fact-finding investigation.

Triche, of Assumption Parish, said he would ask the legislature's tidelands committee to "probe operations of all leases in zone one to determine that the leases are being operated properly and that state minerals are being developed with reasonable diligence."

SEVERAL SHUT

Triche said, "I understand there are several shut in gas fields in zone one, and several state leases that have been amended to allow the shut in period to be extended."

The five-man tidelands committee, of which Triche is a member, will meet at 10 a.m. Monday in offices of the Louisiana Mineral Board.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, chief tidelands negotiator under recent legislation, said "This is simply a routine meeting in connection with federal and state leasing of off-shore lands, and has nothing to do with the eventual settlement of the tidelands question.

"Because of the creation of the legislative committee to deal with the tidelands matter, it is necessary for members of this committee and the mineral board to get together at this time."

The main business the committee is scheduled to handle is to discuss a joint-federal-state lease sale in zone two to be held Oct. 9 and a state leasing planned in zone one Oct. 25.

Zone one is a three-mile wide strip extending from a shoreline accepted earlier by the federal and state governments as being Louisiana property.

Ohio Beauty Is Crowned At Pageant

Young Brunette Chosen To Reign As Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Jacquelyn Jeanne Mayer, a 20-year-old hazel-eyed brunette from Ohio, was crowned Miss America of 1963 Saturday night.

Jackie as she is called, is a 5-foot-5 Northwestern University sophomore who weighs 115 pounds and measures 36-22-36.

PAGEANT CLIMAX

She succeeded Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, N.C., to the nation's oldest beauty crown in the dramatic climax of the week-long pageant.

The new queen, an exchange student to Austria for a year, plans to complete her education at Northwestern and then pursue a career in the theater. She had been appearing with a summer theater group in Huron, Ohio.

Miss Ohio beamed broadly as Miss Fletcher placed the crown on her head. The crowd stood and cheered wildly while she took the 167-foot walk down the runway to the stage.

The other finalists finished in the following order.

Miss Wisconsin, Joan Mary Engh.

Miss Texas, Penny Lee Rudd.

Miss South Carolina, Evelyn Keith Ellis.

Miss Hawaii, Patricia Lei Anderson.

As the new queen turned to the stage at the end of the runway, the first tears rolled down her cheek.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mayer of Sandusky, and her brother, Jim, and sister, Beth, were called on stage and stood with her near the close of the coronation.

Before making the final selection, the judges put one question to each of the five finalists.

Jackie was asked, "Other than personalities, what has impressed you most during your past five days in Atlantic City?"

She replied, "I believe what has impressed me most in the last five days is the friendliness of all the people in Atlantic City. Everyone has been so nice to me and to all the girls—so warmhearted and willing to do whatever we needed them to do."

Ben Bella's Troops Take Over Algiers

Rebel Guerrilla Forces Evacuate City Peacefully

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Several thousand troops of the Communist-equipped regular army supporting Ahmed Ben Bella entered the Algiers region without opposition Saturday as rebel guerrilla forces evacuated the city.

The army's commander, Col. Houari Boumedienne, drove into Blida, 30 miles southwest of the capital, at the head of his smartly uniformed battalions. Civilians cheered wildly.

STAGE PARADE

Boumedienne rode bare-headed in an open jeep.

An army spokesman said the troops would camp overnight on the Blida-Algiers highway and would reach the outskirts of the capital early Sunday.

They staged a military parade in Blida, which ironically had just become the new headquarters of the rebel guerrilla Wilaya (zone) No. 4.

The guerrillas were moved out of the downtown Algiers under a demilitarization agreement with Ben Bella's Political Bureau. Several guerrillas newly arrived from Algiers were seen among the cheering crowd in Blida.

But their commanders were in a grim mood, and one complained bitterly: "We have been tricked by the politicians."

It seemed they had agreed to the installation of a small token detachment of Boumedienne's men near Algiers, and were completely surprised by the massive movement of the regulars.

The Political Bureau immediately pressed home its advantage and announced that the election of a National Assembly will definitely be held Sept. 20. The election, previously scheduled Sept. 16 after five postponements, had again been in doubt Saturday morning as the Political Bureau locked in a dispute with guerrilla leaders over the nomination of candidates.

This dispute evaporated with movement of the regulars into the Algiers region.

Rains Cause Five Deaths In Accidents

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Turbulent weather struck Texas again Saturday following cloudbursts that sent water into the doors of more than 200 homes in the Fort Worth area.

The flash flooding at Fort Worth eased, but a squall sent Coast Guardsmen to rescue six men in two boats that were in trouble at Sabine Pass, 300 miles to the southeast.

TWO DROWN

Two men drowned near Fort Worth and weather-caused traffic accidents resulted in five deaths.

Tornado-like winds hit Cleburne south of Forth Worth, causing some damage and injuring one man.

Some persons who fled ahead of the Fort Worth floods began returning to their homes. Some never left, simply stacking their furniture and staying despite high water.

About 130 homes were affected in the often-flooded Richland Hills section.

Heaviest downpour was 6.5 inches.

The other flooded homes were on Flood Bend on the west fork of the Trinity River, which runs through Fort Worth and Dallas. Authorities estimated 75 homes there were flooded, with about 140 families evacuated, some leaving because of the threat of high water.

The rescues in the Sabine Pass area in the Beaumont vicinity occurred in the early morning. The Coast Guard picked up four men from the Houston Pilot Boat No. 1 after they had abondoned their

Car Strikes, Kills Trooper On Highway

INDEPENDENCE, La. (AP) — State Trooper Rudolph H. Miller, 35, died in a hospital near here Saturday of injuries received when a car struck him on a fog-shrouded highway as he was making an arrest.

State police charged Henry H. Sheffield, 19, of Kentwood, with negligent homicide in Miller's death.

SURVIVORS

Miller is survived by his widow, Phala, and five children, aged 4 weeks to 12 years.

Troopers reported Miller and Sgt. Aubrey L. Bethel stopped a car for a traffic violation on U.S. Highway 51 north of Kentwood about 2 a.m.

As Miller wrote a ticket for the motorist, he noticed a pulpwood truck traveling without lights. He stopped the truck and ordered the driver to move it to the shoulder of the road.

An oncoming car swerved at the truck and the roadside, the report said, and Miller leaped for the ditch. The car went into the ditch and struck him.

The hurtling vehicle knocked Miller 90 feet back across the road shoulder and along the surface of the highway.

Miller was taken to an Amite hospital for emergency treatment, and was en route to Hammond when his condition forced the passerby who picked him up to stop at the Seventh Ward Hospital between here and Hammond. He died at 4:30 a.m.

The owner of the car which struck Miller was identified as F. A. Sheffield of Kentwood.

Driver of the pulpwood truck was identified as J. Lee Gardner of Magnolia, Miss.

Gardner was charged with driving while intoxicated and simple escape. Troopers said he tried to flee the police car while Sgt. Bethel was helping Miller.

Funeral services for Miller will be held at St. Helena Catholic Church. He resided in Amite.

RESCUE RISKY FEAT

2 Marooned Six Days Are Saved

MADERA, Calif. (AP)—Two fishermen marooned on a sands-pit seven nights and six days were rescued in good condition Saturday from the jaws of a Sierra Mountain river gorge by a rubber raft and a helicopter pickup.

It required three days of struggle by rescuers over 700-foot sheer cliffs, rapids and risky helicopter flights to get John McClary, 30, and Keith Overson, 38, next door neighbors in Newark, Calif., out of the 1,000-foot deep canyon on the middle fork of the San Joaquin River, 65 miles east of Madera.

The men went into the canyon to fish a week ago, working their way down the steep wall by mere toeholds. They could not climb back up.

REPORTED MISSING

They found themselves stranded on a sandbar surrounded by white water and cliffs.

Overson, a vice principal at a Hayward, Calif., elementary school, failed to show when classes began Tuesday. The men were reported missing. A search was organized and the men were located late Wednesday.

Near noon Saturday, an Air Force jet-powered helicopter tried to thread its way through the gorge but turbulent winds forced it to give up.

Rescuers on the sandbar and another party downstream put an alternate plan into operation. Through rapids churned by sharp granite boulders, a rubber raft connected to a line was floated downstream with the men inside to another sands-pit 500 yards below. There, the jet copter had landed successfully and waited for the stranded men. It then took off with them and flew to Fresno, 30 miles to the southwest.

Atlas Rocket Test For Orbit Flight Success

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) —A silvery Atlas rocket destined to loft astronaut Walter M. Schirra on America's next manned orbital flight within a month successfully passed a major test Saturday.

Scientists and technicians ran the rocket's 360,000-pound-thrust engines through a "static" firing — a test in which the propulsion system is revived up but the missile itself remains clamped to the launching pad.

Officials said the workout which had been cancelled earlier this week because of technical problems, "went just beautiful" Saturday.

The success apparently strengthened scientific hopes that Schirra, a 39-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, will blast into space on Sept. 25 as planned. After the postponement earlier this week, rumors sprang up that the launching might have to be delayed until early October.

If all goes as planned, Schirra will ride into space at a speed of better than 17,000 miles per hour on the longest space flight ever attempted by an American — six orbits of earth, to a landing in the mid-Pacific ocean.

Caribbean GI Buildup Is Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department said Saturday there is no build up of United States troops in the Panama Canal zone or the big Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

A spokesman issued the denial of reports circulating in the Miami area about alleged increases in United States troop strength at those key Caribbean bases.

Military sources here believed the reports may have stemmed from the "operation fraternity" military maneuvers just concluded in Honduras on Thursday.

These sources also noted that last Aug. 8 it was announced the Canal Zone garrison was being reconverted into a mobile force of combat guerrillas.

The Quarry Heights Military headquarters in the zone said at the time that 1,400 additional personnel were scheduled to arrive in Panama during the next 10 months.

A Caribbean command spokesman in the zone said Saturday there has been no increase in the total number of personnel scheduled to arrive there, according to dispatches from Panama.

Some 350 United States paratroopers joined small units from Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Honduras in the two-day maneuvers.

The war games were designed to "test capabilities of protecting against external aggression," according to the Defense Department.

Tours Set By Givers Directors

The board of directors of United Givers Fund will visit each of the local member agencies during the next two weeks, to gain on-the-spot experience in the work conducted by the agencies.

Mrs. Fred Beckett, chairman of the agency tours, pointed out Saturday that each of the organizations will present planned programs of information.

"Presidents of each of the agencies are invited to join the directors and campaign leaders on these tours," she stated.

The tours will be held at 2 p.m. on Tuesdays, Sept. 11 and 18, and Thursdays, Sept. 13 and 20.

"Three of the agencies will be visited each day," Mrs. Beckett explained. "The board will travel by bus, from the United Givers Fund office, 200 S. Grand St.

"The bus is furnished by the Twin Cities YMCA, one of the UGF agencies."

In addition to the tours, each agency will hold "Open House" for the public from Sept. 17 through 21.

The tour schedule is:

Sept. 11: American Red Cross, Salvation Army and Colored Community Welfare.

Sept. 13: Ouachita Association for Retarded Children, Northeast Branch of the Louisiana Association for Mental Health, and the Twin Cities YMCA.

Sept. 18: Boy Scouts of America, Monroe Area Guidance Center and West Monroe Boy's Club.

Sept. 20: Carolyn Strauss Rehabilitation Center, Girl Scouts of America and the Twin Cities YMCA.

In addition to Mrs. Beckett, the tour committee includes: Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt, Mrs. D. V. Loflin Jr., Gordy Roy and Benton Wakefield.

Italy Deports De Gaulle Foe

ROME (AP)—Georges Bidault anti-De Gaullist ex-premier wanted in France as head of the outlawed National Resistance Council, has been found in Italy and escorted out of the country.

Where he was sent was not disclosed. There was speculation that he asked to be placed on a ship or plane to Spain rather than face certain arrest at the French frontier or probable expulsion from either Switzerland or Austria.

3 Bombs Are Found In Church

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Three live bombs were discovered Saturday night in nearby Marrero, reportedly at a Roman Catholic church whose school was desegregated earlier in the week.

Jefferson Parish (county) officers took the explosives to a dump and prepared to detonate them. Capt. A. J. Scardino confirmed that the bombs were live but would not say where they were found.

The bombs reportedly were found in St. Joseph the Worker Church in Marrero, across the Mississippi River from New Orleans. Five Negro children have been attending the church's formerly all-white school.

Marrero is between the towns of Harvey, where a half-dozen shots broke the glass door of a desegregated Catholic school Friday morning, and Westwego, where segregationists have demonstrated against the entrance of two little Negroes to another Catholic school.

Ellender Says Cuban Uprising Is In Making

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday "it is only logical to assume that a full-scale counter-revolution is in the making" against Fidel Castro in Cuba.

He said that "reports of such activity and sabotage have already been received in this country and I am sure that there is much of it going on that we do not hear about."

The senator based the possibility of an anti-Castro uprising on the island's worsening food and economic situation. He said in a radio broadcast for New Orleans stations that "under these conditions, and given the historically volatile nature of the Cuban people, it is only logical to assume that a full-scale counter-revolution is in the making."

Democratic congressional leaders, meanwhile, apparently were waiting for White House reaction before endorsing a Republican proposal for a Formosa-type resolution specifically authorizing President Kennedy to take such military action toward Cuba as he feels necessary.

Republican leaders hoped that the resolution would be passed before this session of Congress adjourns in the next few weeks.

Outlook Today Stays Routine

The weatherman came through with a routine forecast for today. The outlook calls for partly cloudy to cloudy skies through tonight with a high today ranging from 86 to 93 degrees.

Tonight's low is expected to be from 70 to 76.

Scattered showers and thundershowers are also predicted for today.

Saturday's top reading under mostly cloudy skies was 89 with the low recorded at 67.

Wave Of Asian Flu Expected To Strike

CHICAGO (AP) — If you're over 45, the American Medical Association says, it might be wise to arrange immediately to be vaccinated against an expected widespread third wave of Asian flu this winter.

Asian flu, also called A-2 by physicians, is believed to have contributed to deaths of 90,000 Americans in its first two epidemic sweeps of the nation in the winters of 1957-58 and 1959-60.

The National Advisory Committee on Influenza, a panel of doctors, reported last April to the U. S. surgeon general:

"While accurate predictions are difficult, recent and past patterns indicate that widespread outbreaks of Influenza A-2 will occur in the United States during the 1962-63 winter season."

The committee said that, following a widespread appearance of the strain in Russia last January, it spread to several Far Eastern and Western European nations, and was well seeded in the United States last spring.

The experts, themselves, say they have no idea how serious the outbreak may be. But physicians have been alerted, public health programs have been outlined, and stocks of the special flu vaccine containing a substantial potency against the A-2 variety of the disease have been built up.

The rough estimate of 90,000 deaths in which Asian flu played a contributng part, was made by noting the number of deaths from respiratory diseases above the normal expectation. There were 59,000 such excessive deaths during the 157-58 epidemic and 26,700 in the flu visitation two years later.

AT NATIONAL ZOO

Bride For Smokey Gets Big Welcome

WASHINGTON (AP)—Smokey the bear's bride-to-be, billed as a natured blonde was the toast of the town Saturday.

The 12-month-old Goldie paced restlessly in her cage while outside on the National Zoo ground speeches were being made welcoming her as Smokey's mate.

She apparently still was feeling the effects of a tranquilizer, given before her flight here from New Mexico with an overnight stop at Indianapolis.

Smokey, the nation's 12 year-old fire prevention symbol, wasn't on hand for the ceremony. He was kept in his cage, not far from the reception scene.

"They'll be put in cages side by side," the zoo director, Dr. T. H. Reed, said. "We'll give them an opportunity to become acquainted slowly. This could take several weeks or several months but with luck they'll have a family in about 16 months."

But until Smokey and Goldie get to know each other, Reed said, they'll be restricted to their own cages.

A crowd of several hundred persons, including many of Smokey's little helpers, was already on hand when Goldie was driven up on the back of a pickup truck. She was inside a small wooden cage.

Reed gave the official welcome during which he displayed a bear-size wedding ring Goldie had been given during her stopover in Indianapolis.

Then Edward P. Cliff, Forest Service chief, took over.

"Smokey has captured the hearts of millions of Americans—young and old. We think his good work should go on and on. So we hope that the image of Smokey can be perpetuated through his offspring."

Ben Bella's Troops Take Over Algiers

Rebel Guerrilla Forces Evacuate City Peacefully

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Several thousand troops of the Communist-equipped regular army supporting Ahmed Ben Bella entered the Algiers region without opposition Saturday as rebel guerrilla forces evacuated the city.

The army's commander, Col. Houari Boumedienne, drove into Blida, 30 miles southwest of the capital, at the head of his smartly uniformed battalions. Civilians cheered wildly.

STAGE PARADE

Boumedienne rode bare-headed in an open jeep.

An army spokesman said the troops would camp overnight on the Blida-Algiers highway and would reach the outskirts of the capital early Sunday.

They staged a military parade in Blida, which ironically had just become the new headquarters of the rebel guerrilla Wilaya (zone) No. 4.

The guerrillas were moved out of the downtown Algiers under a demilitarization agreement with Ben Bella's Political Bureau. Several guerrillas newly arrived from Algiers were seen among the cheering crowd in Blida.

But their commanders were in a grim mood, and one complained bitterly: "We have been tricked by the politicians."

It seemed they had agreed to the installation of a small token detachment of Boumedienne's men near Algiers, and were completely surprised by the massive movement of the regulars.

The Political Bureau immediately pressed home its advantage and announced that the election of a National Assembly will definitely be held Sept. 20. The election, previously scheduled Sept. 16 after five postponements, had again been in doubt Saturday morning as the Political Bureau locked in a dispute with guerrilla leaders over the nomination of candidates.

This dispute evaporated with movement of the regulars into the Algiers region.

Ellender Says Cuban Uprising Is In Making

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday "it is only logical to assume that a full-scale counter-revolution is in the making" against Fidel Castro in Cuba.

He said that "reports of such activity and sabotage have already been received in this country and I am sure that there is much of it going on that we do not hear about."

The senator based the possibility of an anti-Castro uprising on the island's worsening food and economic situation. He said in a radio broadcast for New Orleans stations that "under these conditions, and given the historically volatile nature of the Cuban people, it is only logical to assume that a full-scale counter-revolution is in the making."

Democratic congressional leaders, meanwhile, apparently were waiting for White House reaction before endorsing a Republican proposal for a Formosa-type resolution specifically authorizing President Kennedy to take such military action toward Cuba as he feels necessary.

Republican leaders hoped that the resolution would be passed before this session of Congress adjourns in the next few weeks.

Outlook Today Stays Routine

The weatherman came through with a routine forecast for today. The outlook calls for partly cloudy to cloudy skies through tonight with a high today ranging from 86 to 93 degrees.

Tonight's low is expected to be from 70 to 76.

Scattered showers and thundershowers are also predicted for today.

Saturday's top reading under mostly cloudy skies was 89 with the low recorded at 67.

Car Strikes, Kills Trooper On Highway

INDEPENDENCE, La. (AP) — State Trooper Rudolph H. Miller, 35, died in a hospital near here Saturday of injuries received when a car struck him on a fog-shrouded highway as he was making an arrest.

State police charged Henry H. Sheffield, 19, of Kentwood, with negligent homicide in Miller's death.

SURVIVORS

Miller is survived by his widow, Phala, and five children, aged 4 weeks to 12 years.

Troopers reported Miller and Sgt. Aubrey L. Bethel stopped a car for a traffic violation on U.S. Highway 51 north of Kentwood about 2 a.m.

As Miller wrote a ticket for the motorist, he noticed a pulpwood truck traveling without lights. He stopped the truck and ordered the driver to move it to the shoulder of the road.

An oncoming car swerved at the truck and the roadside, the report said, and Miller leaped for the ditch. The car went into the ditch and struck him.

The hurtling vehicle knocked Miller 90 feet back across the road shoulder and along the surface of the highway.

Miller was taken to an Amite hospital for emergency treatment, and was en route to Hammond when his condition forced the passerby who picked him up to stop at the Seventh Ward Hospital between here and Hammond. He died at 4:30 a.m.

The owner of the car which struck Miller was identified as F. A. Sheffield of Kentwood.

Driver of the pulpwood truck was identified as J. Lee Gardner of Magnolia, Miss.

Gardner was charged with driving while intoxicated and simple escape. Troopers said he tried to flee the police car while Sgt. Bethel was helping Miller.

Funeral services for Miller will be held at St. Helena Catholic Church. He resided in Amite.

RESCUE RISKY FEAT

2 Marooned Six Days Are Saved

MADERA, Calif. (AP)—Two fishermen marooned on a sands-pit seven nights and six days were rescued in good condition Saturday from the jaws of a Sierra Mountain river gorge by a rubber raft and a helicopter pickup.

It required three days of struggle by rescuers over 700-foot sheer cliffs, rapids and risky helicopter flights to get John McClary, 30, and Keith Overson, 38, next door neighbors in Newark, Calif., out of the 1,000-foot deep canyon on the middle fork of the San Joaquin River, 65 miles east of Madera.

The men went into the canyon to fish a week ago, working their way down the steep wall by mere toeholds. They could not climb back up.

REPORTED MISSING

They found themselves stranded on a sandbar surrounded by white water and cliffs.

Overson, a vice principal at a Hayward, Calif., elementary school, failed to show when classes began Tuesday. The men were reported missing. A search was organized and the men were located late Wednesday.

Near noon Saturday, an Air Force jet-powered helicopter tried to thread its way through the gorge but turbulent winds forced it to give up.

Rescuers on the sandbar and another party downstream put an alternate plan into operation. Through rapids churned by sharp granite boulders, a rubber raft connected to a line was floated downstream with the men inside to another sands-pit 500 yards below. There, the jet copter had landed successfully and waited for the stranded men. It then took off with them and flew to Fresno, 80 miles to the southwest.

Atlas Rocket Test For Orbit Flight Success

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) —A silvery Atlas rocket destined to loft astronaut Walter M. Schirra on America's next manned orbital flight within a month successfully passed a major test Saturday.

Scientists and technicians ran the rocket's 360,000-pound-thrust engines through a "static" firing — a test in which the propulsion system is revived up but the missile itself remains clamped to the launching pad.

Officials said the workout which had been cancelled earlier this week because of technical problems, "went just beautiful" Saturday.

The success apparently strengthened scientific hopes that Schirra, a 39-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, will blast into space on Sept. 25 as planned. After the postponement earlier this week, rumors sprang up that the launching might have to be delayed until early October.

If all goes as planned, Schirra will ride into space at a speed of better than 17,000 miles per hour on the longest space flight ever attempted by an American — six orbits of earth, to a landing in the mid-Pacific ocean.

AT NATIONAL ZOO

Bride For Smokey Gets Big Welcome

WASHINGTON (AP)—Smokey the bear's bride-to-be, billed as a natural blonde, was the toast of the town Saturday.

The 18-month-old Goldie paced around in her cage while outside on the National Zoo grounds speeches were being made welcoming her as Smokey's mate.

She apparently still was feeling the effects of a tranquilizer, given before her flight here from New Mexico with an overnight stop at Indianapolis.

Smokey, the nation's 12-year-old fire prevention symbol, wasn't on hand for the ceremony. He was kept in his cage, not far from the reception scene.

"They'll be put in cages side by side," the zoo director, Dr. T. H. Reed, said. "We'll give them an opportunity to become acquainted slowly. This could take several weeks or several months but with luck they'll have a family in about 16 months."

But until Smokey and Goldie get to know each other, Reed said, they'll be restricted to their own cages.

A crowd of several hundred persons, including many of Smokey's little helpers, was already on hand when Goldie was driven up on the back of a pickup truck. She was inside a small wooden cage.

Reed gave the official welcome, during which he displayed a bear-size wedding ring Goldie had been given during her stopover in Indianapolis.

Then Edward P. Cliff, Forest Service chief, took over.

"Smokey has captured the hearts of millions of Americans —young and old. We think his good work should go on and on. So we hope that the image of Smokey can be perpetuated through his offspring."

Rains Cause Five Deaths In Accidents

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Turbulent weather struck Texas again Saturday following cloudbursts that sent water into the doors of more than 200 homes in the Fort Worth area.

The flash flooding at Fort Worth eased, but a squall sent Coast Guardsmen to rescue six men in two boats that were in trouble at Sabine Pass, 300 miles to the southeast.

TWO DROWN

Two men drowned near Fort Worth and weather-caused traffic accidents resulted in five deaths.

Tornado-like winds hit Cleburne south of Forth Worth, causing some damage and injuring one man.

Some persons who fled ahead of the Fort Worth floods began returning to their homes. Some never left, simply stacking their furniture and staying despite high water.

About 130 homes were affected in the often-flooded Richland Hills section.

Heaviest downpour was 6.5 inches.

The other flooded homes were on Flood Bend on the west fork of the Trinity River, which runs through Fort Worth and Dallas. Authorities estimated 75 homes there were flooded, with about 140 families evacuated, some leaving because of the threat of high water.

The rescues in the Sabine Pass area in the Beaumont vicinity occurred in the early morning. The Coast Guard picked up four men from the Houston Pilot Boat No. 1 after they had abondoned their

Caribbean GI Buildup Is Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department said Saturday there is no build up of United States troops in the Panama Canal zone or the big Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

A spokesman issued the denial of reports circulating in the Miami area about alleged increases in United States troop strength at those key Caribbean bases.

Military sources here believed the reports may have stemmed from the "operation fraternity" military maneuvers just concluded in Honduras on Thursday.

These sources also noted that last Aug. 8 it was announced the Canal Zone garrison was being reconverted into a mobile force of combat guerrillas.

The Quarry Heights Military headquarters in the zone said at the time that 1,400 additional personnel were scheduled to arrive in Panama during the next 10 months.

A Caribbean command spokesman in the zone said Saturday there has been no increase in the total number of personnel scheduled to arrive there, according to dispatches from Panama.

Some 850 United States paratroopers joined small units from Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Honduras in the two-day maneuvers.

The war games were designed to "test capabilities of protecting against external aggression," according to the Defense Department.

Try To Restore Tax Items Slated

Lawmakers Schedule Major Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate tax writers plan a major effort next week to restore President Kennedy's proposed withholding tax on dividend payments to the pending tax reform bill, it was learned Saturday.

The drive to salvage the part of the most important revenue producing features of the embattled legislation shaped up as House and Senate conferees prepared to start negotiations on a compromise. But according to congressional spokesmen, no attempt will be made to restore the withholding feature on interest income.

Kennedy originally asked for a 20 per cent withholding tax on income from dividends and interest as a means of recapturing an estimated $550 million a year in revenue now being avoided in this area.

The House approved the proposal in passing its tax reform measure March 20. But this week the Senate upheld its Finance Committee on a 12-9 party vote to strip the controversial feature from the House bill.

The Senate passed the sharply scaled down reform measure by a 50-31 vote Thursday. House and Senate conferees are expected to meet sometime next week to begin hammering out a compromise.

Restoration of dividend withholding would be a step toward restoring revenue balance to the bill and could win support from conservatives who oppose the bill as a budget busting measure.

Key feature of the legislation now is a $1 billion tax credit for business. This is designed to stimulate investments for plant expansion and modernization.

The Senate bill also carries a number of loophole - closing features estimated to pick up about $730 million in new revenues. But this still left the bill $210 million in the red, compared with a revenue gain of about $325 million under the House version.

A 20 per cent withholding tax on dividend payments at the source would produce $550 million a year in revenues now escaping taxation, according to treasury estimates based on 1959 data.

TALK SCHEDULED

Man Who Exposed Estes Slated Here

DR. JOHN DUNN

A 34 - year old native west Texan, generally credited with undercover work exposing Billy Sol Estes, will speak in Monroe Sept. 15 under auspices of the Monroe Jaycees and the Good Government Organization.

Dr. John Dunn, surgeon, former newspaper publisher and U. S. Marine, will speak at a public gathering starting at 7:15 p.m. on the Hotel Virginia roof.

Announcement of the controversial doctor's visit was made in a joint statement released Saturday by Bob Clay, chairman of the Good Government Organization and Edd Routt, president of the Monroe Jaycees.

"This meeting is open to the public, and anyone interested in finding out what one individual can do to fight corruption is urged to attend," Clay said.

Dr. Dunn, married and the father of four children, gained national recognition last year when, as co - owner of the Pecos Independent, semi - weekly newspaper, he started publishing stories on Texas financier Billy Sol Estes.

BIRCH MEMBER

Dr. Dunn, a member of the John Birch Society, is credited in many areas with initiating the investigation which resulted in exposure of Estes' dealings in non - existent fertilizer tanks.

The physician's "undercover" work in the case and his "disregard for personal safety" has been lauded in newspapers and magazines throughout the country, including "Farm and Ranch," "The Big Bend Sentinel", and "The San Fernando Valley Times."

Wrote Tom Anderson in "Farm and Ranch":

"About two years ago he (Dr. Dunn) began quietly investigating Billie Sol Estes' activities, which out - smelled the ether in his operating room. Dr. Dunn sent photostats of his findings, starting about a year ago, to three people, of whom I was one.

"In case Dunn was done in, we had the evidence. Billie Sol's newspaper and friends smeared Dunn and the John Birch Society. When Dunn's evidence became overwhelming, he took it to Dan Smoot, a great Texas conservative and former FBI agent. Smoot sent it through channels of the FBI and the fat was in the fire. "Farm and Ranch" was the first mass publication to print the story."

Working side by side with Dr. Dunn throughout most of his 18-month investigation was Dr. Harlow Avery, co - owner of The Independent whose conservative political philosophy agreed in detail with that of Dr. Dunn.

Anderson called Dr. Dunn a classic example of "what one little person can do," and said the physician's investigation is a "tribute to the integrity, perseverance and the guts of one man."

Dr. Dunn, in a telephone conversation with Clay, said he would recount, step by step, his reasons and procedure in bringing to light Estes' suspect activities.

One of the biggest breaks in Dr. Dunn's investigation came early in 1961 when the Retail Merchants Association bulletin began carrying an unusual number of chattel mortgages on fertilizer tanks.

Twice a month, the association (owned by Drs. Dunn and Avery) sent to all members a statistical rundown on all courthouse information, marriage licenses, deeds of trust, mortgages, liens, judgements — anything of record that could affect a persons's credit rating.

Fletcher Knebel, with the Valley Times Washington Bureau, wrote: "Then one day Billie Sol called the association and asked

Greek Tobacco Growers Stage Demonstration

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A demonstration by tobacco growers seeking higher prices for their crop turned into a riot Saturday and reports from Agrinion, in western Greece, said at least one person was killed and 30 injured including 13 policemen.

The tobacco growers protest that prices offered are too low, even though the government offered 15 to 20 per cent more than last year's prices. The farmers want 30 to 40 per cent more, especially in view of the fact that the government increased cigarette prices 7 per cent last month.

The demonstrators — estimated to number 2,000 — assembled early in the day on the main road outside Agrinion, blocked a bridge and stalled traffic. Many, armed with clubs and stones, sat on the road. Four hundred policemen, according to accounts from the scene, tried to disperse them, first with an order, then with tear gas.

Broader Aid In Housing Is Sought

Federal Program Expansion Asked For The Elderly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee Saturday recommended greatly broadened federal programs to solve the housing problems of the nation's 17 million older citizens.

"In view of the severely limited incomes of most persons over 65, substantial improvement in the living conditions of the elderly depends heavily on federal assistance to provide specially designed housing at reduced costs," the subcommittee said in a 57-page report to the special Senate Committee report on the Aging.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said the nation already has 17 million Americans over 65 with the number increasing each year. Of these, "several million have unsolved critical housing problems," it said.

The group estimated that 45 per cent of those over 65—or about five million—need improved housing, with "the major need for rental housing at prices which retired people with low incomes can afford."

It also said many older people are living in what normally would be adequate homes. But the houses were designed for large families and are bigger than the elderly need or can maintain.

"Housing is a national problem of great magnitude, which the nation has only begun to recognize and come to grips with," the subcommittee said. "And the problem will grow as the number of elderly persons grows—from 17 million in 1960 to 24.5 million in 1980."

The older citizens mainly need specially designed housing, "suitable in size, economical in cost, easy to maintain and convenient to community activities and services," the subcommittee reported.

FOR FALL TERM

Tech Outlaws Frosh Hairdo's

RUSTON (Special)—Freakish close - cropped hair cuts or shaved heads for freshman boys have been abolished at Louisiana Tech, effective with the opening of the fall semester during the week of Sept. 16.

S. X. Lewis, dean of students, Saturday announced the end of the traditional but "increasingly objectionable" clipping of fresh pates by upperclassmen, following conferences with Tech President Dr. F. Jay Taylor.

"The administration feels," Dean Lewis said, "that freshmen have enough adjustments to make in changing from high school to college without being subjected to the humility of unorthodox hair cutting by their older classmates.

"Disciplinary action will be taken against any upperclassman who violates or participates in the violation of the no - hair - cutting regulation," Dean Lewis added.

Henceforth, freshmen boys at Tech will have their hair trimmed the way they are used to having it cut, it was announced.

The freshman boys, however, will be required to wear the customary red "pup" caps as in former years at the college here, Dean Lewis reported. Freshman girls at Tech will continue to wear their distinctive green caps, or beanies.

"The wearing of the caps will be the only form of freshman 'initiation' permitted by the college, the dean said.

Such activities as barefoot day, suitcase day and other practices for freshmen at Tech were previously discontinued.

BAD MAINTENANCE

Equipment In Aid Outlay Defective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors reported Saturday that large quantities of automotive parts and other U. S. Army equipment supplied to Far Eastern countries have become defective through improper maintenance or have been stolen for civilian use.

Moreover, the report said, the United States now is preparing to give these same countries more complex military equipment—including missile systems — which will require far greater maintenance skill than the items previously shipped.

The investigators said they had recommended to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara that future shipments of military aid be limited to that equipment for which there is "reasonable assurance" the recipients can properly maintain and use.

The report was submitted to President Kennedy and to the Senate and House by the General Accounting Office, which serves as Congress' watchdog over treasury spending.

In an accompanying letter, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, the agency's chief, said that "corrective action" already had been taken on most of the defects in the military assistance program uncovered by his investigators.

Fund To Honor Dr. Gallaspy Is Announced

Friends of the late Dr. Glenn Todd Gallaspy have begun a drive to raise funds to furnish a room in Dr. Gallaspy's memory at the new Glenmwood Hospital.

The West Monroe hospital is to be formally opened Sept. 16.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the drive may do so by sending their donations to George Wylie at the First National Bank in West Monroe.

Dr. Gallaspy, who was a prominent physician in West Monroe for nearly 30 years before dying three years ago, played a very large part in starting the drive for the new hospital.

SPREADS TO AREA

Polio Campaign Gains Speed As Kickoff Nears

The Victory Over Polio campaign scheduled to kickoff Sept. 30 gained momentum last week as four parishes surrounding Ouachita laid plans for mass innoculation of their citizens.

Dr. Roy Kelly, Monroe pediatrician and medical chairman for the campaign, said doctors and civic clubs in Union, Richland, Jackson and Morehouse parishes had "scheduled clinics to coincide with ours."

Other parishes in northeast Louisiana were making inquiries and indications were that at least 10 of them would join the mass vaccination program.

The program was announced two weeks ago by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Joe Maggio, Jaycee chairman, said efforts would be made to immunize "300,000 persons throughout this area against polio."

There will be no set charge for the vaccine, but each person is requested to donate at least 25 cents to help defray costs. Dr. Kelly emphasized that no one will be denied the vaccine, and said mobile "clinics" would be set up to administer to citizens in homes for the aged, hospitals and jails. Everyone regardless of age after three months, is urged to take the vaccine.

Thirty - five public school buildings will be used as clinic sites, and thirty - seven volunteer workers will be needed to staff each clinic. At least one medical doctor, under whose authority the vaccine will be given, will be stationed at each clinic.

Initial steps were taken last Tuesday to enlist the aid of Negro school principals and teachers in staffing clinics to be set up in colored schools.

Herman Wilson, principal of Carver Elementary School, was elected chairman of the group.

Altogether, nearly 1,400 persons will be needed to staff the clinics. Manpower Chairman Chuck Morgan of the Jaycees said volunteers have been calling, in but that "we still need help."

Nurses may contact Mrs. Claudia Pittman at FA 5-1548 or FA 2-0547 to contribute their time. Pharmacists should call John Guerriero at FA 5-2611.

Virtually every medical doctor in Ouachita Parish has volunteered to contribute his time to the program.

Committees have been busy since the program was conceived July 2. A 17-page brochure detailing plans has been prepared and distributed, and maps have been made spotting clinic locations.

A delegation will leave Sunday morning via private plane to inspect clinics at the second feeding of the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society and the Houston Jaycees program.

Transportation for the vaccine has been arranged, and a vast communications system has been laid out to maintain constant contact between clinics and vaccine supply points.

Here are the clinic sites to be used in the vaccination program: Lakeshore Elementary, Ouachita Parish High, Sherrouse Elementary, Lexington Elementary, Neville High, Georgia Tucker Elementary, Barkdull Faulk, Lida Benton Elementary, Jefferson Jr. High, Shady Grove Elementary, Drew Elementary, Claiborne Elementary and Lenwil Elementary.

Highland Elementary, West Monroe High, Ransom Elementary, Crosley Elementary, Sterlington High, Swartz Elementary, Logtown Elementary, Calhoun High, Woodlawn Elementary and Northeast State College.

Clark Elementary, Carroll High, Lincoln Elementary, Carver Elementary, Swayze Elementary, Terzia High, Boley High, Tim Tippit Elementary, Myles High, Burks Elementary, Union Baptist and Central High School.

Four hundred policemen, according to accounts from the scene, tried to disperse them, first with an order, then with tear gas.

Broader Aid In Housing Is Sought

Federal Program Expansion Asked For The Elderly

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A Senate subcommittee Saturday recommended greatly broadened federal programs to solve the housing problems of the nation's 17 million older citizens.

"In view of the severely limited incomes of most persons over 65, substantial improvement in the living conditions of the elderly depends heavily on federal assistance to provide specially designed housing at reduced costs," the subcommittee said in a 57-page report to the special Senate Committee report on the Aging.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said the nation already has 17 million Americans over 65 with the number increasing each year. Of these, "several million have unsolved critical housing problems," it said.

The group estimated that 45 per cent of those over 65—or about five million—need improved housing, with "the major need for rental housing at prices which retired people with low incomes can afford."

It also said many older people are living in what normally would be adequate homes. But the houses were designed for large families and are bigger than the elderly need or can maintain.

"Housing is a national problem of great magnitude, which the nation has only begun to recognize and come to grips with," the subcommittee said. "And the problem will grow as the number of elderly persons grows—from 17 million in 1960 to 24.5 million in 1980."

The older citizens mainly need specially designed housing, "suitable in size, economical in cost, easy to maintain and convenient to community activities and services," the subcommittee reported.

FOR FALL TERM

Tech Outlaws Frosh Hairdo's

RUSTON (Special)—Freakish close - cropped hair cuts or shaved heads for freshman boys have been abolished at Louisiana Tech, effective with the opening of the fall semester during the week of Sept. 16.

S. X. Lewis, dean of students, Saturday announced the end of the traditional but "increasingly objectionable" clipping of fresh pates by upperclassmen, following conferences with Tech President Dr. F. Jay Taylor.

"The administration feels," Dean Lewis said, "that freshmen have enough adjustments to make in changing from high school to college without being subjected to the humility of unorthodox hair cutting by their older classmates.

"Disciplinary action will be taken against any upperclassman who violates or participates in the violation of the no - hair - cutting regulation," Dean Lewis added.

Henceforth, freshmen boys at Tech will have their hair trimmed the way they are used to having it cut, it was announced.

The freshman boys, however, will be required to wear the customary red "pup" caps as in former years at the college here, Dean Lewis reported. Freshman girls at Tech will continue to wear their distinctive green caps, or beanies.

"The wearing of the caps will be the only form of freshman 'initiation' permitted by the college, the dean said.

Such activities as barefoot day, suitcase day and other practices for freshmen at Tech were previously discontinued.

BAD MAINTENANCE

Equipment In Aid Outlay Defective

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Government auditors reported Saturday that large quantities of automotive parts and other U. S. Army equipment supplied to Far Eastern countries have become defective through improper maintenance or have been stolen for civilian use.

Moreover, the report said, the United States now is preparing to give these same countries more complex military equipment—including missile systems — which will require far greater maintenance skill than the items previously shipped.

The investigators said they had recommended to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara that future shipments of military aid be limited to that equipment for which there is "reasonable assurance" the recipients can properly maintain and use.

The report was submitted to President Kennedy and to the Senate and House by the General Accounting Office, which serves as Congress' watchdog over treasury spending.

In an accompanying letter, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, the agency's chief, said that "corrective action" already had been taken on most of the defects in the military assistance program uncovered by his investigators.

Fund To Honor Dr. Gallaspy Is Announced

Friends of the late Dr. Glenn Todd Gallaspy have begun a drive to raise funds to furnish a room in Dr. Gallaspy's memory at the new Glennwood Hospital.

The West Monroe hospital is to be formally opened Sept. 16.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the drive may do so by sending their donations to George Wylie at the First National Bank in West Monroe.

Dr. Gallaspy, who was a prominent physician in West Monroe for nearly 30 years before dying three years ago, played a very large part in starting the drive for the new hospital.

SPREADS TO AREA

Polio Campaign Gains Speed As Kickoff Nears

The Victory Over Polio campaign scheduled to kickoff Sept. 30 gained momentum last week as four parishes surrounding Ouachita laid plans for mass innoculation of their citizens.

Dr. Roy Kelly, Monroe pediatrician and medical chairman for the campaign, said doctors and civic clubs in Union, Richland, Jackson and Morehouse parishes had "scheduled clinics to coincide with ours."

Other parishes in northeast Louisiana were making inquiries and indications were that at least 10 of them would join the mass vaccination program.

The program was announced two weeks ago by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Joe Maggio, Jaycee chairman, said efforts would be made to immunize "300,000 persons throughout this area against polio."

There will be no set charge for the vaccine, but each person is requested to donate at least 25 cents to help defray costs. Dr. Kelly emphasized that no one will be denied the vaccine, and said mobile "clinics" would be set up to administer to citizens in homes for the aged, hospitals and jails. Everyone regardless of age after three months, is urged to take the vaccine.

Thirty - five public school buildings will be used as clinic sites, and thirty - seven volunteer workers will be needed to staff each clinic. At least one medical doctor, under whose authority the vaccine will be given, will be stationed at each clinic.

Initial steps were taken last Tuesday to enlist the aid of Negro school principals and teachers in staffing clinics to be set up in colored schools.

Herman Wilson, principal of Carver Elementary School, was elected chairman of the group.

Altogether, nearly 1,400 persons will be needed to staff the clinics. Manpower Chairman Chuck Morgan of the Jaycees said volunteers have been calling, in but that "we still need help."

Nurses may contact Mrs. Claudia Pittman at FA 5-1548 or FA 2-0547 to contribute their time. Pharmacists should call John Guerriero at FA 5-2611..

Virtually every medical doctor in Ouachita Parish has volunteered to contribute his time to the program.

Committees have been busy since the program was conceived July 2. A 17-page brochure detailing plans has been prepared and distributed, and maps have been made spotting clinic locations.

A delegation will leave Sunday morning via private plane to inspect clinics at the second feeding of the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society and the Houston Jaycees program.

Transportation for the vaccine has been arranged, and a vast communications system has been laid out to maintain constant contact between clinics and vaccine supply points.

Here are the clinic sites to be used in the vaccination program: Lakeshore Elementary, Ouachita Parish High, Sherrouse Elementary, Lexington Elementary, Neville High, Georgia Tucker Elementary, Barkdull Faulk, Lida Benton Elementary, Jefferson Jr. High, Shady Grove Elementary, Drew Elementary, Claiborne Elementary and Lenwil Elementary.

Highland Elementary, West Monroe High, Ransom Elementary, Crosley Elementary, Sterlington High, Swartz Elementary, Logtown Elementary, Calhoun High, Woodlawn Elementary and Northeast State College.

Clark Elementary, Carroll High, Lincoln Elementary, Carver Elementary, Swayze Elementary, Terzia High, Boley High, Tim Tippit Elementary, Myles High, Burks Elementary, Union Baptist and Central High School.

French Seeking Six Terrorists

PARIS (UPI) — French police Saturday tightened controls on the Spanish frontier to head off any escape attempt by six Secret Army terrorists wanted for the attempted assassination of President Charles de Gaulle last month.

Five members of the OAS killer commando squad were behind bars and under non-stop questioning at criminal police headquarters in Paris along with 17 suspected accomplices.

Six others, including three Hungarian deserters from the French Foreign Legion, were sought by police forces mobilized throughout the nation for the manhunt.

A close watch was maintained on all of France's borders, and at all air and sea ports. Automobiles were stopped at highway roadblocks and pedestrians questioned and their papers checked.

A particularly close watch was ordered on the frontier with Spain. One man was reported to have slipped into Spain, contacted Secret Army terrorist leaders there and, curiously, returned to France.

Besides the three unnamed Hungarians, the French Government has identified three other commando members being sought as Georges Watin, 39, known as "the man with the limp," Jean-Pierre Naudin, 29, a student preparing for entry to St. Cyr Military Academy—France's "West Point"—and a Frenchman named Buisines, an expert sharpshooter who fired an automatic rifle in the attack on De Gaulle.

Interior Minister Roger Frey, who announced the five arrests Friday, said the assassination attempt was certainly masterminded from abroad. Frey did not elaborate.

But authorities here believed the orders came either from OAS leaders known to be hiding out in Spain or from renegade ex-Col. Antoine Argoud, OAS leader for France, who was last reported in Belgium.

Boy Is Located In Accidental Fatal Shooting

BASKING RIDGE, N.J. (AP)—A frightened 13-year-old boy who disappeared after accidentally killing a playmate with an old rifle was located in Elizabeth on Saturday night.

Bernards Township Police Chief Harry Allen said he got a call from Elizabeth police that the boy, Michael Mahon, was at the home of Raymond Comeau, a neighbor.

"I sent two patrolmen to pick him up," the chief said.

Police said Michael bolted into woods here Friday after firing a fatal shot into the head of Philip Wendall, also 13, while they were playing in a small house on the William Astor estate.

Michael ran into nearby Great Swamp, police said, after he saw his friend carried off in an ambulance that he had summoned himself.

Chief Allen said the shooting is classed as accidental. He said the Mahon boy will be questioned and that probably a routine charge of juvenile delinquency will be made against him.

craft and were clinging to the jetty.

Shortly before, the Coast Guard picked up two other men from a shrimp boat that was in trouble at the jetty.

A huge mound of Canadian air settled over Montana and Wyoming, dropping temperatures 50 degrees from the summery 80's into subfreezing 30's. Lewiston, Mont., measured at least an inch of snow and more snows were predicted as far east as Wisconsin.

The wintry storm halted the wheat harvest in central Montana and forced the closing of the Colorado highway leading to the top of Mount Evans, the nation's highest thoroughfare.

Weathermen said the storm would push into the Dakotas during the day with a mixture of cold rain.

The cold front clashed in the Midlands with moist air from the Gulf of Mexico and the conflict turned on flooding rains in parts of Texas.

The weather was cool across the Northeast and the 45 degrees at Philadelphia set a record for the third consecutive day. More cold records for the date were established at Baltimore, Richmond, Va., and Allentown, Pa.

Young Marine Is Found Guilty In Slaying Case

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A young Marine and an ex-convict were found guilty of first-degree murder Saturday in the rape-slaying of a Beverly Hills matron.

A jury of seven women and five men returned the verdict against Pvt. Charles Henry Hummel, 18, stationed at Twentynine Palms, Calif., and Norman Whitehorn, 24, of Los Angeles. Whitehorn was on parole as a convicted rapist-kidnaper from San Bernardino, Calif.

The two said they picked up Angela Gums, 38, in a Hollywood bar last April 20 and drove her to a field just across the Ventura County line, where her nude and strangled body was found. Each said the other was the killer.

Truman Assails Ike As 'Laziest'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was "the laziest president we ever had in the White House," said former President Harry S. Truman Saturday night.

Truman helped kick off the state Democratic campaign with a speech mostly devoted to an attack on the Eisenhower administration.

Eisenhower is responsible for the present situation in Cuba, said Truman, because he "didn't have enough guts to enforce the Monroe Doctrine."

Burglaries Keep Officers Busy In Twin Cities

Burglaries kept Twin City police busy Saturday with both departments reporting break-ins.

West Monroe was the hardest hit when Eureka Grocery, located on Commerce Street, was burglarized. Around $50 in change and currency was taken after entrance was gained through a door in the storeroom. The break - in was discovered by an officer on patrol around 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

Monroe police investigated the burglary of a Negro school where a window fan was taken. The school principal, Herman C. Wilson, reported the loss at Carver Elementary stating that entrance had been gained through a window.

The Monroe department was also checking the theft of a suitcase taken from the waiting room of the bus station on Grammont Street Saturday afternoon. The bag belonged to a Negro serviceman, James E. Hendrickson, home on leave from Fort Lewis, Wash. It contained a diamond wedding band and numerous articles of clothing.

Monroe officers also booked two men on counts of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages after both were involved in separate accidents.

A 23-year-old Negro, Clevon Emerson, 2310 Breard St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and failure to yield - right - of-way after colliding with a car around 11 p.m. Friday night. Bond was set at $500. He was taken into custody at the intersection of Pine and Walnut Streets where the wreck occurred.

A second man, Jeff Spence, 71, of 2300 Sauvell St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and disturbing the peace. He allegedly ran off the street in the 2600 block of Forsythe Avenue Saturday morning and hit trees and a wire fence. He was treated for lacerations a St. Francis hospital and booked. Bond was set at $510.

'NOT AFRAID TO FIGHT'

Poet Says Soviet Leader Is Ruffian

MOSCOW (AP)—American poet Robert Frost characterized Soviet Premier Khrushchev Saturday as the kind of ruffian who is not afraid of a fight or of being magnanimous.

Frost, 88, flew down to Gagra on the Black Sea at Khrushchev's behest Friday and had a talk of an hour or more with the Soviet leader. Frost wasn't feeling so well—because of a stomach upset—when he arrived at the resort, so it was Khrushchev who went to see the poet at the government house where he was staying.

Frost sat on the edge of his bed, "and we went to it," he told a news conference Saturday.

The interview, judging by Frost's account, was pretty disorganized and rambled all over the lot.

"Yes, in a way," said Frost when asked if Khrushchev had given him a message for President Kennedy. But the poet's associates stopped him from telling what it was. Out of courtesy, messages to the President are given to him first.

But, said Frost, Khrushchev told him to tell the President "not to do this, and to do that, and that he musn't do this and must do that, quite a few things."

All this, he explained, was "not on a low level of partisanship, all high level."

"I knew he was that kind of a ruffian. He's a big fellow. He's all ready for a fight. He's not a coward. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

Forst was asked if he and Khrushchev discussed God, and the poet replied, "He didn't. But I did. God wants us to contend. The only progress is in conflict."

This conflict, he said at another point, involves magnanimity and chivalry—"no blackguarding, no dirty play. That's what I came over to say."

Frost said he sought to persuade Khrushchev "The future of the world for the next 100 years lies between Russia and us. We are the two powers."

This future, he went on, is in "rivalry in sports, in arts and science—and democracy, the two kinds. By courtesy we will call them both democracies."

Asked to define democracy, the poet described it as a "more earnest desire than the world ever had to take care of everybody."

"The most valuable thing a government can do is to bestow not bread, but character," he added.

He explained that he tried to persaude Khrushchev that the most important thing is the contest between the two kinds of democracy and that it was just as well to stall awhile "until we find out what to do" about other things.

"Did you say what to do about Berlin?" a reporter persisted.

"No. I didn't get into that but I did say something against letting a little thing like that decide the fate of nations."

He said he and Khrushchev "agreed we should take a large look at it."

Hundley Child Dies Saturday

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Saturday night but the body will lie in state at Kilpatrick Funeral Home in West Monroe.

Other survivors include Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Cockrell, maternal grandparents, and Mrs. L. A. Hundley, paternal grandmother.

A close watch was maintained on all of France's borders, and at all air and sea ports. Automobiles were stopped at highway roadblocks and pedestrians questioned and their papers checked.

A particularly close watch was ordered on the frontier with Spain. One man was reported to have slipped into Spain, contacted Secret Army terrorist leaders there and, curiously, returned to France.

Besides the three unnamed Hungarians, the French Government has identified three other commando members being sought as Georges Watin, 39, known as "the man with the limp," Jean-Pierre Naudin, 20, a student preparing for entry to St. Cyr Military Academy—France's "West Point"—and a Frenchman named Buisines, an expert sharpshooter who fired an automatic rifle in the attack on De Gaulle.

Interior Minister Roger Frey, who announced the five arrests Friday, said the assassination attempt was certainly masterminded from abroad. Frey did not elaborate.

But authorities here believed the orders came either from OAS leaders known to be hiding out in Spain or from renegade ex-Col. Antoine Argoud, OAS leader for France, who was last reported in Belgium.

Boy Is Located In Accidental Fatal Shooting

BASKING RIDGE, N.J. (AP)—A frightened 13-year-old boy who disappeared after accidentally killing a playmate with an old rifle was located in Elizabeth on Saturday night.

Bernards Township Police Chief Harry Allen said he got a call from Elizabeth police that the boy, Michael Mahon, was at the home of Raymond Comeau, a neighbor.

"I sent two patrolmen to pick him up," the chief said.

Police said Michael bolted into woods here Friday after firing a fatal shot into the head of Philip Wendall, also 13, while they were playing in a small house on the William Astor estate.

Michael ran into nearby Great Swamp, police said, after he saw his friend carried off in an ambulance that he had summoned himself.

Chief Allen said the shooting is classed as accidental. He said the Mahon boy will be questioned and that probably a routine charge of juvenile delinquency will be made against him.

Burglaries Keep Officers Busy In Twin Cities

Burglaries kept Twin City police busy Saturday with both departments reporting break-ins.

West Monroe was the hardest hit when Eureka Grocery, located on Commerce Street, was burglarized. Around $50 in change and currency was taken after entrance was gained through a door in the storeroom. The break - in was discovered by an officer on patrol around 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

Monroe police investigated the burglary of a Negro school where a window fan was taken. The school principal, Herman C. Wilson, reported the loss at Carver Elementary stating that entrance had been gained through a window.

The Monroe department was also checking the theft of a suitcase taken from the waiting room of the bus station on Grammont Street Saturday afternoon. The bag belonged to a Negro serviceman, James E. Hendricksom, home on leave from Fort Lewis, Wash. It contained a diamond wedding band and numerous articles of clothing.

Monroe officers also booked two men on counts of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages after both were involved in separate accidents.

A 23-year-old Negro, Clevon Emerson, 2310 Breard St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and failure to yield - right - of-way after colliding with a car around 11 p.m. Friday night. Bond was set at $500. He was taken into custody at the intersection of Pine and Walnut Streets where the wreck occurred.

A second man, Jeff Spence, 71, of 2300 Sauvell St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and disturbing the peace. He allegedly ran off the street in the 2600 block of Forsythe Avenue Saturday morning and hit trees and a wire fence. He was treated for lacerations a St. Francis hospital and booked. Bond was set at $510.

'NOT AFRAID TO FIGHT'

Poet Says Soviet Leader Is Ruffian

MOSCOW (AP)—American poet Robert Frost characterized Soviet Premier Khrushchev Saturday as the kind of ruffian who is not afraid of a fight or of being magnanimous.

Frost, 88, flew down to Gagra on the Black Sea at Khrushchev's behest Friday and had a talk of an hour or more with the Soviet leader. Frost wasn't feeling so well—because of a stomach upset—when he arrived at the resort, so it was Khrushchev who went to see the poet at the government house where he was staying.

Frost sat on the edge of his bed, "and we went to it," he told a news conference Saturday.

The interview, judging by Frost's account, was pretty disorganized and rambled all over the lot.

"Yes, in a way," said Frost when asked if Khrushchev had given him a message for President Kennedy. But the poet's associates stopped him from telling what it was. Out of courtesy, messages to the President are given to him first.

But, said Frost, Khrushchev told him to tell the President "not to do this, and to do that, and that he musn't do this and must do that, quite a few things."

All this, he explained, was "not on a low level of partisanship, all high level."

"I knew he was that kind of a ruffian. He's a big fellow. He's all ready for a fight. He's not a coward. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

Forst was asked if he and Khrushchev discussed God, and the poet replied, "He didn't. But I did. God wants us to contend. The only progress is in conflict."

This conflict, he said at another point, involves magnanimity and chivalry—"no blackguarding, no dirty play. That's what I came over to say."

Frost said he sought to persuade Khrushchev "The future of the world for the next 100 years lies between Russia and us. We are the two powers."

This future, he went on, is in "rivalry in sports, in arts and science—and democracy, the two kinds. By courtesy we will call them both democracies."

Asked to define democracy, the poet described it as a "more earnest desire than the world ever had to take care of everybody.

"The most valuable thing a government can do is to bestow not bread, but character," he added.

He explained that he tried to persaude Khrushchev that the most important thing is the contest between the two kinds of democracy and that it was just as well to stall awhile "until we find out what to do" about other things.

"Did you say what to do about Berlin?" a reporter persisted.

"No. I didn't get into that but I did say something against letting a little thing like that decide the fate of nations."

He said he and Khrushchev "agreed we should take a large look at it."

craft and were clinging to the jetty.

Shortly before, the Coast Guard picked up two other men from a shrimp boat that was in trouble at the jetty.

A huge mound of Canadian air settled over Montana and Wyoming, dropping temperatures 50 degrees from the summery 80's into subfreezing 30's. Lewiston, Mont., measured at least an inch of snow and more snows were predicted as far east as Wisconsin.

The wintry storm halted the wheat harvest in central Montana and forced the closing of the Colorado highway leading to the top of Mount Evans, the nation's highest thoroughfare.

Weathermen said the storm would push into the Dakotas during the day with a mixture of cold rain.

The cold front clashed in the Midlands with moist air from the Gulf of Mexico and the conflict turned on flooding rains in parts of Texas.

The weather was cool across the Northeast and the 45 degrees at Philadelphia set a record for the third consecutive day. More cold records for the date were established at Baltimore, Richmond, Va., and Allentown, Pa.

Young Marine Is Found Guilty In Slaying Case

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A young Marine and an ex-convict were found guilty of first-degree murder Saturday in the rape-slaying of a Beverly Hills matron.

A jury of seven women and five men returned the verdict against Pvt. Charles Henry Hummel, 18, stationed at Twentynine Palms, Calif., and Norman Whitehorn, 24, of Los Angeles. Whitehorn was on parole as a convicted rapist-kidnaper from San Bernardino, Calif.

The two said they picked up Angela Gums, 38, in a Hollywood bar last April 20 and drove her to a field just across the Ventura County line, where her nude and strangled body was found. Each said the other was the killer.

Truman Assails Ike As 'Laziest'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was "the laziest president we ever had in the White House," said former President Harry S. Truman Saturday night.

Truman helped kick off the state Democratic campaign with a speech mostly devoted to an attack on the Eisenhower administration.

Eisenhower is responsible for the present situation in Cuba, said Truman, because he "didn't have enough guts to enforce the Monroe Doctrine."

N.O. Catholic Press Raps Mi

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—An official Roman Catholic newspaper levelled an editorial blast Saturday at opponents of parochial school desegregation, as the city looked back on a week of relative calm.

"It has been a campaign of sound and fury, signifying little but the leaders' bitterness," said the front-page editorial in Catholic Action of the South, official newspaper of the archdiocese of New Orleans.

The archdiocese last week conducted the first large-scale parochial school desegregation in the South. Nearly 200 Negroes entered some 36 formerly white Catholic schools in the New Orleans area.

In the public schools, desegregation was expanded to include 107 Negroes in 20 formerly white schools. Last year, 12 Negroes attended six formerly white public schools in New Orleans.

Attendance in desegregated public schools Friday averaged 78 per cent of last year's enrollment, despite attempts to organize boycotts. In all but two of the 20 schools, second-day attendance was higher than that of the first day.

Opponents of desegregation, however, continued to work at organizing protests.

In its editorial, Catholic Action took notice of the various meetings that have been held to protest desegregation.

"Public meetings in which this attack against the Church has been carried on have, for the most part, drawn only a few hundred persons, mainly those approaching old age," it said.

The editorial also accused segregationists of economic pressure against people in Plaquemines Parish. Our Lady of Good Harbor Catholic school, in Buras, which is in Plaquemines Parish, admitted five Negroes Aug. 29.

But they haven't returned since, and white attendance gradually dwindled to zero Friday, following a segregationist rally in Belle Chasse Thursday night.

"Such economic pressure or threat interferes likewise with the constitutional right of parents to choose the school in which their child shall be educated," the editorial said. "If they wish to send their child to a school in which religious training is imparted, that ... there is also an interference with ... freedom of worship."

The Orleans Parish School Board meets Monday night. ... many white ... desegrega...

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Alf Landon Still Active At Age 75

By DAYTON BLAIR

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf M. Landon, who led the Republican party in some of its toughest years, is 75 Sunday, still active in business and keenly interested in government and politics.

Ruddy faced and hearty, Landon continues to make news as well as keep up with it.

A family birthday dinner was planned for the 1936 GOP presidential nominee by his wife, three children and 10 grandchildren. That was the only special activity scheduled.

Landon owns three radio stations in Kansas and has his office in one of them here. He is negotiating on drilling a new oil well. Oil was his business before politics.

His daily routine is largely unchanged from the time he ran for president. He rises early rides a horse along the Kansas River near his large white home, then goes to the office. Only bad weather or a trip interferes with the daily rid.

Informal conferences on politics, oil or almost any other subject are as routine as friends drop by. Landon's table at the restaurant where he has lunched for years. A short game of pitch often precedes his return to his office.

Although he has not been a candidate for office since his two terms as governor and as the presidential nominee, Landon is still a political figure. Not only has he been an elder statesman for Republicans, he usually gets involved in state elections. This year he supported the successful candidacy of Sen. James B. Pearson, R—Kan., for the party's nomination to the unexpired term of the late Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel.

On a national level he has been a strong booster of President Kennedy's proposed foreign trade legislation which would bring the United States nearer to the European Common Market. He has spoken for it in and out of Kansas.

Although he was beaten badly in 1936 by former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Landon was not bitter. He was aware of the country's mood that year and the defeat was no surprise.

Mathematics Helps Driver Win Acquittal

DANBURY, Conn. (AP)—Frances E. Vieta, 20, Fairfield, turned to simple mathematics in Circuit Court to win an acquittal on a charge of overcrowding a motor vehicle.

She was arrested Aug. 14 for having three persons on the front (and only) seat of her sports car. When she faced Judge Paul Macdonald in court Friday, Miss Vieta gave him this set of figures:

The seat is composed of two sections, each of which is 21 inches wide. The combined posterior measurements of her girl companions totaled 24½ inches, leaving ample room for her own (unmeasured) posterior.

Although she was acquitted on the overcrowding charge, Miss Vieta didn't get off scott free. She was fined $3 for failure to carry her driver's license.

British Group Against Europe Market Terms

LONDON (AP) — British and Commonwealth Labor party leaders Saturday night called the terms for Britain's entry into the European Common Market unacceptable. They sought a second prime ministers' conference before any final steps are taken.

"We do not believe that Britain should enter the Common Market unless and until the present vague promises and assurances have been converted into precise agreements," they said in their joint statement after a three-day meeting.

Opposition leader Hugh Gaitskell went further.

"If the government proposes to go into the Common Market on terms which the Labor party regard as wholly unacceptable, thus indicating clear division of opinion between the two major parties in the country, then undoubtedly, in my view, we should ask for a general election," he warned.

Until now the British Labor opposition has sat on the fence, taking no very strong position either for or against Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Asked if the talks of the last three days had made him change his attitude, Gaitskell said no.

N.O. Catholic Press Raps Mi...

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—An official Roman Catholic newspaper levelled an editorial blast Saturday at opponents of parochial school desegregation, as the city looked back on a week of relative calm.

"It has been a campaign of sound and fury, signifying little but the leaders' bitterness," said the front-page editorial in Catholic Action of the South, official newspaper of the archdiocese of New Orleans.

The archdiocese last week conducted the first large-scale parochial school desegregation in the South. Nearly 200 Negroes entered some 36 formerly white Catholic schools in the New Orleans area.

In the public schools, desegregation was expanded to include 107 Negroes in 20 formerly white schools. Last year, 12 Negroes attended six formerly white public schools in New Orleans.

Attendance in desegregated public schools Friday averaged 78 per cent of last year's enrollment, despite attempts to organize boycotts. In all but two of the 20 schools, second-day attendance was higher than that of the first day.

Opponents of desegregation, however, continued to work at organizing protests.

In its editorial, Catholic Action took notice of the various meetings that have been held to protest desegregation.

"Public meetings in which this attack against the Church has been carried on have, for the most part, drawn only a few hundred persons, mainly those approaching old age," it said.

The editorial also accused segregationists of economic pressure against people in Plaquemines Parish. Our Lady of Good Harbor Catholic school. In Buras, which is in Plaquemines Parish, admitted five Negroes Aug. 29.

But they haven't returned since, and white attendance gradually dwindled to zero Friday, following a segregationist rally in Belle Chasse Thursday night.

"Such economic pressure or threat interferes likewise with the constitutional right of parents to choose the school in which their child shall be educated," the editorial said. "If they wish to send their child to a school in which religious training is imparted, there is also an interference with freedom of worship."

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Alf Landon Still Active At Age 75

By DAYTON BLAIR

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf M. Landon, who led the Republican party in some of its toughest years, is 75 Sunday, still active in business and keenly interested in government and politics.

Ruddy faced and hearty, Landon continues to make news as well as keep up with it.

A family birthday dinner was planned for the 1936 GOP presidential nominee by his wife, three children and 10 grandchildren. That was the only special activity scheduled.

Landon owns three radio stations in Kansas and has his office in one of them here. He is negotiating on drilling a new oil well. Oil was his business before politics.

His daily routine is largely unchanged from the time he ran for president. He rises early rides a horse along the Kansas River near his large white home, then goes to the office. Only bad weather or a trip interferes with the daily rid.

Informal conferences on politics, oil or almost any other subject are as routine as friends drop by Landon's table at the restaurant where he has lunched for years. A short game of pitch often precedes his return to his office.

Although he has not been a candidate for office since his two terms as governor and as the presidential nominee, Landon is still a political figure. Not only has he been an elder statesman for Republicans, he usually gets involved in state elections. This year he supported the successful candidacy of Sen. James B. Pearson, R—Kan., for the party's nomination to the unexpired term of the late Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel.

On a national level he has been a strong booster of President Kennedy's proposed foreign trade legislation which would bring the United States nearer to the European Common Market. He has spoken for it in and out of Kansas.

Although he was beaten badly in 1936 by former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Landon was not bitter. He was aware of the country's mood that year and the defeat was no surprise.

Mathematics Helps Driver Win Acquittal

DANBURY, Conn. (AP)—Frances E. Vieta, 20, Fairfield, turned to simple mathematics in Circuit Court to win an acquittal on a charge of overcrowding a motor vehicle.

She was arrested Aug. 14 for having three persons on the front (and only) seat of her sports car. When she faced Judge Paul Macdonald in court Friday, Miss Vieta gave him this set of figures:

The seat is composed of two sections, each of which is 21 inches wide. The combined posterior measurements of her girl companions totaled 24½ inches, leaving ample room for her own (unmeasured) posterior.

Although she was acquitted on the oveecrowding charge, Miss Vieta didn't get off scott free. She was fined $3 for failure to carry her driver's license.

British Group Against Europe Market Terms

LONDON (AP) — British and Commonwealth Labor party leaders Saturday night called the terms for Britain's entry into the European Common Market unacceptable. They sought a second prime ministers' conference before any final steps are taken.

"We do not believe that Britain should enter the Common Market unless and until the present vague promises and assurances have been converted into precise agreements," they said in their joint statement after a three-day meeting.

Opposition leader Hugh Gaitskell went further.

"If the government proposes to go into the Common Market on terms which the Labor party regard as wholly unacceptable, thus indicating clear division of opinion between the two major parties in the country, then undoubtedly, in my view, we should ask for a general election," he warned.

Until now the British Labor opposition has sat on the fence, taking no very strong position either for or against Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Asked if the talks of the last three days had made him change his attitude, Gaitskell said no.

Lincoln School Enrollment Not To Expectations

RUSTON (Special) — The final count of Lincoln Parish school enrollment was revealed Friday by Superintendent of School Morelle Emmons. The total enrollment for both white and colored schools was 6,126. This enrolment did not come up to the expected 6,200.

A break down of the school enrolment is as follows:

Ruston High School, 755; Glenview Upper Elementary - 326; Hillcrest Elementary - 341; Eastland Elementary - 392; Ruston Elementary - 392; Choudrant - 240; Dubach - 310; Hico - 114; Simsboro - 253 and A. E. Phillips Training School 208. This is an estimate for A. E. Phillips, as school has not started there. It will open for classes on September 18.

The total colored enrolment is 2,872, which is 155 less than the 1961 - 62 session.

Registration at all the parish schools went smoothly, due to good planning and hard work.

Fritiz Named To Commission

JONESVILLE (Special) — R. B. Fritz, dairyman of Jonesville, was nominated a producer member for the Louisiana Milk Commission at the meeting of Catahoula Parish dairymen, as reported by the Parish Agricultural Extension Service office.

The 1962 Legislature passed Act 340 which established the Louisiana Milk Commission which is to be composed of six members. Three of the Commission members will be milk handlers, two will be from the public at large and one will be a producer. The main purpose of the Milk Commission as stated in Act 340 will be to set minimum wholesale and retail prices for milk and dairy products. This Commission will not have the authority to set producer prices.

Senator Predicts Quick Approval Of Call-Up Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., expects Congress to approve rather quickly President Kennedy's request for standby authority to call up 150,000 Reservists to counter Communist threats in Cuba, Berlin or elsewhere.

"I think it should be clearly understood that the President has no immediate intention for use of this authority," Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said Saturday in an interview.

"Prompt congressional approval will be a demonstration to our allies and our enemies that the elected representatives of the people are firmly behind our commander in chief."

Waiting no time, Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., asked the Senate Armed Services Committee to consider the call-up bill at a closed hearing Monday morning.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and his top Pentagon aides are expected to present military and diplomatic reasons for asking renewal of authority Congress quickly granted more than a year ago during a Berlin crisis.

Congress needed only five days to complete action on that authority but Humphrey said there is no deadline on the new request.

Both Republicans and Democrats have pledged support in advance although Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told newsmen Congress will want to know why the administration is asking the special authority.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., said he would urge prompt approval of the call-up authority because "the situations in Berlin and Cuba are extremely critical."

Johnston, in a statement, said this country "should place an ironclad blockade around Cuba and economically squeeze it out of the Russian orbit."

"Cuba threatens to spread communism and aggression in the Western Hemisphere," Johnston said. "We must act militarily to prevent this, if necessary, and to do this the President should have the authority he seeks."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., called for an immediate U.S. air and naval blockade of Cuba. In a taped report for radio-television use, Mundt said between 3,500 and 7,000 troops or technicians had arrived in Cuba recently in an effort to convert it into a Communist fortress.

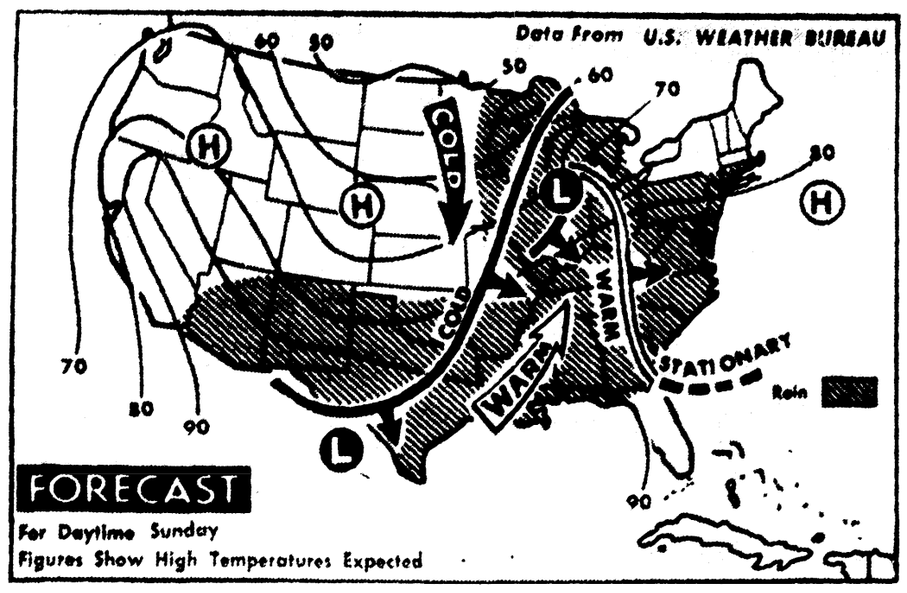
Mundt said an economic blockade could "bring Castro to his knees before he starts a war in the Western Hemisphere."

"We wouldn't have to invade," he said, "if an effective blockade were established. What is needed is a little encouragement for the freedom loving people of Cuba."

A different view came from Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.M.J., who listened to secret testimony on Cuba the past week from Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McNamara.

Case, in another taped interview for radio-television use, said "There is no evidence of military forces, so far as the Russians are concerned."

Recent Communist shipments to Cuba, Case said, were defensive weapons "not the kind of thing that would make it possible for Cuba, either in its own behalf or as a base for Russian operations to be aggressive against us or against Latin American countries."



SCATTERED SHOWERS and thundershowers will occur on Sunday in the southern Plateau and Plains and the entire eastern third of the country with the exception of the northeast Atlantic and south Atlantic states. Rain will be mixed with showers in the valley region. Elsewhere it will be fair to partly cloudy. It will be cooler in the northern section of the midwest and surrounding area southward through Kansas. The eastern coast and southern tier of states will be somewhat warmer. (AP Wirephoto Map)

CHURCH CONVERTS

Protestants Most Zealous Workers

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Protestants are more than twice as zealous as Catholics in seeking to win converts to their faith.

That is the finding of Fr. John A. O'Brien, director of the Bureau of Convert Research at Notre Dame University.

Fr. O'Brien analyzed the results of an extensive survey conducted by the Catholic Digest, in which a cross section of U.S. Church members were asked whether they had ever tried to get anyone to join their church.

The replies showed that 59 per cent of the Protestants and 25 per cent of the Catholics had made such efforts.

Among the Protestants, Fr. O'Brien found, Baptists were the most active seekers of converts, with 67 per cent reporting that they had tried on one or more occasions to get someone to join their church.

The first nationally televised Bible study course goes on the air Sunday.

The course will be presented over the NBC television network, under the sponsorship of the National Council of Churches. It will be broadcast at 1:30 p.m. EDT for four successive Sundays.

The teachers will be Dr. Edward W. Bauman of American University, a Methodist clergyman whose televised course on the life and teachings of Christ has won a wide following in Washington, D.C., and other cities.

The new course will deal with the New Testament book of the Acts of the Apostles, and will be entitled, "When the Church Was Young."

The four-week series is a pilot project to determine whether a national audience can be found for serious, adult-level Bible study on television.

Enrollment in Catholic elementary and high schools in the United States will rise this fall to a record high of more than 5,562,000, according to a report from the education department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC).

The 4,560,000 children enrolled in Catholic elementary schools represents an increase of about 115,000 over last year. Catholic high school enrollment, up 64,000 last year, will pass the 1 million mark for the first time.

NCWC officials estimated that about 55 per cent of the nation's Catholic children of elementary school age and about 45 per cent of the Catholic youths of high school age will be attending church schools.

Baptists in Los Angeles are opening a new church - sponsored high school this month. The six-year "Los Angeles Baptist High" will eventually enroll 1,000 students, and will offer a full range for academic subjects, taught from a frankly Christian perspective. Tuition costs are $320 a year.

The World Baptist Alliance has declined to send an observer to the forthcoming Vatican Council of the Roman Catholic Church. The decision was made by the executive committee of the Alliance at a recent meeting in Oslo, Norway.

Other major world Protestant groups, including Anglicans, Presbyterians, Lutherans, Methodists, Congregationalists and Quakers, will send observers to the council, which opens in Rome on Oct. 11.

Last Reverse Freedom Riders Leave Cape Cod

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. (AP) —The last family of "reverse freedom riders" sent to Cape Cod this summer by Southern segregationists moved out of camp Saturday and were driven to Boston, where a permanent home has been found by welfare officials.

Felix Johnson, 37, his wife and two children arrived in Hyannis by bus Aug. 27. They were sent north by the Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans.

Johnson has obtained employment in Boston through the efforts of the Rev. William Scott, a Negro clergyman in Roxbury, and state public welfare department workers.

This summer, 32 Negroes were sent to Hyannis from Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana. Of these 17 are still here, including a mother and 11 children who obtained a permanent home in Hyannis last Tuesday.

Another family of four is living in Falmouth, and Davis Harris from Little Rock, the first to come, is operating a barbecue stand in Hyannis.

JFK Studying Strike Action

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Kennedy was reported Saturday studying what action the administration could take to end the 10-day-old North Western Railway strike which has pinched the economy of the Midwest.

Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., conferred with Kennedy and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz as Midwest senators and governors appealed to the administration for action. Humphrey was reported to be "hopeful."

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., said in Washington that White House aides told him the strike of telegraphers against the 10,565 mile line was under study.

He was the owner of Howard Manor, one of the luxury hotels of Plam Springs, Calif.

Film Capital Names Meals After Stars

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Some of Hollywood's most appetizing meals, and a few unappetizing ones, are named after movie and television stars.

A multicourse luncheon starts with a "Bob Hope Cocktail" and is topped off by "strawberries a la Charlton Heston."

The Hope drink, featured on Paramount Studio's commissary menu, consists of tomato juice, yogurt and a dash of steak sauce. If you're still able to eat after that concoction, there are a variety of salads to choose from.

For instance, a "Jerry Lewis salad" is only $1.75. It's a bowlfull of diced lettuce, avocado, eggs, fresh crab meat, lobster and thousand island dressing. Paramount's commissary boss says the Lewis sald is a top seller.

Another popular salad is named after Debbie Reynolds. The gourmet tribute to Miss Reynolds is a mixture of tuna fish, tomato wedges, hard boiled eggs, pineapple slices, water cress, shredded lettuce and mayonnaise.

Debbie's salad used to share a prominent spot on Metro Goldwyn Mayer's restaurant menu with a meal named after Elizabeth Taylor.

Miss Taylor, now working for 20th Century Fox, has been stricken from MGM's luncheon list.

As stars come and go at various studios, so does their popularity at lunchtime.

Elvis Presley, a newcomer at Metro, is getting a few takers for his salad of jumbo shrimp, asparagus tips, fresh vegetables, tomatoes, water cress, julienne beets, hard boiled eggs and thousand island dressing.

Stars not in the mood for salad can order "turkey and eggs a la Bing Crosby" or "Spanish omelette Alan Ladd."

BY TEXAS OFFICIALS

Estes Testimony Delay Is Asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strong possibility arose Saturday that Billie Sol Estes' appearance before Senate investigators will be postponed indefinitely at the request of Texas officials.

The Pecos promoter has been scheduled to testify Wednesday before the Senate Investigations subcommittee which is trying to determine whether he enjoyed improper favors in his extensive farm-aid dealings with the Department of Agriculture.

But the boom-and-bust farmer-financier is slated also to go to trial in Texas on Sept. 24 on indictments charging he obtained millions of dollars by mortgaging liquid-fertilizer storage tanks that didn't exist.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., the subcommittee chairman, said R. D. McGowen, the Texas district attorney who will try the case, has joined Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson in asking that Estes' Washington appearance be deferred until after the trial.

Estes' lawyers had protested earlier that it would be unfair to their client to have him placed in the national publicity spotlight of a congressional hearing on the eve of his trial.

McClellan said that the subcommittee will meet Monday morning to decide whether to honor the request for deferment. It is likely that the request will be granted.

The Senate investigators had been aiming at winding up the politicallly flavored Estes hearings within two weeks. Saturday's development left this up in the air.

The senators failed Friday to complete the quizzing of N. Battle Hales, a talkative Agriculture Department employe who accused superior officials of having given Estes favored treatment.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and other top officials of the department have sworn that Estes got no favors, and that the government won't lose a dime from its dealings with him.

The department has called illegal Estes' manipulations of 1961 cotton-planting allotments for thousands of acres. It imposed civil penalty fines of $554,000 and $48,000 on him but has not yet collected.

Hales testified that favoritism for Estes was blatant, and stemmed from a breakdown of safeguards in the department after the Kennedy administration took over.

The witness claimed he was shifted against his will out of a top investigating job for the agency and "locked out" of access to files from which he was trying to provide the FBI with evidence about Estes and various Agriculture Department officials.

But under cross-examination by McClellan and others, Hales acknowledged he made no written record of what he claims were his efforts to block Estes' deals.

Senator Predicts Quick Approval Of Call-Up Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., expects Congress to approve rather quickly President Kennedy's request for standby authority to call up 150,000 Reservists to counter Communist threats in Cuba, Berlin or elsewhere.

"I think it should be clearly understood that the President has no immediate intention for use of this authority," Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said Saturday in an interview.

"Prompt congressional approval will be a demonstration to our allies and our enemies that the elected representatives of the people are firmly behind our commander in chief."

Wasting no time, Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., asked the Senate Armed Services Committee to consider the call-up bill at a closed hearing Monday morning.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and his top Pentagon aides are expected to present military and diplomatic reasons for asking renewal of authority Congress quickly granted more than a year ago during a Berlin crisis.

Congress needed only five days to complete action on that authority but Humphrey said there is no deadline on the new request.

Both Republicans and Democrats have pledged support in advance although Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told newsmen Congress will want to know why the administration is asking the special authority.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., said he would urge prompt approval of the call-up authority because "the situations in Berlin and Cuba are extremely critical."

Johnston, in a statement, said this country "should place an ironclad blockade around Cuba and economically squeeze it out of the Russian orbit."

"Cuba threatens to spread communism and aggression in the Western Hemisphere," Johnston said. "We must act militarily to prevent this, if necessary, and to do this the President should have the authority he seeks."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., called for an immediate U.S. air and naval blockade of Cuba. In a taped report for radio-television use, Mundt said between 3,500 and 7,000 troops or technicians had arrived in Cuba recently in an effort to convert it into a Communist fortress.

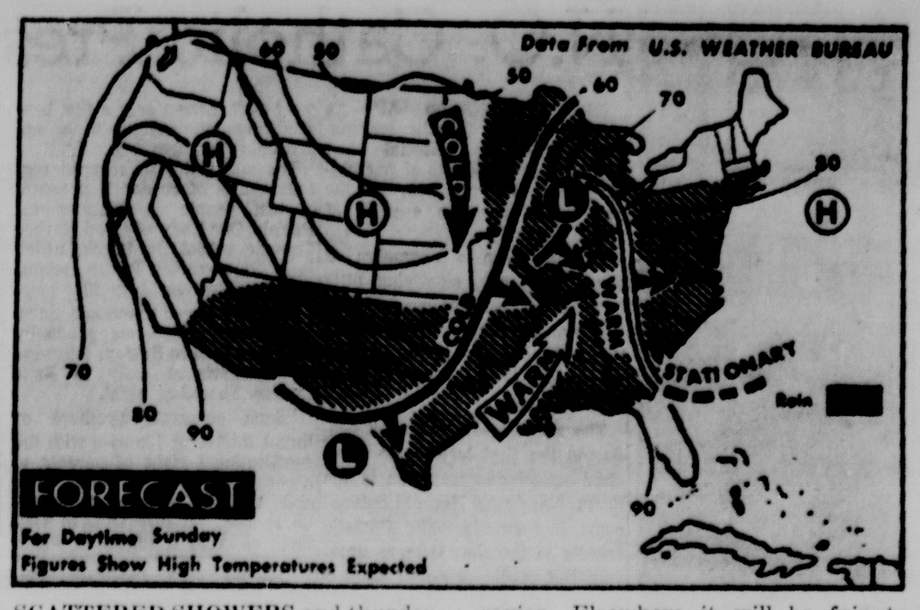
Mundt said an economic blockade could "bring Castro to his knees before he starts a war in the Western Hemisphere."

"We wouldn't have to invade," he said, "if an effective blockade were established. What is needed is a little encouragement for the freedom-loving people of Cuba."

A different view came from Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-NMJ., who listened to secret testimony on Cuba the past week from Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McNamara.

Case, in another taped interview for radio-television use, said "There is no evidence of military forces so far as the Russians are concerned."

Recent Communist shipments to Cuba, Case said, were defensive weapons "not the kind of thing that would make it possible for Cuba, either in its own behalf or as a base for Russian operations to be aggressive against ur or against Latin-American countries."



SCATTERED SHOWERS and thundershowers will occur on Sunday in the southern Plateau and Plains and the entire eastern third of the country with the exception of the northeast Atlantic and south Atlantic states. Rain will be mixed with showers in the valley region. Elsewhere it will be fair to partly cloudy. It will be cooler in the northern section of the midwest and surrounding area southward through Kansas. The eastern coast and southern tier of states will be somewhat warmer. (AP Wirephoto Map)

JFK Studying Strike Action

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Kennedy was reported Saturday studying what action the administration could take to end the 10-day-old North Western Railway strike which has pinched the economy of the Midwest.

Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., conferred with Kennedy and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz as Midwest senators and governors appealed to the administration for action. Humphrey was reported to be "hopeful."

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., said in Washington that White House aides told him the strike of telegraphers against the 10,565 mile line was under study.

CHURCH CONVERTS

Protestants Most Zealous Workers

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Protestants are more than twice as zealous as Catholics in seeking to win converts to their faith.

That is the finding of Fr. John A. O'Brien, director of the Bureau of Convert Research at Notre Dame University.

Fr. O'Brien analyzed the results of an extensive survey conducted by the Catholic Digest, in which a cross section of U.S. Church members were asked whether they had ever tried to get anyone to join their church.

The replies showed that 59 per cent of the Protestants and 28 per cent of the Catholics had made such efforts.

Among the Protestants, Fr. O'Brien found, Baptists were the most active seekers of converts, with 67 per cent reporting that they had tried on one or more occasions to get someone to join their church.

The first nationally televised Bible study course goes on the air Sunday.

The course will be presented over the NBC television network, under the sponsorship of the National Council of Churches. It will be broadcast at 1:30 p.m. EDT for four successive Sundays.

The teachers will be Dr. Edward W. Bauman of American University, a Methodist clergyman whose televised course on the life and teachings of Christ has won a wide following in Washington, D.C., and other cities.

The new course will deal with the New Testament book of the Acts of the Apostles, and will be entitled, "When the Church Was Young."

The four-week series is a pilot project to determine whether a national audience can be found for serious, adult-level Bible study on television.

Enrollment in Catholic elementary and high schools in the United States will rise this fall to a record high of more than 5,562,000, according to a report from the education department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC).

The 4,560,000 children enrolled in Catholic elementary schools represents an increase of about 115,000 over last year. Catholic high school enrollment, up 64,000 last year, will pass the 1 million mark for the first time.

NCWC officials estimated that about 55 per cent of the nation's Catholic children of elementary school age and about 45 per cent of the Catholic youths of high school age will be attending church schools.

Baptists in Los Angeles are opening a new church - sponsored high school this month. The six-year "Los Angeles Baptist High" will eventually enroll 1,000 students, and will offer a full range for academic subjects, taught from a frankly Christian perspective. Tuition costs are $320 a year.

The World Baptist Alliance has declined to send an observer to the forthcoming Vatican Council of the Roman Catholic Church. The decision was made by the executive committee of the Alliance at a recent meeting in Oslo, Norway.

Other major world Protestant groups, including Anglicans, Presbyterians, Lutherans, Methodists, Congregationalists and Quakers, will send observers to the council, which opens in Rome on Oct. 11.

Last Reverse Freedom Riders Leave Cape Cod

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. (AP) —The last family of "reverse freedom riders" sent to Cape Cod this summer by Southern segregationists moved out of camp Saturday and were driven to Boston, where a permanent home has been found by welfare officials.

Felix Johnson, 37, his wife and two children arrived in Hyannis by bus Aug. 27. They were sent north by the Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans.

Johnson has obtained employment in Boston through the efforts of the Rev. William Scott, a Negro clergyman in Roxbury, and state public welfare department workers.

This summer, 82 Negroes were sent to Hyannis from Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana. Of these 17 are still here, including a mother and 11 children who obtained a permanent home in Hyannis last Tuesday.

Another family of four is living in Falmouth, and Davis Harris from Little Rock, the first to come, is operating a barbecue stand in Hyannis.

He was the owner of Howard Manor, one of the luxury hotels of Plam Springs, Calif.

Howard was admitted to a hospital here Friday night for surgery.

Besides the widow, he is survived by a son, Robert Stewart Howrd Jr., Palm Springs, and Mrs. Lee Ann Chumley, a duaghter, Phoenix, Ariz.

Film Capital Names Meals After Stars

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Some of Hollywood's most appetizing meals, and a few unappetizing ones, are named after movie and television stars.

A multicourse luncheon starts with a "Bob Hope Cocktail" and is topped off by "strawberries a la Charlton Heston."

The Hope drink, featured on Paramount Studio's commissary menu, consists of tomato juice, yogurt and a dash of steak sauce. If you're still able to eat after that concoction, there are a variety of salads to choose from.

For instance, a "Jerry Lewis salad" is only $1.75. It's a bowlfull of diced lettuce, avocado, eggs, fresh crab meat, lobster and thousand island dressing. Paramount's commissary boss says the Lewis sald is a top seller.

Another popular salad is named after Debbie Reynolds. The gourmet tribute to Miss Reynolds is a mixture of tuna fish, tomato wedges, hard boiled eggs, pineapple slices, water cress, shredded lettuce and mayonnaise.

Debbie's salad used to share a prominent spot on Metro Goldwyn Mayer's restaurant menu with a meal named after Elizabeth Taylor.

Miss Taylor, now working for 20th Century Fox, has been stricken from MGM's luncheon list.

As stars come and go at various studios, so does their popularity at lunchtime.

Elvis Presley, a newcomer at Metro, is getting a few takers for his salad of jumbo shrimp, asparagus tips, fresh vegetables, tomatoes, water cress, julienne beets, hard boiled eggs and thousand island dressing.

Stars not in the mood for salad can order "turkey and eggs a la Bing Crosby" or "Spanish omelette Alan Ladd."

BY TEXAS OFFICIALS

Estes Testimony Delay Is Asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strong possibility arose Saturday that Billie Sol Estes' appearance before Senate investigators will be postponed indefinitely at the request of Texas officials.

The Pecos promoter has been scheduled to testify Wednesday before the Senate Investigations subcommittee which is trying to determine whether he enjoyed improper favors in his extensive farm-aid dealings with the Department of Agriculture.

But the boom-and-bust farmer-financier is slated also to go to trial in Texas on Sept. 24 on indictments charging he obtained millions of dollars by mortgaging liquid-fertilizer storage tanks that didn't exist.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., the subcommittee chairman, said R. D. McGowen, the Texas district attorney who will try the case, has joined Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson in asking that Estes' Washington appearance be deferred until after the trial.

Estes' lawyers had protested earlier that it would be unfair to their client to have him placed in the national publicity spotlight of a congressional hearing on the eve of his trial.

McClellan said that the subcommittee will meet Monday morning to decide whether to honor the request for deferment. It is likely that the request will be granted.

The Senate investigators had been aiming at winding up the politicallly flavored Estes hearings within two weeks. Saturday's development left this up in the air.

The senators failed Friday to complete the quizzing of N. Battle Hales, a talkative Agriculture Department employe who accused superior officials of having given Estes favored treatment.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and other top officials of the department have sworn that Estes got no favors, and that the government won't lose a dime from its dealings with him.

The department has called illegal Estes' manipulations of 1961 cotton-planting allotments for thousands of acres. It imposed civil penalty fines of $554,000 and $48,000 on him but has not yet collected.

Hales testified that favoritism for Estes was blatant, and stemmed from a breakdown of safeguards in the department after the Kennedy administration took over.

The witness claimed he was shifted against his will out of a top investigating job for the agency and "locked out" of access to files from which he was trying to provide the FBI with evidence about Estes and various Agriculture Department officials.

But under cross-examination by McClellan and others, Hales acknowledged he made no written record of what he claims were his efforts to block Estes' deals.

'Bombing' Runs Slated By SAC

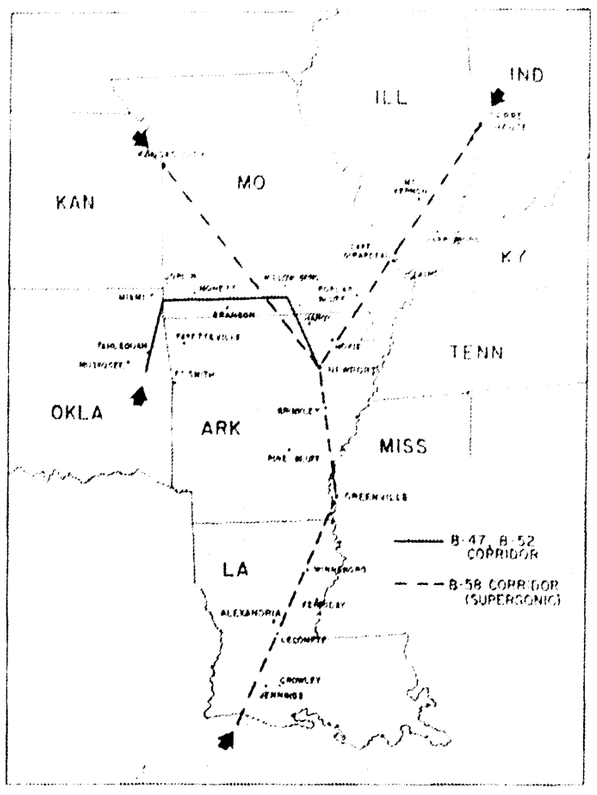
OFFUTT AFB, Neb. (Special) — Jet bomber crews of the Strategic Air Command will begin flying realistic training missions on Sept. 9 against simulated targets near Newport, Ark.

Radar bomb scoring equipment mounted on an Air Force train parked near Newport will score the accuracy of simulated bomb drops by B-47, B-52 and B-58 combat crews by means of radio and radar signals.

The B-58 bombers will be flying at supersonic speeds (Mach 2, 1,300 mph) at altitudes above 35,000 feet enroute to the target area. They will be flying along near straight — line 40 — mile wide training corridors which start in the vicinity of Kansas City, Mo., or Terre Haute, Ind., continue over the Newport target area to Greenville, Miss., and terminate over the Gulf of Mexico near Grand Chenier, La.

Simulated bomb runs by the B-47 and B-52 aircraft will be flown at subsonic speeds at altitudes below 6,000 feet. They will enter a flying corridor near Tucker, Okla., proceed north to near Grove, Okla., turn east to Willon Springs, Mo., and then south to aiming points in the Newport target area.

No bombs are carried by the SAC aircraft on these training missions which will continue along these routes for 45 days. After the corridors and target have been used for this length of time, crews in the training cycle become familiar with the land marks, simulated target complexes and other identifying characteristics of the area to the point that the routes no longer offer realistic training benefits.



SUSTAINS SPEED

One of the features of the B-58, the free worlds fastest bomber, is its ability to sustain supersonic speed over substantial distances while approaching and leaving its target. This capability enhances crew survival and assures a higher probability of mission success despite strong enemy defensive measures normally expected over a target.

A costly supersonic bomber is of little value in combat if the crew cannot use its full capabilities because of inadequate prior training. Consequently, these aircraft must fly at high speeds, creating sonic booms along the routes. Because of the high altitudes, the booms are comparatively weak in strength. Although sometimes startling or distracting in their suddenness, the booms will in no circumstance cause personal injury.

All target and route selections are coordinated in advance with the Federal Aviation Agency. Populated areas and areas of heaviest air traffic are avoided.

The RBS Express, designation for the Air Force train which carries the mobile radar bomb scoring equipment, is designed to inject more realism into SAC's training program, providing crews with a wider range of unfamiliar targets and unfamiliar routes.

This is done by moving the RBS site to a new geographical location periodically, to simulate new and different target areas. With each relocation, a new route, terminating near the target complexes, RBS Express is implemented.

The RBS train is manned by about 65 Air Force personnel. These are radar and electronic technicians plus personnel needed to operate the train and furnish other support. Civilian train crews move the train between locations.

Each train has 10 cars carrying radar and communications equipment, fuel and supplies. The cars are from U. S. Army stock.

FIRE DAMAGE HEAVY

Explosion Rocks Strikebound Firm

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—General Controls Co., a strikebound aerospace firm, was rocked by a tremendous explosion and an oil-fed fire early Saturday. The fire caused $250,000 damage, officials said.

It was controlled after a 90-minute battle. The firm lies on the Glendale-Burbank city line and firemen from both cities answered the call.

The company has had incidents of violence and vandalism during a protracted strike. Arson investigators said they would attempt to learn if the fire was connected in any way with General Controls' labor problems.

William J. Ray, president of the company, estimated the damage at a quarter of a million dollars. He declined to speculate on the possible cause.

The fire destroyed portions of a storage dock and consumed a large quantity of stored fuel oil, officials said.

A strike was called by the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO on June 4, when 1,800 workers walked out. The union charged that the company had cheated the union of $50,000 a year in incentive benefits over a three-year period.

Since the strike started the company has continued to operate, using nonstriking workers. There have been reports of beating, vandalism, tire slashing and a fire bombing which damaged a union hall. The company reported three previous fires, all minor, which were believed to have been of incendiary origin.

DENIES MARRIAGE PLANS

ROME (AP) — Former Queen Dina of Jordan denied Saturday reports published in an Italian newspaper that she is going to marry Algerian leader Ahmed Ben Bella.

Il Tempo published a picture of Princess Dina saying there were insistent rumors that she would marry Ben Bella. Dina and King Hussein were divorced five years ago.

Two Negroes Are Charged In Slaying

A 30-year-old Negro man was charged with murder and a companion with being an accessory after the fact when a young Negro woman was stabbed to death at a nightclub early Saturday morning.

Monroe police booked Henry Otis Scott, of 2307 Calypso St., for murder in connection with the knife slaying of Negro Laura Lee Davis of 305 11th St., Monroe.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital where she was rushed by a witness to the incident. According to police, death was attributed to a knife wound in the heart.

Police also booked 19-year-old Bobby Ray Johnson, of 109 13th St., on the accessory charge.

Police were unable to determine exactly what happened, but said they believed a fight ensued between Scott and the Negro woman when she accused him of tearing her dress. The incident occured a the Sky Line Club, 305 11th St., and Scott, accused of holding others at bay during the struggle, was later taken into custody at another nightspot at 3304 Owl St. Both he and Johnson were transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail.

Crewmen Leave After Eviction Order Issued

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—Twenty-eight crewmen who had refused to leave the Air Force missile tracking vessel "Timber Hitch" walked off the boat Saturday within half an hour after a federal appeals judge declined to halt their eviction.

The last of the crew was climbing into a taxi as a U. S. marshal arrived about noon Saturday to carry out an order to evict the men.

The crewmen are employed by the Suwanee Steamship Co., of Jacksonville, Fla., which recently lost a contract to operate the ship to Marine Transport Lines, Inc., of New York. The men claimed their employment contracts were in effect until February but the Justice Department said the contracts expired Aug. 2 when the ship docked at Savannah.

U. S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Scarlett issued the eviction order so the missile tracker could meet a rendezvous off the Florida coast next week. An Air Force officer testified the boat would have to leave Savannah by Sunday to make its rendezvous.

An attorney for the Seafarers International Union sought to block the eviction order in the circuit court of appeals in New Orleans. Judge John Minor Wisdom Saturday denied a motion by the crewmen to stay the eviction and the men left the ship.

Six Arrested In Supermart $1,800 Robbery

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—Hamilton County officers, moving swiftly after a telephoned tip, arrested six persons Saturday in the pre-dawn $1,800 robbery of a supermarket near the city limits.

Those charged with burglary and larceny were identified as Mrs. Shirley Fritts, 33; Lucy Lee Knight Sherrill, 18; Jack Fritts, 30, identified as the husband of Mrs. Fritts; store employe Sammy Laymon, 23; Tommy Janow, 23; and James Austin, 24, all of Chattanooga.

Officers said they got word several persons were looting the store shortly after midnight. They said they arrested the two women, identified as lookouts, on a road near the store and rounded up the four men later.

The burglars apparently got into the store through an air-conditioning vent.

Most of the money from a badly-damaged safe and stolen merchandise, including cigarettes, socks and meat items, was recovered.

Smoother Sailing Predicted For U.S. In U.N. Assembly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high State Department official said Saturday the United States will be going to the forthcoming U.N. General Assembly meeting in a better position than last year and will have about 100 items on the fall agenda.

At the same time, this country plans to tell the smaller countries to shun high-sounding resolutions which it feels can only weaken the United Nations because the world organization cannot put them into effect.

President Kennedy has not yet decided whether to deliver the U.S. opening speech which is due shortly after the fall session convenes Sept. 18. If Kennedy does not, U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson will be the American keynoter.

Kennedy's plans are affected by other commitments on his schedule, by the question whether his early attendance would be setting a presidential precedent, and by tactical considerations, including the possibility that a Kennedy visit should be deferred until a matter of special urgency arises.

If Soviet Premier Khrushchev attends the U.N. meeting, Kennedy probably will too. So far, U.S. authorities have no word that Khrushchev will show up for the opening. He might arrive later. Washington's guess is that he has not made up his mind.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk plans to attend the session for 10 days or more, starting Sept. 23, and will be on hand for chants with other foreign ministers who show up, including the Soviet Union's Andrei A. Gromyko.

The State Department official who gave out this information, stipulating that he not be named, cited several major gains for the U.S. position during last year's assembly meeting in predicting better sailing this year.

He said last year's decisive vote against giving Communist China a U.N. seat has drained that issue of much of its force and India, herself embroiled in disputes with Peiping, is now less interested in pushing it.

The official said the Soviet Union has virtually abandoned its push for a troika, or three-way veto, system of U.N. administration.

He voiced doubt that Cuba's charges of U.S. aggression would make much headway, having been discounted last year. But he qualified this by saying the issue could become serious if prominent Americans start calling publicly for invasion of Cuba.

He said Berlin is not now a prospective agenda item. But if the Russians bring it up, he indicated the United States would have some ready answers.

The U.S. authority made plain the U.S. intent to put a damper on what he termed shining, symbolic resolutions voted by the numerically superior but financially weak small countries in the 104-nation General Assembly when they do not have the power, the money or the responsibility to carry out their declarations.

He cited as an example the Dutch - Indonesian dispute over West New Guinea, which came in for free-wheeling U.N. oratory last year but was settled only through diplomacy after the session ended.

The 100 U.S.-proposed items range the international horizon from economic activities to outer space. These are the main categories as foreseen by the State Department official:

1. Strengthening U.N. finances, now deep in deficit. This includes getting General Assembly acceptance of the recent World Court opinion ruling U.N. peace-keeping activities as regularly assessable expenses; pushing for payment by U.N. members who are behind on their dues; and making a success of the $200-million U.N. bond issue.

2. Election of a secretary-general, U Thant, now acting secretary general, has not announced whether he will take the job but he is the only potential candidate in sight. There appears to be no opposition to him. However, the Soviet Union has not shown what position it will take.

3. Economic and social activities, with a debate on trade a likely highlight. The Communists, the underdeveloped countries and the free world nations are all concerned about the mounting success of Europe's Common Market. Both the U.S.S.R. and the United States want to air their respective views.

4. Disarmament, nuclear weapons and testing are due for early debate. The United States believes it is in a strong talking position because of its proposals for an atmospheric test ban without on-the-spot inspections or for a universal test ban with inspections. The Russians have rejected both plans.

5. In the space field, U.N. organizations are moving toward worldwide weather forecasting and communications ssytems using satellites.

6. A host of colonialism questions, such as Portuguese ownership of Angola and South Africa's administration of its U.N. mandated South West African territory, are likely to be pressed by African and Asian countries.

Two Sentenced For Kidnaping

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Two men, accused of kidnaping a man in Chicago at gunpoint and forcing him to accompany them to Birmingham, have been sentenced here by a federal judge.

A federal grand jury indicted Walter Hill, 30, of Birmingham and Joel Jones, 25, of Alcorn County, Miss., on charges of interstate transportation of a stolen car and kidnaping. Both drew five years on the car charge and Hill was sentenced to 20 years while Jones got 15 years on the kidnaping count.

Officers Guard Barnett After Seattle Threat

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Police guarded Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett here Friday night after receiving a report that an assassin had been offered $15,000 to kill the governor.

The Seattle Times said an anonymous caller warned that a man "armed with a sawed off shotgun and accompanied by a woman" was in the Seattle area with the intention of attacking Barnett.

At the time the call was received, Barnett was flying here from Vancouver, B.C., where he spoke at a bar association meeting.

Seattle police were assigned to meet Barnett at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport and the officers remained outside his room at the Olympic Hotel.

The governor left Saturday to return to Mississippi before information of the threat became public.

"We suspect the telephone call was from a crank," said Police Capt. James V. Fineran. "Nevertheless we felt we should take security measures."

At Vancouver, B.C., pickets with placards saying "Heil Mississippi Fuhrer Barnett" met him at the hotel where he spoke. The protests were directed at southern segregationist policies.

'Bombing' Runs Slated By SAC

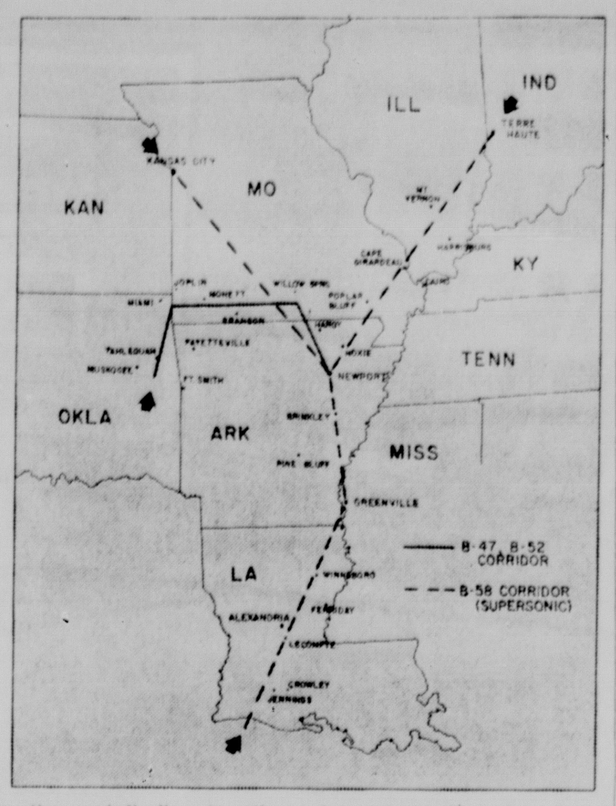
OFFUTT AFB, Neb. (Special) — Jet bomber crews of the Strategic Air Command will begin flying realistic training missions on Sept. 9 against simulated targets near Newport, Ark.

Radar bomb scoring equipment mounted on an Air Force train parked near Newport will score the accuracy of simulated bomb drops by B-47, B-52 and B-58 combat crews by means of radio and radar signals.

The B-58 bombers will be flying at supersonic speeds (Mach 2, 1,300 mph) at altitudes above 35,000 feet enroute to the target area. They will be flying along near straight - line 40 - mile wide training corridors which start in the vicinity of Kansas City, Mo., or Terre Haute, Ind., continue over the Newport target area to Greenville, Miss., and terminate over the Gulf of Mexico near Grand Chenier, La.

Simulated bomb runs by the B-47 and B-52 aircraft will be flown at subsonic speeds at altitudes below 6,000 feet. They will enter a flying corridor near Tucker, Okla., proceed north to near Grove, Okla., turn east to Willon Springs, Mo., and then south to aiming points in the Newport target area.

No bombs are carried by the SAC aircraft on these training missions which will continue along these routes for 45 days. After the corridors and targets have been used for this length of time, crews in the training cycle become familiar with the landmarks, simulated target complexes and other identifying characteristics of the area to the point that the routes no longer offer realistic training benefits.



SUSTAINS SPEED

One of the features of the B-58, the free worlds fastest bomber, is its ability to sustain supersonic speed over substantial distances while approaching and leaving its target. This capability enhances crew survival and assures a higher probability of mission success despite strong enemy defensive measures normally expected over a target.

A costly supersonic bomber is of little value in combat if the crew cannot use its full capabilities because of inadequate prior training. Consequently, these aircraft must fly at high speeds, creating sonic booms along the routes. Because of the high altitudes, the booms are comparatively weak in strength. Although sometimes startling or distracting in their suddenness, the booms will in no circumstance cause personal injury.

All target and route selections are coordinated in advance with the Federal Aviation Agency. Populated areas and areas of heaviest air traffic are avoided.

The RBS Express, designation for the Air Force train which carries the mobile radar bomb scoring equipment, is designed to inject more realism into SAC's training program, providing crews with a wider range of unfamiliar targets and unfamiliar routes.

This is done by moving the RBS site to a new geographical location periodically, to stimulate new and different target areas. With each relocation, a new route, terminating near the RBS Express is implemented.

The RBS train is manned by about 65 Air Force personnel. These are radar and electronic technicians plus personnel needed to operate the train and furnish other support. Civilian train crews move the train between target complexes.

Each train has 10 cars carrying radar and communications equipment, fuel and supplies. The cars are from U. S. Army stock.

Two Negroes Are Charged In Slaying

A 30-year-old Negro man was charged with murder and a companion with being an accessory after the fact when a young Negro woman was stabbed to death at a nightclub early Saturday morning.

Monroe police booked Henry Otis Scott, of 2307 Calypso St., for murder in connection with the knife slaying of Negro Laura Lee Davis of 305 11th St., Monroe.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital where she was rushed by a witness to the incident. According to police, death was attributed to a knife wound in the heart.

Police also booked 19-year-old Bobby Ray Johnson, of 109 18th St., on the accessory charge.

Police were unable to determine exactly what happened, but said they believed a fight ensued between Scott and the Negro woman when she accused him of tearing her dress. FIRE DAMAGE HEAVY

Explosion Rocks Strikebound Firm

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—General Controls Co., a strikebound aerospace firm, was rocked by a tremendous explosion and an oil-fed fire early Saturday. The fire caused $250,000 damage, officials said.

It was controlled after a 90-minute battle. The firm lies on the Glendale-Burbank city line and firemen from both cities answered the call.

The company has had incidents of violence and vandalism during a protracted strike. Arson investigators said they would attempt to learn if the fire was connected in any way with General Controls' labor problems.

William J. Ray, president of the company, estimated the damage at a quarter of a million dollars. He declined to speculate on the possible cause.

The fire destroyed portions of a storage dock and consumed a large quantity of stored fuel oil, officials said.

A strike was called by the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO on June 4, when 1,800 workers walked out. The union charged that the company had cheated the union of $50,000 a year in incentive benefits over a three-year period.

Since the strike started the company has continued to operate, using nonstriking workers. There have been reports of beating, vandalism, tire slashing and a firebombing which damaged a union hall. The company reported three previous fires, all minor, which were believed to have been of incendiary origin.

IN MANY STATES

Reapportioning May Bring Hot Battles In 1963

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers for city folk and suburbanites are shooting for a sort of political revolution in 1963.

That's the year the fight to wrest control of state legislatures from long-dominant rural blocs will really get hot.

In swirling, fast-paced developments this year metropolitan dwellers have scored some breakthroughs, even though only partial. These have merely whetted their appetites for what they consider fair representation.

Rural political leaders, on the other hand, are digging in to salvage as much as they can.

It all began March 26, 1962 when the Supreme Court decided, in a case from Tennessee, that courts have power to rule on complaints of "invidious discrimination" in the apportioment of seats in state legislatures.

Since then courts have invalidated, or at least struck a blow at, existing apportionment in 13 states. However, the courts have generally given legislatures time to act, either at special sessions this year or regular sessions later.

Only in Alabama did a federal court do the job itself, and this is merely a stopgap measure. The Alabama Legislature is under court orders to do a more thoroughgoing job itself next year, with the judge breathing down the lawmakers' necks.

Under court spurs, the Maryland Legislature reapportioned to give city and suburbs control of the lower house for the first time in history. But rural control of the Senate remains. In Tennessee and Vermont, among other states, reapportionment plans were voted but rural power is still strong.

Charles S. Rhyne, prominent lawyer who argued for the city folk in the famous Tennessee case that led to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, feels 1963 will be a year of decision.

He says, "It seems clear that by the time the state legislatures complete the 47 sessions now scheduled for early 1963, and the possible special sessions of the other three states, at least half of the states will have been reapportioned."

"That this will mean quite a dramatic change in the governmental picture in our country is certain," he says.

It will mean, he says, that city dwellers will be taxed more fairly and will get a fairer share of the taxes back from the state capitals. It will mean also, he continued, a greater measure of home rule for cities to attend to their own needs, and a renaissance of state governments, which long have been losing power and prestige to Washington.

Farm folk, on the other hand, entertain fears. They are anxious lest the cities override their interests. They take satisfaction in remarks by U.S. Dist. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan.

Concurring in a unanimous decision by a three-judge federal court, upholding New York State's apportionment system, Ryan said: "If apportionment were based solely on population, this would mean that three per cent of the state's area would dominate the rest of New York.

"Even if the urban representatives were to sincerely endeavor to care for the interests of the state as a whole, it is unlikely that they might be able to fully understand the problems of the remaining vast areas of the state."

Among several questions unanswered thus far by the U.S. Supreme Court is whether the "federal plan" is applicable to the states. Under this plan, House apportionment is based on population, while each state has two senators.

There have been conflicting rulings by lower courts on this issue. The latest was last week when a federal court upheld proposed Florida reapportionment. This would give the largest counties control of the lower house, but only a small minority in the other.

Here are some of the high spots in the big nationwide struggle:

ALABAMA—First state in the Union to have its legislature reapportioned by a federal court. After a special session of the legislature failed to produce a plan acceptable to the court, the court put a temporary plan into effect, giving urbanites more representation. A special Democratic primary was held Aug. 28 under this plan. The court has warned that the 1963 legislature must go further in giving city and suburbs more representation.

CALIFORNIA — A referendum on the Nov. 6 ballot would add 10 seats to the 40-member Senate—five additional for Los Angeles County, and one each for five other populous counties.

COLORADO—Court actions are in progress. Two constitutional amendments will be on the November ballot.

CONNECTICUT — The Senate, supposed to be based on population, was last redistricted in 1902. One district contains about 165,000 persons, another 30,000. Official studies have been ordered.

DELAWARE — General Assembly passed a plan giving urbanites control of the House but strengthening rural domination of the Senate. The proposal is to go before the voters. Litigation is under way over the plan.

FLORIDA—Under federal court prodding, the state legislature passed a reapportionment plan. The state's 11 largest counties, with 72 per cent of the population, would have 66 of the 135 House seats, or 49 per cent. The same 11 counties would have 11 senators, or 24 per cent. The plan is subject to approval by the voters in the Nov. 6 general election. Urban residents have protested it does not go far enough. But a three-judge federal court overruled the protests last week, saying it is a rational plan which would eliminate "invidious discrimination."

GEORGIA—A federal court outlawed the county unit system of voting in Democratic primaries for statewide offices. The system was massively weighted in favor of rural areas. For the first time, the governor and other state officers will be chosen Sept. 12 on a popular vote basis. An appeal is pending in the U.S. Supreme Court but it won't be heard until the term starting in October. A three-judge court is pressuring the legislature to reapportion this year, or see the court do it.

The court ruled Wednesday that when the legislature meets in January one branch — probably the Senate — must have been elected on the basis of population.

INDIANA—Court fights are in progress because a constitutional mandate to reapportion has been ignored for 35 years.

IOWA—Court struggles are being waged; present constitutional provisions are under attack as conflicting with the U.S. Constitution.

KANSAS—State judge ruled the present legislative setup is invalid and must be brought up to date. An appeal is pending. A federal court fight also is under way.

KENTUCKY—Suits are in progress.

MARYLAND — After a state court found "invidious discrimination," the legislature revamped the House setup giving the cities and suburbs control for the first time. But the courts left Senate control in the hands of rural senators representing 14 per cent of the population. An appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court is expected.

MICHIGAN — The State Supreme Court ruled 4-3 that the Senate, long a bastion of rural conservatism, was invalidly apportioned. It said this must be corrected immediately or senators elected at-large this year. However, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart stayed this judgment pending an expected review by the full U.S. Supreme Court.

MINNESOTA—A federal court case has been started over reapportionment.

MISSISSIPPI — A state court warned it would order reapportionment unless the legislature acted. Gov. Ross Barnett has called a special session for Sept. 18. Seats have not been reshuffled since 1890, although major population shifts have occurred.

NEBRASKA—Suit was filed in federal court asking equal representation for all Nebraskans in this state's unique one-house legislature.

NEVADA — Four labor union leaders from Reno and Las Vegas filed a federal court suit charging the Senate setup is unfair to big counties.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—The State Supreme Court held that an apportionment system based on equalized property valuation, and not on population or area, is constitutional.

NEW JERSEY — Litigation is under way in Superior Court of Hudson County on the issue of whether the legislative setup involves "taxation without representation" for city dwellers.

NEW YORK—A federal three-judge court has twice upheld the state's apportionment formula, saying city plaintiffs had not shown invidious discrimination. An appeal is under way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

NORTH DAKOTA—The federal court put reapportionment up to the 1963 legislature. The court withheld action to see what the legislature will do.

State Forest Meet Slated At Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Speakers for the 15th annual meeting of the Louisiana Forestry Association at Alexandria on Sept. 21 were announced Saturday by W. M. Palmer Jr., president of the association.

Theme of the convention will be "Timber Marketing." "This should be of interest to all Louisiana timberland owners, as it is one of our growing problems," Palmer said.

Slated to speak on the Thursday program, according to Palmer, will be Hon. Joe D. Waggoner, Congressman of the Fourth Congressional District; L. B. Whitaker, tree farmer, Alexandria; Pratt Secrest, pulpwood dealer of Thomasville, Ga., Mike Baer Jr., Pearl River Lumber Co., Bogalusa; J. R. Gaugler, Central Louisiana Electric Co., Lafayette, and Paul Dolhonde, Chairman, Louisiana Tree Farm Committee, Bogalusa.

TIMBER SESSION

William McDavid Palmer, Louisiana Forestry Commission of Baton Rouge, will moderate the morning session which is devoted to the problems of timber growers, timber producers and mill operators. Warren E. Dietrich of Minden, first vice president of the association, will serve as chairman of the afternoon session.

The annual banquet Thursday night, concludes events of the day, with Jack Dillard of Shreveport as master of ceremonies and Chester Lauck of Houston, Tex., as banquet speaker.

Waggoner will discuss national legislation and international relations which effect timber business in the South. He is expected to review the consequences of Canadian imported lumber on domestic industry and the resulting flood of west coast lumber being shipped to Gulf ports.

J. S. McWilliams of Monroe, general chairman, pointed out that all timberland owners, tree farmers and members of the statewide group and their guests are urged to attend the meeting this year.

Soviets Explode Megaton-Range Nuclear Device

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union exploded another megaton-range nuclear device over its arctic test site Saturday in a continuation of what the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission called "an intensive nuclear test series."

The AEC, announcing this, said the atmospheric detonation occurred at Novaya Zemlya, an island in the arctic used for many of the Soviet nuclear explosions.

The AEC announcement gave no explanation nor amplification of its designation of the Soviet explosions as "an intensive test series." It was an apparent reference to the rapidity with which the Soviet Union has conducted the tests since it resumed testing Aug. 5.

Saturday's blast was No. 10 announced by the AEC, but the agency made it clear that more have taken place.

"In accordance with standard U.S. practice not all detected Soviet tests are specifically announced," it stated.

The yield was described as "in the megaton range," meaning it was the equivalent of more than a million tons of TNT. Earlier, the explosion was estimated by the seismological institution at Uppsala, Sweden, as eight megatons.

Shepard Assists In Simulated Flight To Moon

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., was reported to have been one of four men who took part in a weeklong simulated flight to the moon and back.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Cmdr. Shepard was an official member of the crew but did not fly Martin Co.'s Apollo-type capsule.

Shepard made the first U. S. suborbital flight in the Mercury capsule.

During the recent weeklong mission, called Frontier III, a one-man space capsule developed by the Langley, Va., research center was used for simulated maneuver in which one pilot separated from the Martin capsule while in lunar orbit and descended alone to the moon's surface.

The pilots who flew the capsule were identified as Donald L. Marlick and Harold E. Ream, both of Langley, and Glenn W. Stinnett, of the Ames Research Center at Moffett Field, Calif.

The Baltimore Evening Sun quoted NASA as saying the moon missions showed the pilots could successfully fly a capsule to the moon and back without physical or mental deterioration.

French Chief Visits Former Nazi Shrine

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of France, transformed a Munich square with a sinister Nazi past into a memorial for French-German friendship Saturday.

A crowd of 80,000 unleashed ovations for the 71-year-old French leader as he spoke before the Feldherrnhalle, once a shrine for Nazis who died in Adolf Hitler's flubbed 1923 putsch. It was the first rally with political overtones held in the square since the collapse of the Third Reich.

Speaking again in flawless German, De Gaulle told the crowds "There has always been a strong bond between Bavaria and France despite past situation. But today, when France and Germany are facing the same threat and when there is so much to overcome, the only thing necessary is to unite."

Before going to the Feldherrnhalle, De Gaulle stopped at City Hall to sign the Golden Book. About 12,000 Bavarians had assembled outside. When the car entered the City Hall Square, he had it stopped, got out and spent more than five minutes shaking hands to cries of "Vive de Gaulle."

De Gaulle is on the fifth day of a six-day state visit to West Germany.

Police said at least 100,000 persons jammed the medieval streets of downtown Munich to see De Gaulle. Because of recurrent rumors that Secret Army Organization terrorists were hiding in or near the city, security precautions were unprecedented. At least 5,000 police had been mobilized.

High U.S. Officials Doubt Khrushchev To Visit U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High U. S. officials said Saturday they do not believe Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will attend the forthcoming United Nations assembly in New York unless he decides to use that forum to press the explosive Berlin issue.

They acknowledged, however, the possibility that the Russian leader might suddenly change his mind as an excuse for holding private talks with President Kennedy on the multitude of cold war issues dividing East and West.

Official word from Moscow is that Khrushchev definitely will not be on hand opening day Sept. 18, and has "no present plans" to show up later. But some U. S. officials have their fingers crossed.

Kennedy, according to a high State Department source, also has not yet decided whether he will appear at the Assembly some time during its two - month or longer session. This official said it depends to some extent on the President's schedule but principally on whether his appearance would be worthwhile in forwarding American objectives.

If Khrushchev would suddenly decide to attend, it was considered certain Kennedy would also show up at some point, although probably not at the same time.

Top State Department officials said the present international situation does not appear to offer Khrushchev enough propaganda advantage to warrant a repetition of his table-thumping 1960 appearances at the Assembly. At that time he had the American U2 patrol plane incident with which to berate the United States and also was able to launch new offensives on disarmament and colonialism.

One official said that although the Berlin crisis is not on the U. N. agenda, it is always possible Khrushchev might later decide to come to New York to try and justify Soviet actions in the divided city. This source said Khrushchev might decide to take Berlin to the U. N. if he decided on either of two possible courses:

To justify sudden Soviet action such as conclusion of the long threatened East German peace treaty under which the Communist would attempt to isolate the Allies in West Berlin and make their continued presence in the Red-encircled city eventually untenable.

To create a new crisis on some other front to divert world attention from Berlin so that he could avoid any action with regard to the former German capital for at least another year.

Actually, officials expect neither of these courses. Most authorities do not anticipate any Russian treaty move for several months but they also do not believe Khrushchev will delay all action indefinitely.

Reapportioning May Bring Hot Battles In 1963

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers for city folk and suburbanites are shooting for a sort of political revolution in 1963.

That's the year the fight to wrest control of state legislatures from long-dominant rural blocs will really get hot.

In swirling, fast-paced developments this year metropolitan dwellers have scored some breakthroughs, even though only partial. These have merely whetted their appetites for what they consider fair representation.

Rural political leaders, on the other hand, are digging in to salvage as much as they can.

It all began March 26, 1962 when the Supreme Court decided, in a case from Tennessee, that courts have power to rule on complaints of "invidious discrimination" in the apportioment of seats in state legislatures.

Since then courts have invalidated, or at least struck a blow at, existing apportionment in 13 states. However, the courts have generally given legislatures time to act, either at special sessions this year or regular sessions later.

Only in Alabama did a federal court do the job itself, and this is merely a stopgap measure. The Alabama Legislature is under court orders to do a more thoroughgoing job itself next year, with the judge breathing down the lawmakers' necks.

Under court spurs, the Maryland Legislature reapportioned to give city and suburbs control of the lower house for the first time in history. But rural control of the Senate remains. In Tennessee and Vermont, among other states, reapportionment plans were voted but rural power is still strong.

Charles S. Rhyne, prominent lawyer who argued for the city folk in the famous Tennessee case that led to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, feels 1963 will be a year of decision.

He says, "It seems clear that by the time the state legislatures complete the 47 sessions now scheduled for early 1963, and the possible special sessions of the other three states, at least half of the states will have been reapportioned."

"That this will mean quite a dramatic change in the governmental picture in our country is certain," he says.

It will mean, he says, that city dwellers will be taxed more fairly and will get a fairer share of the tax dollars back from the state capitals. It will mean also, he continued, a greater measure of home rule for cities to attend to their own needs, and a renaissance of state governments, which long have been losing power and prestige to Washington.

Farm folk, on the other hand, entertain fears. They are anxious lest the cities override their interests. They take satisfaction in remarks by U.S. Dist. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan.

Concurring in a unanimous decision by a three-judge federal court, upholding New York State's apportionment system, Ryan said: "If apportionment were based solely on population, this would mean that three per cent of the state's area would dominate the rest of New York.

"Even if the urban representatives were to sincerely endeavor to care for the interests of the state as a whole, it is unlikely that they might be able to fully understand the problems of the remaining vast areas of the state."

Among several questions unanswered thus far by the U.S. Supreme Court is whether the "federal plan" is applicable to the states. Under this plan, House apportionment is based on population, while each state has two senators.

There have been conflicting rulings by lower courts on this issue. The latest was last week when a federal court upheld proposed Florida reapportionment. This would give the largest counties control of the lower house, but only a small minority in the other.

Here are some of the high spots in the big nationwide struggle:

ALABAMA—First state in the Union to have its legislature reapportioned by a federal court. After a special session of the legislature failed to produce a plan acceptable to the court, the court put a temporary plan into effect, giving urbanites more representation. A special Democratic primary was held Aug. 28 under this plan. The court has warned that the 1963 legislature must go further in giving city and suburbs more representation.

CALIFORNIA — A referendum on the Nov. 6 ballot would add 10 seats to the 40-member Senate—five additional for Los Angeles County, and one each for five other populous counties.

COLORADO—Court actions are in progress. Two constitutional amendments will be on the November ballot.

CONNECTICUT — The Senate, supposed to be based on population, was last redistricted in 1902. One district contains about 165,000 persons, another 30,000. Official studies have been ordered.

DELAWARE — General Assembly passed a plan giving urbanites control of the House but strengthening rural domination of the Senate. The proposal is to go before the voters. Litigation is under way over the plan.

FLORIDA—Under federal court prodding, the state legislature passed a reapportionment plan. The state's 11 largest counties, with 72 per cent of the population, would have 66 of the 135 House seats, or 49 per cent. The same 11 counties would have 11 senators, or 24 per cent. The plan is subject to approval by the voters in the Nov. 6 general election. Urban residents have protested it does not go far enough. But a three-judge federal court overruled the protests last week, saying it is a rational plan which would eliminate "invidious discrimination."

GEORGIA—A federal court outlawed the county unit system of voting in Democratic primaries for statewide offices. The system was massively weighted in favor of rural areas. For the first time, the governor and other state officers will be chosen Sept. 12 on a popular vote basis. An appeal is pending in the U.S. Supreme Court but it won't be heard until the term starting in October. A three-judge court is pressuring the legislature to reapportion this year, or see the court do it.

The court ruled Wednesday that when the legislature meets in January one branch — probably the Senate — must have been elected on the basis of population.

INDIANA—Court fights are in progress because a constitutional mandate to reapportion has been ignored for 35 years.

IOWA—Court struggles are being waged; present constitutional provisions are under attack as conflicting with the U.S. Constitution.

KANSAS—State judge ruled the present legislative setup is invalid and must be brought up to date. An appeal is pending. A federal court fight also is under way.

KENTUCKY—Suits are in progress.

MARYLAND — After a state court found "invidious discrimination," the legislature revamped the House setup giving the cities and suburbs control for the first time. But the courts left Senate control in the hands of rural senators representing 14 per cent of the population. An appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court is expected.

MICHIGAN — The State Supreme Court ruled 4-3 that the Senate, long a bastion of rural conservatism, was invalidly apportioned. It said this must be corrected immediately or senators elected at-large this year. However, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart stayed this judgment pending an expected review by the full U.S. Supreme Court.

MINNESOTA—A federal court case has been started over reapportionment.

MISSISSIPPI — A state court warned it would order reapportionment unless the legislature acted. Gov. Ross Barnett has called a special session for Sept. 18. Seats have not been reshuffled since 1890, although major population shifts have occurred.

NEBRASKA—Suit was filed in federal court asking equal representation for all Nebraskans in this state's unique one-house legislature.

NEVADA — Four labor union leaders from Reno and Las Vegas filed a federal court suit charging the Senate setup is unfair to big counties.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—The State Supreme Court held that an apportionment system based on equalized property valuation, and not on population or area, is constitutional.

NEW JERSEY — Litigation is under way in Superior Court of Hudson County on the issue of whether the legislative setup involves "taxation without representation" for city dwellers.

NEW YORK—A federal three-judge court has twice upheld the state's apportionment formula, saying city plaintiffs had not shown invidious discrimination. An appeal is under way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

NORTH DAKOTA—The federal court put reapportionment up to the 1963 legislature. The court withheld action to see what the legislature will do.

Reds Sound New Nuclear War Threats

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet military newspaper Red Star Saturday said the Soviet Union would deal a "devastating retaliatory blow" at American overseas bases if the United States ever started a nuclear war.

The warning accompanied an assertion by the Tass news agency that President Kennedy's request for authority to call up 150,000 American reservists, if necessary, was the result of U.S. military pressure to rush forward "aggressive plans" against Castro's Cuba.

The article in Red Star, which was signed by Capt. T. Belashenko of the Soviet navy, boasted of Soviet military might — including the global rocket and "charges of 100-megaton power." A megaton is the equivalent of 1 million tons of TNT.

The article said that if 50-megaton bombs were fired by the Soviet Union "for example at the U.S. bases in England, West Germany or Japan, rather heavy destruction and casualties would occur literally all over the territories of these comparatively small but heavily populated countries."

The article, entitled "Bases of Aggression and Provocation," repeated Soviet military claims that the global rocket with nuclear warheads could "hit as many objectives as it would be necessary, including American aggressive bases."

The claim recalled similar threats made by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev Aug. 11, 1961, in talking to Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani at a Kremlin reception.

On that occasion Fanfani said NATO bases were located in Italian olive groves. Khrushchev replied that in the event of war, the Soviet Union would be forced "to deliver a blow at NATO bases and not only olive groves, but people would perish."

Ruston Parking Ordinance Set

RUSTON (Special) — At 12:01 a.m. Sunday, September 9, a new parking ordinance will go into effect.

The new ordinance establishes the minimum fine for overparking at 50 cents, instead of the original 25 cents. If this overparking fine is not paid by 8 p.m. the day of the violation, the charge will be $1.00.

The purpose of the new ordinance is to encourage people working in the business district to utilize parking lots to create more street parking spaces for shoppers. Off-street parking facilities are being developed by several Ruston businessmen with monthly charges of $4 for use of these parking lots.

U.S. OFFICIAL REPORTS

Retraining Of Idle Off To Fast Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Saturday it is off to a fast start on an ambitious new program to retrain idle workers in skills enabling them to fill available new jobs.

W. Willard Wirtz, acting secretary of labor, said that in the two weeks since Congress made the training program money available the Labor and Welfare departments have approved 70 projects in 11 states. An additional 167 projects in 31 states are being considered.

The program comes under the manpower Development and Training Act signed by President Kennedy last March 15 to school hundreds of thousands of workers either idled or facing layoff in skills fitting them for different employment.

Under the program workers will get their training free and be paid nominal sums, generally equalling unemployment compensation payments, as study allowances while attending classes.

Typically, the cost is expected to run about $1,000 per individual for courses running 20 to 26 weeks. However, training could run at least a year for specific jobs. Workers required to travel to other areas for courses could get additional travel and subsistence allowances.

Wirtz expressed confidence that the program, enacted by Congress on an experimental three-year basis, will be a permanent one that will increasingly help match manpower resources to requirements in a constantly changing economy.

He said it would tend both to ease transistions to automation and make such changes more acceptable to workers.

Congress appropriated $70 million for the program for the period up to July 1, 1963. In the program's first two years the government will pay all the cost. In the third year states will be expected to pay half the costs.

The first batch of 70 projects will train 2,437 workers in 29 occupations in Colorado, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas and Wisconsin.

QUESTION: In a world where there is so much progress, is it unreasonable to assume that religion also should progress and adapt itself to society as it is and not as it was?

J. B.

ANSWER: The Christian faith is more pertinent to society now than any of the world religions for more than one reason.

First, it is adapted to the deeper spiritual nature of man and meets a need that is constant. Man needs to know God, and the Gospel is adapted to make God known in all of His aspects through Jesus Christ.

Second, the problem of sin is persistent. It is always with us. No matter what advance is made, sin is not yet eliminated. Therefore, the Gospel is applicable because it deals with sin as a destructive principle at work in man.

Third, let me remind you that while there has been definite technical progress and literary advance, the facts of history once established cannot be changed. The death of Christ and His resurrection are facts that are established. They have meaning for all time, and must be reckoned with before we are able to interpret our present problems.

Arson Probe Launched In Church Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Arson experts sifted through cooling ashes at historic St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cathedral Saturday, seeking the cause of a $2.5-million fire that burned out the interior of the church Friday night.

The brick exterior—which had withstood the 1906 earthquake and previous fires — still stood. But light shone through the steel ribs of the roof Saturday.

A priest suffered burns to his hands when he tried vainly to rescue the Blessed Sacraments. Two firemen were slightly injured.

Forty teen-agers attending a dance in a lower hall were led from the building safely.

A squad of arson investigators moved into the skeletal remains of the 71-year-old church at daybreak.

Barbara Schofield, 19, told police she saw four teen-age boys fleeing from the building minutes before flames burst through the stained glass windows.

"We sure burned hell out of that church," Mrs. Schofield quoted one of the youths.

"We'll build right here as quickly as we can," Archbishop Joseph McGucken said. "This is snap judgment, but I doubt if the cathedral could be reconstructed even if the walls hold."

Nearly everything inside the building was destroyed. The marble altar stood amid the charred remains.

Archbishop McGucken estimated the $2.5-million damages. He said special vestments, sacred vessels and other special religious effects were not inside the building.

"Thank God they were not damaged," he said.

Thousands of pedestrians jammed streets near the fire site, Van Ness Avenue and O'Farrell Street, in the heart of San Francisco. The fire raged for more than two hours.

Association Sets Meet On Monday

The Ouachita Parish Association for Retarded Children will meet at G. B. Cooley Hospital for Retarded Children Monday at 7:15 p.m., according to W. K. Harris, president of the organization.

Parents of children in the special education classes as well as newcomers to Ouachita Parish are urged to attend this meeting.

Mr. William A. Colvin, III, new director of Cooley, will have the latest information concerning the new hospital.

Rally Held By Foes Of School Mix

WESTWEGO, La. (UPI)—Segregationists trooped to this town outside New Orleans Saturday for a rally led by two excommunicated Catholics to press the boycott and fight against parochial school integration.

There was speculation the archdiocese of New Orleans under Archbishop John P. Cody would reply Sunday from the pulpits of the churches in its 11-parish (county) jurisdiction.

Segregationists said 3,000 people would attend the rally at Westwego city park, latest in a series of meetings staged by south Louisiana poltiical leader Leander H. Perez Sr., and Mrs. B. J. Gaillot, a New Orleans housewife who argues that the Bible teaches segregation.

The Our Lady of Prompt Succor parochial school in Westwego was still and quiet Saturday, in recess for the weekend. For the last three days, crowds of up to 500 segregationists have gathered outside the building to taunt and hiss a Negro woman bringing her two children to the school and the relatively few whites who disregarded a boycott that has cut enrollment to one-seventh normal.

Perez, the 72-year-old head of the Plaquemines Parish (county) government, and Mrs. Gaillot both are Catholics who have been excommunicated by the church for opposing parochial school integration.

Perez has charged that integration is a "Communist" plot and that Archbishop John P. Cody and the archdiocese received a $3 million federal grant as "payoff" for integrating the 158 schools in the archdiocese. The archbishop denied the charge.

Mrs. Gaillot, a 42-year-old mother of three, has demanded that the archbishop prove that the Bible does not teach segregation.

LBJ Finds Friends Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday the people in the six countries he visited view the people of the United States as "friendly, considerate Americans, not ugly Americans."

Johnson, who returned Friday night from his 17-day trip, said at a news conference he found "almost a fanaticism for our way of life."

He visited Lebanon, Iran, Turkey, Cyprus, Greece and Italy.

The vice president disagreed with Republican claims that the Kennedy administration has not exploited the Soviet-built wall in Berlin. Every place he went, he said, people were strongly aware of the wall and its significance.

The main purpose of the trip, Johnson said, was to explain the administration's policy of cutting back direct grants of foreign aid in favor of long term development loans for social and economic projects.

He gave as a reason for such a policy the increasing tax burden on Americans and the unwillingness of Congress to go along with a continuing heavy program of direct aid.

Johnson said that despite the unpleasant nature of such a step in countries long used to American dollars, he felt his explanation was understood and accepted.

The most difficult tasks he faced, he said, were in Greece, which saw its $20 million defense support cut off this year, and Iran, which is losing $30 million in such aid.

In both cases, he added, he felt there was a willingness to go along with the new policy.

Johnson said although most of the countries he visited are close to the Soviet border he found no fear of recent Soviet threats against countries friendly to the United States.

"These people are courageous and confident and have a great faith in what we are doing and what they are doing and they feel ultimately we will achieve peace," he said.

One of the most rewarding aspects of his visit, Johnson said, was to see the economic strength of Italy.

He said that in his talks with Italian leaders he expressed the hope Italy would work with the United States to help less developed countries. He also said he would like to see Italy increase its purchases from the United States.

Reds Sound New Nuclear War Threats

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet military newspaper Red Star Saturday said the Soviet Union would deal a "devastating retaliatory blow" at American overseas bases if the United States ever started a nuclear war.

The warning accompanied an assertion by the Tass news agency that President Kennedy's request for authority to call up 150,000 American reservists if necessary was the result of U.S. military pressure to rush forward "aggressive plans" against Castroite Cuba.

The article in Red Star, which was signed by Capt. T. Belashenko of the Soviet navy, boasted of Soviet military might — including the global rocket and "charges of 100-megaton power." A megaton is the equivalent of 1 million tons of TNT.

Dean Replies To Criticism By Tugwell

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Dean William D. Ross of Louisiana State University's College of Business Administration said Saturday a paper on sound state financing he delivered at a Miami Beach, Fla., conference dealt with all states—not particularly Louisiana.

Ross replied to criticism by state Treasurer A. P. Tugwell that adverse publicity about Louisiana's financial status had a depressing effect on state bonds.

"I did not mention Louisiana once in my address," Ross said. "My paper deals with all states.

"One footnote in a 27-page paper, which is not a part of the body of the paper, is the basis of the story which appeared in the papers."

An Associated Press story Thursday quoted Ross and Dr. Joseph M. Bonin of Auburn as saying in the paper "states may minimize the inefficiency of their bond financing machinery by avoiding the creation of new bond issuing authorities."

The story also quoted a footnote to the paper which said, "The state of Louisiana represents, an unenviable example of the results of the failure to follow this rule."

Ross said, "This is a misuse, out of context, of a footnote. The paper has two purposes:

"1. It outlines principles and practices that, if followed, would get any state top, triple A ratings on its bonds and the lowest possible interest cost. The paper is proving its debt structure.

"1. The paper is a critical analysis of the criteria used by the bond rating services. It is argued in the paper that the rating services are not properly and fairly rating the bonds of states that do not follow ideal practices.

"It is argued," Ross said, "that the differences in ratings are too great, and the consequent differences in interest costs between states are too great and are not justified.

"Not only did I not mention the name of Louisiana once in my address in Miami Beach, Ross said, "but in the question and answer period, I defended the state against specific criticisms made by representatives of the New York Bond Market.

Foes Of Plan To Reapportion Seek Support

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Opponents of a legislative study committee's reapportionment plan were attempting Saturday to drum up support for a counter proposal.

A group of lawmakers met here Friday and decided to push a plan which would create a 147-member House and a 50-member Senate.

It would give more representation to larger counties than would the committee plan.

Each county would be assigned one House seat and other seats would be distributed according to population. Senatorial districts, containing from one to three counties, would be based partly on population and partly on geography.

About 12 legislators attended the Friday meeting but it was reported a number of others agreed to back their plan.

Rep. George Rogers of Vicksburg, who was designated spokesman for the unofficial group, said members believed the committee plan would be rejected by the courts.

Peronists Call For Revolution Against Guido

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Peronist and Communist trade union leaders Saturday boldly called for an end to "superfluous speeches" and the start of a revolution to overthrow President Jose M. Guido.

Peronist leader Andres Framini sparked the demands for action at a meeting of union leaders that lasted until almost 3 a.m.

"We have to go out in the streets," said Framini, a textile workers' leader and a successful Peronist candidate for governor of Buenos Aires Province in the March 18 elections which were subsequently annulled by the armed forces.

"They are not going to stop us with bullets because revolutions are won with the lives and blood of those who give their all for them," he said. "We must have action. The revolution must be final."

Framini reiterated a previous vow that if the Peronists regain power in Argentina their first action will be to again confiscate the newspaper La Prensa which ex-dictator Juan D. Peron once seized.

Osvaldo Publiese, Communist representative of the musicians' union, and Hector Cortez of the news vendors' union joined in a call to "overthrow this unpopular government" and said the workers must "defend their rights" by force.

Group Plans To Pioneer Settlement

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago man says he is assembling a group of people who will try to get away from it all — all, that is, except the moose and Mounties of northern Canada.

The moving spirit, Robert H. Van Schoick, 31, says his party will embark next spring on a pioneer settling venture.

At this stage, he won't pinpoint the proposed settlement site beyond saying that it isn't north of the tree line, and it's somewhere in either the Keewatin or MacKenzie districts, but not close to Hudson Bay.

Van Schoick advertised recently in two Chicago newspapers, asking for persons to help him settle a small portion of Canada's Northwest Territory. He now finds himself sifting through more than 300 applications.

"The response has been fabulous. Everyone wants to go," he said.

Van Schoick first planned to take a group of about 20 with him. Now he confessed that there will be trouble holding the number to 50.

The former florist said he expected the group to spend 2½ years in the territory located somewhere in the vast area between Hudson Bay and the Yukon regions.

"This will be one of the best prepared and thought out expeditions ever," he said. "We hope to be the pioneers of this area and the nucleus of following waves of settlers that open this territory.

"In many ways I have collected a group of idealists and realists who want to retain basic philosophies and senses of value. I am amazed at the higher caliber of people, who have applied," he said.

Among the applicants, Van Schoick said, were: a gunsmith, a professional hunter, a chemist, a geologist, an amateur composer, a doctor and some farmers. There were single persons of both sexes and married couples with children.

Oddly enough, Van Schoick said a number of parents have come forward and asked whether they could send their college-age sons and daughters.

Van Schoick, formerly aflorist, said settling in the wilderness has been his dream since childhood. "Its a one chance in a thousand and I'm going to give it a tumble."

The Canadian government has consented to the expedition and offered assistance, he said.

Van Schoick said if 25 per cent of the original settlers remained on the homesteaded land, he will consider the venture successful.

The group, he said, consists mostly of younger persons. The group plans to fly to Canada sometime this spring with the tools and implements needed to hunt, fish, farm and construct their lodgings.

Liquor Stills Are Destroyed

MONTGOMERY (UPI) — The Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board reported Saturday it destroyed 343 moonshine stills capable of producing 65,000 gallons of illegal whisky during August.

Administrator Ed Azar said if the moonshine had been sold on the prevailing market it would have netted bootleggers $260,000.

Materials and mash destroyed were valued at more than $69,000.

Dr. R. J. Rehling, state toxicologist at Auburn, reported poisonous moonshine was uncovered in 14 counties.

The bad whisky was found in Bullock, Choctaw, Crenshaw, Dallas, Escambia, Geneva, Hale, Houston, Lee, Lowndes, Montgomery, Pike, Russell and Wilcox.

Condition Of Soviet Spy Improves

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Soblen's condition improved Saturday. His heart strengthened, his blood pressure rose toward normal and he stirred in his hospital bed, giving physicians some hope they can rouse him to consciousness.

Soblen's coma seemed less intense in this third day of the crisis the 61-year-old spy brought on himself by swallowing an overdose of barbiturates just before he was to be deported to the United States to serve the life sentence he jumped $100,000 bail to avoid.

The trend was reflected in bulletins from Hillingdon Hospital, where signs of heart exhaustion caused anxiety among the medical staff Friday.

The morning report said:

"Although Dr. Soblen remains unconscious, he has shown signs that his coma is becoming less. His cardiac condition has improved in the last 24 hours."

The evening bulletin reported: "The slight improvement noted this morning in Dr. Soblen's condition has been maintained, but he remains unconscious."

Dr. C. G. Barnes, who signed both bulletins, seemed slightly more optimistic in the observation, "in any case, after he recovers consciousness, it will be one or two days before Dr. Soblen will be fit to leave the hospital."

Soblen's only visitor, apart from doctors and nurses and Scotland Yard detectives, was his wife Dina, who flew to London form New York Friday. She is staying in the hospital and is allowed, under the watch of the detectives, to see him whenever she wishes.

Dr. Barnes said she faced the situation with dignity and restraint.

He reported Soblen, a New York psychiatrist convicted of wartime spying for the Soviet Union, was being fed intravenously with glucose and other nutrients.

Dean Replies To Criticism By Tugwell

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Dean William D. Ross of Louisiana State University's College of Business Administration said Saturday a paper on sound state financing he delivered at a Miami Beach, Fla., conference dealt with all states—not particularly Louisiana.

Ross replied to criticism by state Treasurer A. P. Tugwell that adverse publicity about Louisiana's financial status had a depressing effect on state bonds.

"I did not mention Louisiana once in my address," Ross said. "My paper deals with all states.

"One footnote in a 27-page paper, which is not a part of the body of the paper, is the basis of the story which appeared in the papers."

An Associated Press story Thursday quoted Ross and Dr. Joseph M. Bonin of Auburn as saying in the paper "states may minimize the inefficiency of their bond financing machinery by avoiding the creation of new bond issuing authorities."

The story also quoted a footnote to the paper which said, "The state of Louisiana represents, an unenviable example of the results of the failure to follow this rule."

Ross said, "This is a misuse, out of context, of a footnote. The paper has two purposes:

"1. It outlines principles and practices that, if followed, would get any state top, triple A ratings on its bonds and the lowest possible interest cost. The paper is improving its debt structure.

"1. The paper is a critical analysis of the criteria used by the bond rating services. It is argued in the paper that the rating services are not properly and fairly rating the bonds of states that do not follow ideal practices.

"It is argued," Ross said, "that the differences in ratings are too great, and the consequent differences in interest costs between states are too great and are not justified.

"Not only did I not mention the name of Louisiana once in my address in Miami Beach, Ross said, "but in the question and answer period, I defended the state against specific criticisms made by representatives of the New York Bond Market.

Foes Of Plan To Reapportion Seek Support

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Opponents of a legislative study committee's reapportionment plan were attempting Saturday to drum up support for a counter proposal.

A group of lawmakers met here Friday and decided to push a plan which would create a 147-member House and a 50-member Senate.

It would give more representation to larger counties than would the committee plan.

Each county would be assigned one House seat and other seats would be distributed according to population. Senatorial districts, containing from one to three counties, would be based partly on population and partly on geography.

About 12 legislators attended the Friday meeting but it was reported a number of others agreed to back their plan.

Rep. George Rogers of Vicksburg, who was designated spokesman for the unofficial group, said members believed the committee plan would be rejected by the courts.

Peronists Call For Revolution Against Guido

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Peronist and Communist trade union leaders Saturday boldly called for an end to "superfluous speeches" and the start of a revolution to overthrow President Jose M. Guido.

Peronist leader Andres Framini sparked the demands for action at a meeting of union leaders that lasted until almost 3 a.m.

"We have to go out in the streets," said Framini, a textile workers' leader and a successful Peronist candidate for governor of Buenos Aires Province in the March 18 elections which were subsequently annulled by the armed forces.

"They are not going to stop us with bullets because revolutions are won with the lives and blood of those who give their all for them," he said. "We must have action. The revolution must be final."

Framini reiterated a previous vow that if the Peronists regain power in Argentina their first action will be to again confiscate the newspaper La Prensa which ex-dictator Juan D. Peron once seized.

Osvaldo Publiese, Communist representative of the musicians' union, and Hector Cortez of the news vendors' union joined in a call to "overthrow this unpopular government" and said the workers must "defend their rights" by force.

Group Plans To Pioneer Settlement

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago man says he is assembling a group of people who will try to get away from it all — all, that is, except the moose and Mounties of northern Canada.

The moving spirit, Robert H. Van Schoick, 31, says his party will embark next spring on a pioneer settling venture.

At this stage, he won't pinpoint the proposed settlement site beyond saying that it isn't north of the tree line, and it's somewhere in either the Keewatin or MacKenzie districts, but not close to Hudson Bay.

Van Schoick advertised recently in two Chicago newspapers, asking for persons to help him settle a small portion of Canada's Northwest Territory. He now finds himself sifting through more than 300 applications.

"The response has been fabulous. Everyone wants to go," he said.

Van Schoick first planned to take a group of about 20 with him. Now he confessed that there will be trouble holding the number to 50.

The former florist said he expected the group to spend 2½ years in the territory located somewhere in the vast area between Hudson Bay and the Yukon regions.

"This will be one of the best prepared and thought out expeditions ever," he said. "We hope to be the pioneers of this area and the nucleus of following waves of settlers that open this territory.

"In many ways I have collected a group of idealists and realists who want to retain basic philosophies and senses of value. I am amazed at the higher caliber of people, who have applied," he said.

JFK's Favorite Political Pulse Taker Conducting Surveys In Seven States

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's favorite political pulse taker is conducting surveys in at least seven states aimed at helping Democratic candidates unseat Republican congressmen.

The surveys are being conducted by Louis Harris and Associates Inc., of New York and at least some of them include suggested strategy for the Democratic candidates.

For example, one on Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, suggests a method by which the Democratic candidate, State Sen. Oliver Ocasek, can put Ayres in a hole on the issue of medical care for the elderly — regardless of what ide the Republican chooses to take.

The Associated Press obtained today a copy of the Harris' report on Ayres, who is seeking his seventh term in Ohio's usually Democratic 14th District.

The 19-page typed report is marked "Confidential—Study NO. 1147" and bears this note: "No part of this study may be reproduced without the express permission of Louis Harris and Associates Inc., and in the event of unauthorized release, the Harris organization will feel free to release it all."

Harris was a key adviser on strategy to candidate Kennedy in 1960 and has done much political campaigning for him.

The studies are being paid for by the Committee on Political Education (COPE), the political arm of the AFL-CIO and the Democratic National Committee.

A COPE spokesman said his organization is sponsoring Harris surveys in Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee and Illinois.

Campaign contribution records on file at the Capitol show the Democratic National Committee paid for studies involving Republican-held seats in Virginia and California. And Rep. Florence P. Dwyer, R-N.J., told a reporter she has seen parts of a Harris survey being done in her district.

Spokesmen for COPE and the Democratic committee and Oliver Quayle, vice president of the Harris organization, declined to say how much the surveys cost or to provide any details on them, including names of the Republicans involved.

However, the campaign contribution records, required by law, show the Democratic committee paid Harris nearly $76,000 in the first five months of this year. And these files show the Republicans involved in Virginia and California, respectively, are Reps. Joel Broyhill and Bob Wilson.

In addition, the records show the Democratic committee had a study made in the 22nd Texas District, represented by Bob Casey, a conservative Democrat.

President Kennedy has indicated he intends to bear down heavily on the question of medical care for the elderly. He made this clear just after the Senate's 52-48 defeat of his plan for hospital and nursing care to be financed through the Social Security system.

At that time he called for election of more Democrats, presumably ones more friendly to his aims. The Democrats now hold a 64-36 edge in the Senate and a 262-174 advantage in the House but the administration frequently is frustrated by a combination of Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats.

Ayres has opposed the Kennedy medicare plan, although it never came to a vote in the House this session.

The Harris study advises Ocasek to run as a "Kennedy Democrat," but adds that "simply invoking the Kennedy name will not be enough."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's favorite political pulse taker is conducting surveys in at least seven states aimed at helping Democratic candidates unseat Republican congressmen.

The surveys are being conducted by Louis Harris and Associates Inc., of New York and at least some of them include suggested strategy for the Democratic candidates.

For example, one on Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, suggests a method by which the Democratic candidate, State Sen. Oliver Ocasek, can put Ayres in a hole on the issue of medical care for the elderly — regardless of what side the Republican chooses to take.

The Associated Press obtained today a copy of the Harris' report on Ayres, who is seeking his seventh term in Ohio's usually Democratic 14th District.

The 19-page typed report is marked "Confidential—Study NO. 1147" and bears this note:

"No part of this study may be reproduced without the express permission of Louis Harris and Associates Inc., and in the event of unauthorized release, the Harris organization will feel free to release it all."

Harris was a key adviser on strategy to candidate Kennedy in 1960 and has done much political campaigning for him.

The studies are being paid for by the Committee on Political Education (COPE), the political arm of the AFL-CIO and the Democratic National Committee.

A COPE spokesman said his organization is sponsoring Harris surveys in Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee and Illinois.

Campaign contribution records on file at the Capitol show the Democratic National Committee paid for studies involving Republican-held seats in Virginia and California. And Rep. Florence P. Dwyer, R-N.J., told a reporter she has seen parts of a Harris survey being done in her district.

Spokesmen for COPE and the Democratic committee and Oliver Quayle, vice president of the Harris organization, declined to say how much the surveys cost or to provide any details on them, including names of the Republicans involved.

However, the campaign contribution records, required by law, show the Democratic committee paid Harris nearly $76,000 in the first five months of this year. And these files show the Republicans involved in Virginia and California, respectively, are Reps. Joel Broyhill and Bob Wilson.

In addition, the records show the Democratic committee had a study made in the 22nd Texas District, represented by Bob Casey, a conservative Democrat.

President Kennedy has indicated he intends to bear down heavily on the question of medical care for the elderly. He made this clear just after the Senate's 52-48 defeat of his plan for hospital and nursing care to be financed through the Social Security system.

At that time he called for election of more Democrats, presumably ones more friendly to his aims. The Democrats now hold a 64-36 edge in the Senate and a 262-174 advantage in the House but the administration frequently is frustrated by a combination of Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats.

Ayres has opposed the Kennedy medicare plan, although it never came to a vote in the House this session.

The Harris study advises Ocasek to run as a "Kennedy Democrat," but adds that "simply invoking the Kennedy name will not be enough."

BIG TREES

Some of Louisiana's largest trees are located in the northeast district. At present in the general area there are eight recognized state champions, and one of them is larger than a national champion in its category. Here is a report on the Louisiana Forestry Association's search for big trees.

Northeast Louisiana and its fringe areas are now the kingdom of eight state champion trees, according to results of the Louisiana Forestry Association "Big Tree" contest.

Those crowned as champions in this area were:

1. A post oak in Bastrop on the E. L. Cheshire Estate. This tree, reported by John F. Cheshire of Bastrop, measures 12 feet, 10 inches in circumference.

2. A sycamore tree 22 feet, 6 inches in circumference located four miles west of Kelly in Caldwell Parish. This one is owned by C. R. McDaniel of Kelly.

3. A giant cottonwood in Tensas Parish owned by Mrs. Henry Butts of Waterproof. Measuring 24 feet, 5½ inches in circumference, it is located on the Helena plantation six miles north of Waterproof.

WILLOW OAKS

4. A willow oak in Franklin Parish one mile southwest of Ft. Necessity. Measuring 16 feet, 11½ inches in circumference, the champion is owned by Ruby R. Taylor and was reported by E. G. Miller of Winnsboro.

5. Cherrybark oak owned by Mrs. Ruby R. Taylor in Franklin Parish. This one measures 20 feet, 8½ inches in circumference and is located in the same vicinity as Mrs. Taylor's champion willow oak. It was reported by E. G. Miller, also.

6. A gum near Urania, measuring 16 feet in circumference, owned by Urania Lumber Co. in LaSalle Parish. It was reported by Glen F. Tannehill.

7. A loblolly pine measuring 11 feet, three inches, located near Urania, and owned by Urania Lumber Co., also reported by Tannehill.

8. A cow oak, 21 feet in circumference, located in the Urania area, owned by Urania Lumber Co. and reported by Tannehill.

Nine other trees in the area were judged by the Association as "runners up" in the contest. They include:

(1) Black gum in Monroe owned by E. H. Miller; (2) cedar in Jackson Parish on the Kirkham Farm, owned by Walker Kirkham and reported by Fred Hestbeck; (3) pecan tree on the Pines near Lake Providence, owned by Mrs. Margaret M. Newman; (4) loblolly pine tree on Castor Creek 14 miles west of Columbia in Caldwell Parish, owned by Olin Mathieson and reported by Marlin J. Mann of Shreveport; (5) hackberry in West Carroll Parish on the W. R. Alderman property in Old Floyd community, reported by R. L. Jarmon of Darnell; (6) black walnut in Union Parish owned by Olin Mathieson and reported by John Connor; (7) black cherry in Lincoln Parish owned by E. W. Causey and reported by Fred Hestbeck; (8) loblolly pine in Lincoln Parish owned by Mrs. H. S. Bingham of Ruston; and (9) post oak in Lincoln Parish reported by Mrs. George W. Wafer of Ruston.

POTENTIAL LEADERS

Four new possible national champions were found by tree lovers during the past year in their search of Louisiana forests:

A shortleaf pine, longleaf pine, black gum and laurel oak. The state already had two national champions, according to the American Forestry Association, official umpire for big trees of the nation. These were the giant live oak tree near Hahnville and a blackjack oak in Grant Parish.

The shortleaf pine contender tentatively beats the present national champion in circumference by five inches. Owned by Kite V. Caudell of Pineville, this tree measures 11 feet in circumference, whereas the national champion measures only 10 feet, 7 inches.

"This one certainly appears to be a winner," says Paul Dolhonde, state chairman of the Louisiana Tree Farm Program, sponsor of the contest.

The longleaf pine, owned by Robert Bates of Pitkin, measures 1½ inches larger in circumference than the one reported as champion now. It may unseat the champion, which is located in Alabama.

LASALLE'S CHAMPION

The black gum is 16 feet in circumference — a full 2 feet, 9 inches larger than the Maryland tree now holding the crown. The Louisiana gum is owned by Urania Lumber Company in LaSalle Parish.

The laurel oak measures 20 feet, 4 inches in circumference, beating the present champ in South Carolina by 4 inches. The Louisiana tree is owned by Fred Misner and was reported by Hypolite T. Landry Jr. of Baton Rouge.

A total of 266 entries were received by the Association during the past year for the Big Tree contest, according to Dolhonde. The most popular tree in the state, it seems, is the live oak, he said.

"We received twice as many entries for the live oak as any species," Dolhonde pointed out. "Second most popular was the pecan and third was red oak."

Suffering in popularity were willow, cottonwood, maple, spruce pine, laurel oak and willow oak, with only one entry being received for each of these species.

BUSY MEASURING

A special sign is being erected at the site of each of the state champion trees by the Association, through the cooperation of the Louisiana Forestry Commission. In addition, each person sending in a entry will receive a complimentary copy of Forest & People, official publication of the Association, where the names of all winners have been published.

The contest closed on May 1. Since then, foresters of the Tree Farm organization and the state agency have been busy measuring all contenders and verifying the species, Dolhonde said.

Some of the letters received by the Association along with the entries denotes the historical background and sentiment connected with Louisiana's tree kingdom. Mrs. George W. Wafer of Ruston wrote:

"It is heartwarming to know that some organization in the state appreciates the beauty of trees and wishes to protect them from destruction. For the past two years, I have been trying to save an ancestral white oak tree and have exhausted all means. I am 71 years old and this tree was a landmark when my grandfather homesteaded the land on which I presently live.

"I cannot explain why this tree hasn't been cut as it is on the highway right-of-way. The only explanation I can give is that I have told them they may as well shoot me first."

HISTORY OF TREE

Mrs. F. W. Stone of Lake Charles wrote about a live oak located in the heart of that city:

"This tree was planted by Charles Sallier, the founder of Lake Charles. Generations of his descendants played beneath the spreading branches of his historic tree. The crude log cabin he built there weathered many storms but the 1918 hurricane was a little too tough for it, so it went with the wind, but the tree still stands."

Robert N. Miller, Jr. of New Orleans reported an unusual tree in his backyard:

"Ours is a 'three family tree.' It has provided a multitude of conversation, beauty, shade and enjoyment to myself and my two immediate neighbors for many years. It is an oak estimated by a tree surgeon to be over 350 or 400 years old. The trunk stands on the property line of our back yard and that of my neighbor . . . a very large limb extends into my other neighbor's yard going down into the ground and rising up again."

A live oak entered in the contest by Mrs. Ethel Claiborne Dameron of Port Allen and located on the property of Aubrey Dupuy has received a great amount of publicity as "a symbol of community life" in Brusly. One reporter wrote that "the moss draped oak has served as a gathering place for area residents in much the same manner as the corner drugstore . . . its exposed roots have provided seating places and its large heavily leafed limbs have provided shade during hot summer months.

PAINTER INSPIRED

"And at least one person, Furcey Rodrigues, was inspired by the Black Brusly Oak to the extent that he put it on canvas. The painting is now on display in the Bank of West Baton Rouge."

Victor H. Schriefer of Abbeville told about a live oak in front of his house and at the same time poked a few barbs at "the other side" in the War Between the States:

"There stands in front of my home a grand old live oak which no doubt was shading a part of the earth in 1492. The first home built next to this great old tree was in about 1770. . . . Union soldiers are said to have broken captured guns on the trunk and roots of this tree . . . they also took the last horse the owners had."

Dolhonde reports that this is the conclusion only of "the first stage" of the Big Tree contest.

Aid Cuts Or Not?

As long as foreign aid appropriations continue to be as big one year as they were the year before we might as well quit saying we are getting any foreign aid cuts, even if the amount proposed by the administration is trimmed a billion dollars or so.

So far the Kennedy administration has simply been asking for a vastly greater sum and then getting about what it wanted after the trimming has been done. We either have to cut down below what we spent the year before or we are not reducing this spending. Simply chopping down a big request, if the request is bloated for the purpose of allowing for cuts, accomplishes nothing.

Some members of congress are ready and anxious to slash the foreign aid bill to the bone but a good many of them are well enough pleased to see this big item in the budget trimmed just about enough to bring it down to where it was last year. President Kennedy this year is asking a billion dollars more than he got last year, so a billion dollar trim amounts to nothing, merely bringing it down to last year's size.

One commentator says that despite Kennedy's much-publicized victory in this year's foreign aid battle, the fact is that this was only the first round. As usual, the big fight will come on the appropriation bill.

Otto Passman, Louisiana's fifth district congressman, is chairman of the house subcommittee on foreign aid appropriations. He is strongly opposed to the amount and the way the program is operated. The man who aided Passman's appointment to this key committee was Clarence Cannon, D., Mo., who helps to mastermind foreign aid opposition in the house.

Present strategy, according to insiders, is to stretch out hearings and hold back the money bill until the last possible minute. The first five weeks of hearings covered only the continent of Africa. By the stretch-out, Cannon and Passman figure the senate appropriations committee won't have time to hold hearings and thus won't have debate ammunition.

Inside betting is that the final bill will be down 15 to 20 per cent from what Kennedy asked. It's an even surer bet that if the cut is no larger than that Kennedy will be getting what he wanted because he surely would ask for at least 20 per cent more than he expected to get.

The Passman-Cannon goal this year is to chop $2 billion out of the $4.6 billion authorization. If they can do that we can say the foreign aid bill has been cut. If it's only 20 per cent down from Kennedy's asking figure we'll know we are getting nowhere, despite the commendable efforts of Mr. Passman.

Broken Leg Good Luck

Those who hold to the theory that everything works out for the best apparently are able to find some confirmation in the case in which indomitable Sir Winston Churchill, wartime premier of Great Britain, suffered a broken thigh bone some three months ago. Churchill's stay in a hospital seems to have done him so much good that he is livelier, more cheerful and more alert than he had been for quite a while before the accident.

When Churchill left the hospital a couple of weeks ago after 54 days of treatment many were shocked at his drawn face. They needn't have been.

Several days ago, on one of the great anniversaries of his extraordinary life, Sir Winston was reported by a close friend to be in better shape mentally and physically than he had been for years.

"He's the old Winston," the friend enthused. "Full of dry wit and pungent comment. I haven't heard him talking with such zest about political and social affairs for far too long a time."

To what does he attribute this noteworthy improvement in Sir Winston?

"I think the stay in the hospital did it," the friend said. "They watched his diet, they cut down on his cigars and so on—especially the so on" (brandy).

Churchill is still the grand old man of World War II and the only one of the big three (the United States, England and Russia) leaders who is still alive.

There may be a moral in this. Joseph Stalin of Russia was committed to a course of aggression, as is Nikita Khrushchev today. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was president of the United States, was committed to a course of appeasing Russia, as is President John F. Kennedy. Churchill was and is committed to a course of individual freedom, which is what most of the people in the world today want.

The man who followed the democratic course has survived the longest. Some will regard this as symbolic.

New Nation Arising?

Bitter enemies for centuries, Germany and France may be forming the nucleus from which a United States of Europe will emerge to become one of the most powerful nations of the world.

"Permanent friendship between Germany and France has become a reality."

Those words were spoken by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany in a television speech in which he said a major goal sought by himself and President Charles de Gaulle of France had been reached. De Gaulle's visit to Bonn will have great historical significance, Adenauer added.

The West German chancellor asserted the two words "France" and "Germany" embodied much greatness and brilliance but also much misery and suffering. Now the time is ripe," he said, "for both nations to set a common aim.

"We want to lead a life in peace and freedom which corresponds to Europe's rank and which is worthy of the people."

Development of the European Common Market, in which the people of France and Germany will be merged industrially, economically, spirtually and physically, along with the people of some other nations, promises to bring about a new national vitality and virility unequalled by any nation since the rise (and possible decline) of the United States of America.

There are many in the United States who are beginning to wonder if President Kennedy's policy of appeasing Russia will be a means of turning over to the new United States of Europe the task of saving the world from communistic conquest and directing it toward free enterprise, democracy and individual freedom. That would be a strange turn of events but it could happen.

If it does, maybe the foreign aid we have poured into Europe at a rate which makes that continent potentially greater industrially than the United States will have been well spent.

Writes To President

To the Editor:

The following letter was sent to President Kennedy by Kent Courtney, national chairman of the Conservative Society of America:

New Orleans, La.

Honorable John F. Kennedy
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

I respectfully address you concerning the subject of the Communist invasion of Cuba. Former high - ranking Cubans, have been reporting a Communist build-up in Cuba for at least the past year. Now that the subject is on the front pages, and now that the entire world knows that the Russians are openly sending machines and materials of war by means of, literally, fleets of Russian supply ships, millions of Americans are acutely aware that the time for resolute action is at hand.

As National Chairman of the Conservative Society of America, which organization is dedicated to the preservation of our national sovereignty, I respectfully make the following suggestions concerning the conduct of our foreign policy, and with special consideration for the need to enforce the Monroe Doctrine by all the legal, constitutional and honorable means at our disposal.

I submit that it will not be necessary to invade the island of Cuba in order to prevent any further build-up of Communist Russia or Communist Chinese power on the island of Cuba.

In order to protect our national sovereignty, in order to carry out our historical committments under the Monroe Doctrine, in order to protect the Nation itself from possible attack by Communist long and medium range missiles, we should immediately set up a complete blockade around and above the island of Cuba in order to isolate the gangster Communist agents which have infiltrated that island, part of which is less than 100 miles from the continental United States.

What I am proposing is that you order a wall of steel to be build around Cuba. The United States government has every legal right under International Law and every moral right, to erect a wall of steel composed of ships of the U. S. Navy and an impenetrable curtain of military air power around and over the island of Cuba.

We need apologize to no one, because we should be doing this on the basis of our own national survival, as well as our commitments to all countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The U. S. Government as the most powerful nation in the world is committed to protect the Western Hemisphere from invasion, intrusion or interference by any foreign power.

There is no danger of starting a third World War, because there is no need to invade the island of Cuba.

A tight blockade by sea and by air will prohibit any additional build - up of Soviet arms or technicians on the island of Cuba. A publicly announced blockade of this sort will immediately cause any Communist ship, plane or submarine, which tries to break the blockade to be labeled as an aggressor.

The subjudated people of Cuba will greet the announcement of such a blockade with feelings of gratitude and joy. The announcement of such a blockade will have a dual reaction, first it will declare to the Soviet press around the world our determination to work for freedom in Cuba, but second and far more important, the free people of the world, as well as all the prisoners behind the Iron Curtain, will respect the strength and integrity of the United States of America.

Another result of this firm action by you will be to enhance your own image and will restore America to the position of moral leadership, which it seems to have lost in recent years.

By the establishment of this blockade, you can serve notice on the entire Soviet - dominated world that the United States believes in the self - determination of nations, and that we will help all of the nations of the world throw off the yoke of Soviet gangsterism, which is now parading under the false name of freedom and liberation.

Russia did not hesitate to erect a wall in Berlin to prevent their slaves from escaping, therefore, the U. S. Government should not hesitate to erect a Cordon Sanitare around the island of Cuba in order to isolate the 'cancer of Communism.

Units of the U. S. Fleet and aircraft from Army installations in Florida could easily prevent the coming or going of any of the agents of the Communist conspiracy by air or sea.

The presence of large numbers of Communist Chinese, Communist Russians and other personnel from Iron Curtain countries has been reported from many reliable sources, and because of this continued brazen Communist build-up, American prestige throughout the free world has fallen to an all - time low.

As soon as this naval and air blockade is established, television and radio stations broadcasting from U. S. Navy units ringing the island of Cuba can inform the Cuban people that this blockade will continue until such time as they can destroy the power of the International Communist legions in Cuba. At this point, psychological warfare of the most effective type can be used by instructing the anti-Communist Cubans to capture Russian and Chinese Communists on the island and turn them over in small groups to our base at Guatanamo. We can then have this group of Russian Communists transported to the United Nations in New York City, and ask that a similar sized group of Americans now being held by the Soviet Union to be turned over to us in an exchange of prisoners under full publicity of the world press gathered in New York City. Other exchanges of Russians received from the Cubans, can be effected in various Capitols of Europe in order to exploit the propaganda value of of our strong anti - Communist position.

Reports have been coming out of Cuba for several months that large numbers of Communist Chinese are also on the island of Cuba. When the Cubans turn these over to us, we can transport these Communist Chinese to Korea for the purpose of obtaining the release of 450 Americans, who have been held captive by the Red Chinese since the end of the Korean War. The propaganda value of these exchanges of prisoners would accrue entirely to us, because we would be taking a strong moral position. As soon as all the Russian and Chinese Communists have been traded off for American prisoners held by Russia and China, the United States Government should offer its good offices to maintain order on the island of Cuba, until such time as Cuba can be re-built, and until such time as Cuban constitutional guaranties can be established.

Mr. President, I respectfully urge you to seriously consider the powerful benefits, which will accrue to you and to our Nation, if we should follow the course outlined in this letter.

Sincerely yours,
Kent Courtney,
National Chairman

Tracing Family Tree

To the Editor:

I would consider it a great favor if you could assist me in locating and - or obtaining certain information concerning my geneology data (family tree).

In 1929, while living in your city, my great aunt, a Mrs. Lester (nee Lee) advised me that a friend of hers there in Monroe had a book, giving the geneology of the Lee lineage, that she had read the book and that it included the lineage down to her parents and grandparents — Thomas Jefferson and Moses Lee.

This Aunt — Mrs. Lester — died with heart attack the next day after she told me of existing book, hence I never did know just who the person was there in Monroe who had it. Too, at that time I was not too interested in geneology and never followed through with it.

I am hoping you will print this letter, with the prayer that either the original owner or her descendants will read this and correspond with me.

I, in doing geneology research, learned through the Geneological Register — published by the Louisiana Geneological Historical Society, Baton Rouge, that both Mrs. Otto Passman and Mrs. Robert Layton are also engaged in similar research and perhaps either of them may know of such existing book, containing the lineage on the Lee family.

I will be glad to pay for exchange information with anyone who answers this letter.

There is no use for the proletariat to growl about the cordon of steel about his neck. He put it there. He harkened to the promise of the overlord until he's a serf.

He either forgot or overlooked two of the more important sayings in the Bible. "Thou shalt eat bread by the sweat of thy brow," and, "Money is the root of all evil," and took off after a bunch of politicians with his eyes on the moon, seeking something for nothing despite the chasm at his feet.

The industrialist not sufficiently pleased with his achievement is advocating the integration of the races, hoping he will breed a mongrelized race. Farming Problem

Legislation Leaves More Unsettled Questions Than Ever

The farm problem has defied solution for decades, but this year's crop of agricultural legislation probably leaves more unsettled questions than ever.

After a season of stalemate, the warring factions of the Congressional farm camp have pretty well decided to limp along until next year and see what kind of mood the 88th Congress is in when it meets in January.

This is one reason there will be unusually close attention paid to the November elections. City dwellers and suburbanites are going to be picking up strength in the House of Representatives — and city Congressmen have been growing more and more irritated at being asked to vote for patchwork farm legislation.

The Billie Sol Estes case, if nothing else, served to reinforce the commonly - held city man's notion that all farm programs simply pay farmers bonuses to grow unneeded food or give them premiums for not planting anything.

Actually, less than half the money spent for farm supports and land retirement ever reaches the farmers. For most products the added cost to food bills of the crop support systems is negligible.

To counteract the popular urban notion, however, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman has already begun a round of missionary work to try to sell his program for mandatory crop controls to the city voters.

Last month, Freeman issued a statement announcing that it is the duty of urbanites to find out what farm programs are all about. In October, he will follow up with a series of regional agricultural economic conferences scheduled for key cities throughout the country, and will personally keynote each one.

He has not forgotten that a handful of city Democratic Congressmen who bolted the party's leadership in mid-summer could have saved his mandatory control bill for feed grains and wheat.

The redistricting of U. S. Congressional districts which takes effect with this fall's elections will generally subtract strength from the Northeast and Deep South, except for Texas and Florida, which will gain. The Far West and some of the North Central states will add new representatives, but not generally in rural areas.

The biggest surprise during this year of backing and filling over farm legislation was the success of an amendment sponsored by Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D) La., of the Senate Agriculture Committee. The amendment would abolish the current feed grain support system in 1964. Instead, the Agriculture Secretary would be authorized to set supports anywhere between zero to 90 per cent of parity, so long as no new feed is added to the Government - held surplus.

Several old hands at farm legislation from the South and Midwest woke up to the effect of this amendment just as it was passing — but too late to stop it.

Midwestern senators claimed that if the Ellender amendment ever goes into effect, the corn support rate might drop to nothing and corn would be on a free market — and old men have almost forgotten when there was an unsupported market for any of the "big six" farm crops. They said the amendment was an attempt to hold a club over their heads to rush through a mandatory feed grain control program next year before the amendment could start to operate.

Some southern senators who do not particularly worry whether feed grains are supported or not — their areas are deficient in feed grains and must import feed for their growing poultry and livestock operations — also looked askance at the Ellender amendment, but for a different reason.

They noted that the Ellender amendment repealed the basic 1958 legislation which sets quotas for all basic crops. If Congress should actually abolish the quotas - and - support system for corn, they reasoned, the lawmakers might go the rest of the way and put cotton on a free market.

What lies behind the riots which recently shook West Berlin and presented the United States military commanders with such a touch, explosive situation?

What triggered the demonstrations, of course, was the brutal slaying of an 18-year-old East German youth while he attempted to escape from Communist slavery. But I believe the violence of the reaction on the part of irate West Berliners has deeper roots.

I suggest that the riots were the culmination of a long period of uneasiness over American maneuvers and policies with regard to Berlin.

The fact that the demonstrations were anti - American as well as anti - Communist is particularly significant. Some observers felt that the failure of American military personnel to intervene on behalf of the youth during his escape attempt, or to go to his aid as he lay slowly bleeding to death at the infamous wall, epitomized for the West Berliners an American policy of never incurring the Communists' wrath.

Questions that arose immediately following the slaying of the teen - aged East Berliner were these: Why had American military authorities allowed him to die? Why hadn't American medical corps personnel gone to his aid after he was ripped by slugs from the Communists' Vopo machine guns?

Because the answers to these questions appeared obvious, the West Berliners vented their wrath in rioting. They were, in effect, demonstrating against an American policy that permitted the Wall of Shame to be erected rather than risk trouble with the Communists.

They were demonstrating against repeated indications that American policy is basically one of appeasement. They were demonstrating against American proposals looking toward internationalization of the Berlin access routes.

For all the assurances which members of the Kennedy administration mouth about standing firm in Berlin, the August riotings proved pretty conclusively that the West Berliners are not buying the words. They amounted to a dramatic expression of distrust, which, at the very least, should be cause for grave concern in the White House and in the State Department.

The West Germans have been among the strongest and most progressive of our allies in Europe during the past decade. They constitute an indispensable part of the western defense system on the continent. And they hold the resources which we hope eventually will materially lighten American expenditures for economic, technical and military aid in a divided world.

In other words, the West Germans are valuable allies at a time when we need all the allies we can get. They are too valuable to sacrifice in the pursuit of a policy of appeasement in the hope that the Communist world will relent, abandon its drive for global domination and decide to join us in a partnership designed to reduce world tensions.

The Berlin riots contain an important object lesson for American officials. In effect, they served notice on this government that the rights of West Berliners are not to be tampered with in any negotiation with the Russians on the question of Berlin.

I suggest that the Kennedy administration would do well to read the Berlin riots correctly and move swiftly to correct the impression that our only purpose in Berlin is the seeking of accommodation with the Communists.

Aid Cuts Or Not?

As long as foreign aid appropriations continue to be as big one year as they were the year before we might as well quit saying we are getting any foreign aid cuts, even if the amount proposed by the administration is trimmed a billion dollars or so.

So far the Kennedy administration has simply been asking for a vastly greater sum and then getting about what it wanted after the trimming has been done. We either have to cut down below what we spent the year before or we are not reducing this spending. Simply chopping down a big request, if the request is bloated for the purpose of allowing for cuts, accomplishes nothing.

Some members of congress are ready and anxious to slash the foreign aid bill to the bone but a good many of them are well enough pleased to see this big item in the budget trimmed just about enough to bring it down to where it was last year. President Kennedy this year is asking a billion dollars more than he got last year, so a billion dollar trim amounts to nothing, merely bringing it down to last year's size.

One commentator says that despite Kennedy's much-publicized victory in this year's foreign aid battle, the fact is that this was only the first round. As usual, the big fight will come on the appropriation bill.

Otto Passman, Louisiana's fifth district congressman, is chairman of the house subcommittee on foreign aid appropriations. He is strongly opposed to the amount and the way the program is operated. The man who aided Passman's appointment to this key committee was Clarence Cannon, D., Mo., who helps to mastermind foreign aid opposition in the house.

Present strategy, according to insiders, is to stretch out hearings and hold back the money bill until the last possible minute. The first five weeks of hearings covered only the continent of Africa. By the stretch-out, Cannon and Passman figure the senate appropriations committee won't have time to hold hearings and thus won't have debate ammunition.

Inside betting is that the final bill will be down 15 to 20 per cent from what Kennedy asked. It's an even surer bet that if the cut is no larger than that Kennedy will be getting what he wanted because he surely would ask for at least 20 per cent more than he expected to get.

The Passman-Cannon goal this year is to chop $2 billion out of the $4.6 billion authorization. If they can do that we can say the foreign aid bill has been cut. If it's only 20 per cent down from Kennedy's asking figure we'll know we are getting nowhere, despite the commendable efforts of Mr. Passman.

Broken Leg Good Luck

Those who hold to the theory that everything works out for the best apparently are able to find some confirmation in the case in which indomitable Sir Winston Churchill, wartime premier of Great Britain, suffered a broken thigh bone some three months ago. Churchill's stay in a hospital seems to have done him so much good that he is livelier, more cheerful and more alert than he had been for quite a while before the accident.

When Churchill left the hospital a couple of weeks ago after 54 days of treatment many were shocked at his drawn face. They needn't have been.

Several days ago, on one of the great anniversaries of his extraordinary life, Sir Winston was reported by a close friend to be in better shape mentally and physically than he had been for years.

"He's the old Winston," the friend enthused. "Full of dry wit and pungent comment. I haven't heard him talking with such zest about political and social affairs for far too long a time."

To what does he attribute this noteworthy improvement in Sir Winston?

"I think the stay in the hospital did it," the friend said. "They watched his diet, they cut down on his cigars and so on—especially the so on" (brandy).

Churchill is still the grand old man of World War II and the only one of the big three (the United States, England and Russia) leaders who is still alive.

There may be a moral in this. Joseph Stalin of Russia was committed to a course of aggression, as is Nikita Khrushchev today. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was president of the United States, was committed to a course of appeasing Russia, as is President John F. Kennedy. Churchill was and is committed to a course of individual freedom, which is what most of the people in the world today want.

The man who followed the democratic course has survived the longest. Some will regard this as symbolic.

New Nation Arising?

Bitter enemies for centuries, Germany and France may be forming the nucleus from which a United States of Europe will emerge to become one of the most powerful nations of the world.

"Permanent friendship between Germany and France has become a reality."

Those words were spoken by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany in a television speech in which he said a major goal sought by himself and President Charles de Gaulle of France had been reached. De Gaulle's visit to Bonn will have great historical significance, Adenauer added.

The West German chancellor asserted the two words "France" and "Germany" embodied much greatness and brilliance but also much misery and suffering. Now the time is ripe," he said, "for both nations to set a common aim.

"We want to lead a life in peace and freedom which corresponds to Europe's rank and which is worthy of the people."

Development of the European Common Market, in which the people of France and Germany will be merged industrially, economically, spirtually and physically, along with the people of some other nations, promises to bring about a new national vitality and virility unequalled by any nation since the rise (and possible decline) of the United States of America.

There are many in the United States who are beginning to wonder if President Kennedy's policy of appeasing Russia will be a means of turning over to the new United States of Europe the task of saving the world from communistic conquest and directing it toward free enterprise, democracy and individual freedom. That would be a strange turn of events but it could happen.

If it does, maybe the foreign aid we have poured into Europe at a rate which makes that continent potentially greater industrially than the United States will have been well spent.

Writes To President

To the Editor:

The following letter was sent to President Kennedy by Kent Courtney, national chairman of the Conservative Society of America:

New Orleans, La.

Honorable John F. Kennedy
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

I respectfully address you concerning the subject of the Communist invasion of Cuba. Former high - ranking Cubans, have been reporting a Communist build-up in Cuba for at least the past year. Now that the subject is on the front pages, and now that the entire world knows that the Russians are openly sending machines and materials of war by means of, literally, fleets of Russian supply ships, millions of Americans are acutely aware that the time for resolute action is at hand.

As National Chairman of the Conservative Society of America, which organization is dedicated to the preservation of our national sovereignty, I respectfully make the following suggestions concerning the conduct of our foreign policy, and with special consideration for the need to enforce the Monroe Doctrine by all the legal, constitutional and honorable means at our disposal.

I submit that it will not be necessary to invade the island of Cuba in order to prevent any further build-up of Communist Russia or Communist Chinese power on the island of Cuba.

In order to protect our national sovereignty, in order to carry out our historical committments under the Monroe Doctrine, in order to protect the Nation itself from possible attack by Communist long and medium range missiles, we should immediately set up a complete blockade around and above the island of Cuba in order to isolate the gangster Communist agents which have infiltrated that island, part of which is less than 100 miles from the continental United States.

What I am proposing is that you order a wall of steel to be build around Cuba. The United States government has every legal right under International Law and every moral right, to erect a wall of steel composed of ships of the U. S. Navy and an impenetrable curtain of military air power around and over the island of Cuba.

We need apologize to no one, because we should be doing this on the basis of our own national survival, as well as our commitments to all countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The U. S. Government as the most powerful nation in the world is committed to protect the Western Hemisphere from invasion, intrusion or interference by any foreign power.

There is no danger of starting a third World War, because there is no need to invade the island of Cuba.

A tight blockade by sea and by air will prohibit any additional build - up of Soviet arms or technicians on the island of Cuba. A publicly announced blockade of this sort will immediately cause any Communist ship, plane or submarine, which tries to break the blockade to be labeled as an aggressor.

The subjudated people of Cuba will greet the announcement of such a blockade with feelings of gratitude and joy. The announcement of such a blockade will have a dual reaction, first it will declare to the Soviet press around the world our determination to work for freedom in Cuba, but second and far more important, the free people of the world, as well as all the prisoners behind the Iron Curtain, will respect the strength and integrity of the United States of America.

Another result of this firm action by you will be to enhance your own image and will restore America to the position of moral leadership, which it seems to have lost in recent years.

By the establishment of this blockade, you can serve notice on the entire Soviet - dominated world that the United States believes in the self - determination of nations, and that we will help all of the nations of the world throw off the yoke of Soviet gangsterism, which is now parading under the false name of freedom and liberation.

Russia did not hesitate to erect a wall in Berlin to prevent their slaves from escaping, therefore, the U. S. Government should not hesitate to erect a Cordon Sanitare around the island of Cuba in order to isolate the 'cancer of Communism.

Units of the U. S. Fleet and aircraft from Army installations in Florida could easily prevent the coming or going of any of the agents of the Communist conspiracy by air or sea.

The presence of large numbers of Communist Chinese, Communist Russians and other personnel from Iron Curtain countries has been reported from many reliable sources, and because of this continued brazen Communist build-up, American prestige throughout the free world has fallen to an all - time low.

As soon as this naval and air blockade is established, television and radio stations broadcasting from U. S. Navy units ringing the island of Cuba can inform the Cuban people that this blockade will continue until such time as they can destroy the power of the International Communist legions in Cuba. At this point, psychological warfare of the most effective type can be used by instructing the anti-Communist Cubans to capture Russian and Chinese Communists on the island and turn them over in small groups to our base at Guatanamo. We can then have this group of Russian Communists transported to the United Nations in New York City, and ask that a similar sized group of Americans now being held by the Soviet Union to be turned over to us in an exchange of prisoners under full publicity of the world press gathered in New York City. Other exchanges of Russians received from the Cubans, can be effected in various Capitols of Europe in order to exploit the propaganda value of of our strong anti - Communist position.

Reports have been coming out of Cuba for several months that large numbers of Communist Chinese are also on the island of Cuba. When the Cubans turn these over to us, we can transport these Communist Chinese to Korea for the purpose of obtaining the release of 450 Americans, who have been held captive by the Red Chinese since the end of the Korean War. The propaganda value of these exchanges of prisoners would accrue entirely to us, because we would be taking a strong moral position. As soon as all the Russian and Chinese Communists have been traded off for American prisoners held by Russia and China, the United States Government should offer its good offices to maintain order on the island of Cuba, until such time as Cuba can be re-built, and until such time as Cuban constitutional guaranties can be established.

Mr. President, I respectfully urge you to seriously consider the powerful benefits, which will accrue to you and to our Nation, if we should follow the course outlined in this letter.

Sincerely yours,
Kent Courtney,
National Chairman

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Venus.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Virgo.

On this day in history:

In 1776, the term United States was made official by the Second Continental Congress.

In 1850, California was admitted to the Union as the 31st state.

In 1945, some one-million Japanese soldiers surrendered in Nanking, China.

A thought for the day: U.S. Gen. Douglas MacArthur said: "It is fatal to enter any war without the will to win it."

World Spotlight; A Look Behind the Headlines

U. S. Problems Are Listed

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Nearly four years after the first Soviet Sputnik, the United States is still trailing on space points. Here's a fresh assessment of the problem and its prospects.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The history of the space race is essentially an account of spectacular Soviet accomplishments and many lesser U.S. scientific achievements accompanied by glittering promises.

These promises of great things to come often have gone hand-in-hand with explanations of why the United States lags behind the Soviet Union.

That the United States is second in the space race was freely admitted by President Kennedy at his Aug. 22 news conference.

Kennedy also expressed belief that before the present decade lapses this country will have overtaken and surpassed the Soviets.

LAUNCHED

On Aug. 11 the Soviets launched Maj. Andrian G. Nikolayev on a 95-hour orbit around the earth. This was followed in 24 hours by the launching of Lt. Col. Pavel R. Popovich on a 71-hour space ride.

The Soviet feat was made possible by the use of boosters with more than twice the thrust capacity of those in operational use by the United States.

The United States clearly is now in no position to duplicate the flights of the two Soviet officers—and won't be for some time.

So, in view of President Kennedy's statement, the question is whether the United States really can catch up with the Soviet Union in this decade.

A secondary question is: "Why is the nation behind?"

While there is a vast distance between possibility and probability, the fact remains that it is possible for the United States to catch up. The space race is much more than a matter of which nation currently has the larger boosters.

The acceleration of the U.S. man-in-space program, which only began in a definitive fashion in the spring of 1958, has been extraordinary despite others who say that much more could be done.

SPEEDUP

This speed-up has been accompanied by the equally swift growth of a huge bureaucracy scattered from one end of the nation to the other.

So there may be danger that the impetus gained over the past 4½ years may become bogged down amid mountains of paper.

At the outset the U.S. space program was not a planned thing. It "just growed," like Topsy, often under the pressure of Soviet achievements but with no real sense of urgency, firm timetable or budget.

When the Soviet Union launched Sputnik I in October 1957, the initial reaction from the White House as relayed by James C. Hagerty, former press secretary to ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was one of interest but no particular concern.

Asked what the Soviet achievement would do to the U.S. program Hagerty replied, "Not a thing." He said the United States has "never thought of our program as one which was in a race with the Soviets."

Charles E. Wilson, then defense secretary, called Sputnik "a nice scientific trick."

The first time the United States officially admitted a race was under way in which the nation's industrial and scientific prestige was involved came in 1961 at Kennedy's inauguration.

Thereafter the nation had a specific goal: a landing on the moon before the end of the 1960s.

Earlier, Eisenhower had removed the program from the primary control of the military and gave it to a new civilian agency.

The key to the space race, then and now, is a big booster.

Until 1958 the military alone had the monetary resources and manpower to develop boosters, albeit they wasted considerable time, money and talent in inter-service competition, according to critics.

NOT INTERESTED

In 1958 the military were simply not interested in boosters larger than those needed to deliver a warhead from the United States to a target in the Soviet Union and still aren't to any great extent.

Wernher von Braun, German-born rocket expert and director of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala., is the one man, more than any other, charged with matching the Soviet Union in the field of big boosters.

Von Braun was asked by The Associated Press why he thought the United States had a chance to reach the moon ahead of the Russians.

He said: "This twin orbit demonstration is not proof that they are near their obvious goal of manned lunar landings.

"It will require space vehicles much larger than those now in use by the U.S.S.R. to land people on the moon and bring them safely back to earth.

"We have reason to believe that the vehicles used by the Russians have a first-stage thrust of 800,000 to one million pounds. We do not think the U.S.S.R. has launched rockets, even on an experimental basis, with thrust greater than this.

"The Russians have an active booster program so it is likely they are working on rockets bigger than the ones they now use.

"So is this country. We have already launched two Saturn C-1s with first-stage thrust of 1.3 million pounds in a program leading to operational use of a C-1 having a 1.5 million pounds in late 1964. We are working on the Saturn C-5 with 7.5 million pounds of thrust in the first stage. It should be fired in 1965 and become operational in 1967.

"As vital as boosters are, they must be coupled with advances in other fields in order to explore the moon. For instance, we have to develop reliable systems with the capacity to support life for several weeks.

"New re-entry techniques must be perfected for no man has yet attempted to re-enter the earth's atmosphere at the 25,000-mile-per-hour speed which will be experienced by the returning moon explorers.

DEVELOP

"And we must develop means, largely automated, of checking out and launching a vehicle from the moon using only two men of the 200 to 300 who normally take part in such an exercise on earth.

"The United States is making remarkable progress in all these areas. These separate endeavors are destined to be funneled together to one point in time, one mission.

"I have no cause to doubt its ultimate success. Two years ago I told The Associated Press I thought we had a good fighting chance to do this before the Russians. I still do."

That leaves the question of why the United States has lagged behind the Soviet Union.

One of the explanations most wisely offered is that the successful minaturization of the hydrogen bomb in March 1954 made unnecessary a delivery system which used boosters the size of the Soviets'.

This was true. But it took no account of the question: What comes next?

Dr. Robert H. Goddard developed a liquid - fueled rocket in the 1920s, but the Army couldn't see any use for it as a weapon.

The first manned rocket flight took place on June 11, 1928, when a German civilian named Friedrich Stamer flew one mile in a glider powered by a 44-pound thrust rocket.

As far back as 1936, the revived German armed forces were experimenting with rockets, one with a thrust of 3,300 pounds.

In 1937 the Soviet Union disclosed it had established rocket test centers at Kazan, Moscow and Leningrad. During World War II the Soviets employed anti-aircraft rockets successfully.

The age of the big military booster arrived Sept. 8, 1944—the day the Germans launched V - 2 ballistic missiles against a suburb of Paris and against London.

In 1947, the year the cold war began, Soviet Premier Stalin told his Politburo he wanted a trans-atlantic rocket which "would make it easier to talk with the gentlemen shopkeeper, Harry Truman, and keep him pinned down where we want him."

While the Soviet Union went to work on missiles in a big way, the United States devoted more and more of its resources in money and material to the building of bombers. Missile development had a low priority.

FIRST STUDY

The first study of the feasibility of an intercontinental range ballistic missile (IRBM) was not completed until January, 1951. This project was to grow into the present 360,000 - pound thrust Atlas missile, first flight tested Dec. 17, 1957 — after Sputnik I.

The Atlas is still the workhorse of the U. S. space program.

The United States began studying the big booster problem in 1953, but the miniaturization of the H-bomb relegated this to deep freeze.

Though the Soviets had been talking about space flight since 1951, the United States did not remove its big booster study from storage until 1958.

Von Braun was given the big booster job that year. In October 1959 he complained: "We are losing time and that is one thing we can't buy back."

The announced budget for the big booster was $138 million. This was cut by the Pentagon to $70 million — with no public announcement.

Von Braun estimated the secret cut slowed the development program by one year.

Still, 1958 must go down as the year the United States finally began pulling itself together for a major space effort.

In mid - March 1958 President Eisenhower ordered the now disbanded National Advisory Committee for Aeronatutics (NACA) to begin a program involving flight in space.

While NACA had the bulk of the scientific information about space, the military had the boosters. The program was a "cooperative" affair with no firm hand at the top.

It wasn't until November 1958 that preliminary specifications were discussed for the development of a capsule to carry a man into orbit. In December there were 200 scientists and engineers at work on the project.

On July 29, 1958, the present National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) came into being, absorbing the old NACA. NASA opened for business on Sept. 30.

NASA has a headquarters in Washington, a West Coast liaison office and nine major research centers.

Within the agency there are 306 identifiable major scientific and administrative levels, each, of course, with subsections.

At the moment NASA has a payroll of 21,880 persons and expects this to grow to 26,274 in 1963. The current budget is $1.8 billion. In 1963 the budget will climb to $3.8 billion — a galloping increase over the 1961 budget of $964 million.

Obviously, the United States is making a huge effort to put its space effort into a go condition from a late start.

CAMBODIANS gather at shoreline of the two-way flowing Tonle Sap River at the capital city of Phnom Penh, Cambodia's six million citizens seem primarily content to fish and farm and leave politics to their leader, Prince Norodon Sihanouk, whose favorite sport is discomforting the great powers. Planes Bring Supplies To Congo Areas

United Nations Sends Doctors And Medicine

By PETER GROSE

SHABUNDA, the Congo (AP)—Four chiefs in feathers and beads rushed to the jungle clearing at the head of their Warega tribe citizenry to welcome the white United Nations airplane to this outpost in the wilds of Kivu Province.

It brought in a new World Health Organization doctor for the bush hospital. There was mail from the outside world, including a package for a nun at the Catholic mission from her brother in the provincial capital of Bukavu.

Also on board were several bags of cement for a village building.

This is one instance of the United Nations lifeline to the interior, the reality of the U.N. presence in the Congo behind all the abstract politics and high-level palaver.

Deliberations of the General Assembly don't matter here—what matters is that U.N. experts are on hand to operate basic public services for the ordinary people.

Villagers and missionaries from miles around converged at the grass landing strip, smiling and waving as soon as they heard the C47's motors.

MEDICINE

The doctor brought 600 pounds of medicine and supplies for emergency operations—only the night before twins had been born in town by Caesarian operation under a fading gas lamp.

A breathless American missionary of 34 years' work in the Congo recognized the American accent of a reporter among the new visitors. She pushed through the crowd to embrace him gustily.

"This man is from my village," she cried in Swahili to the delighted mob of children around her so they could join in her excitement.

The missionary, Miss Helen Hoffman, was from Pittsburgh and the journalist from Tucson, Ariz., but from the remoteness of Shabunda just about anywhere in the United States is the same village.

Every day somewhere in the Congo this experience is repeated, as tough military and civilian pilots fly their U.N. missions into areas untouched by any government or central administration.

It's part of U.N. civilian operations, the vital task of keeping everyday life going.

In a vast nation the size of all Western Europe, the U.N. effort sometime seems merely to scratch the surface, but without it there would be next to nothing.

The United Nations is supplying 500 secondary school teachers and transporting returning Belgian teachers to bush schools.

Agriculture experts are flown in to restore rundown farms and get the food supplies back up to pre-independence level.

In Kivu late last year the cotton crop nearly failed simply because the banks had no hard cash to advance to prospective buyers. The United Nations flew in millions of Congolese francs to tide the area over the breakdown in national banking facilities.

Thirty tons of automobile spare parts have been flown into Oriental Province to restore road transport. The Kivu fruit and vegetable crop last year rotted at the farms because there were no trucks available in working order to take it to market.

To supervise the civilian operations, the United Nations has an international team of 454 technicians from 42 countries. Largest contingents are from France, Haiti, Spain and Italy.

The whole program is remote from politics. Its budget is separate from the U.N. Congo force assessment, and while the latter is deep in debt the civilian operations balance sheet is in the black. This year over $14 million is being spent for technical assistance.

The Congo government itself is the second largest contributor, after the United States, for it sees that the trained U.N. staff can manage public services far beyond the capabilities of native Congolese functionaries.

"We no longer have trouble recruiting foreign experts to work in the bush," said one of the chief civilian operations administrators in Leopoldville. "Security seems assured in most areas by now—as it was not earlier this year—and therefore people are eager to come from abroad."

East And West Hold Stakes In Cambodia

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia — a dreamy land where peasants pull fish out of trees, the chief of state (ex-king) proclaims policy while clad in gym clothes and a river flows seasonally in opposite directions—as the world's great powers are held by the diplomatic tails.

The United States, the Soviet Union and Red China all have important stakes in neutralist Cambodia. They have paid for their toeholds in money, goods, arms. Each is willing to pay more to woo Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his six million subjects.

What the powers are vying over is a comfortable little country that is never likely to starve.

Fish are so plentiful in rivers, canals, tributaries and lakes that they literally leap into nets and can easily be plucked from the water by hand. Waters recede so quickly at the end of the rainy season that fish sometimes are stranded in trees and bushes that had been submerged.

OFTEN FLOODS

The Mekong River floods that often ravage neighboring Viet Nam scarcely touch Cambodia, thanks to the two-way Tonle Sap River. As the Mekong swells, most of the overflow is taken up by the Tonle Sap and fed into the Great Lake, a natural reservoir. As the Mekong recedes, the lake discharges back into the Mekong via the Tonle Sap and lake fish may be harvested with pitchforks.

Communism and anti-communism have little meaning for the Cambodian peasant. A U.S. official in Phnom Penh recently hired a Cambodian servant whose last job had been with a Communist embassy. The servant was surprised when the American family did not observe a Communist holiday.

"I thought all Westerners were Communists," he said. "Well, it doesn't matter."

The Cambodian peasant is content to fish and farm and leave the politicking to Sihanouk, their beloved and virtually unchallenged chief of state. With some foreign assistance, he has brought his country real advances in economy, education and health standards.

Sihanouk's popularity is almost absolute. And he is seldom far away. His helicopter or car may appear unexpectedly anywhere in the countryside. Peasants emerge from the fields and their picturesque homes atop stilts for a chat with the prince.

He may only inquire about crops or local problems. Or he may deliver a high-pitched impromptu policy address lasting several hours.

His candor with his subjects, whom he always addresses as "my children," extends even to his family. He has warned Cambodian families against the wayward habits of one of his sons with a well-known eye for the ladies.

When Sihanouk captains the palace volleyball, soccer or basketball teams in a match, the public is always invited. Some times his team even loses. Afterward, he often holds impromptu public press conferences, buffet suppers and dances.

TOP SPORT

But possibly Sihanouk's favorite sport is discomfiting the great powers, knowing that much of his country's influence depends on his playing East against West. The powers put up with it because of what might be gained.

A Cambodian tip to the West could create a solid anti-Communist belt across the southern end of Indochina. A tip to the Communists might split Indochina down the middle and put Red Chinese troops on the borders of pro-Western Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk has threatened to call in the Communist Chinese unless the West agrees to his latest proposal. He wants an 11-nation conference along the lines of the Geneva conference on Laos which would guarantee Cambodian neutrality.

The Communists quickly endorsed the proposal. The United States is hesistant, however, because such a conference would be aimed primarily at Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk has accused both countries of repeated incursions into Cambodian territory. Cambodia and Thailand have already severed diplomatic ties over a border dispute involving a temple. South Viet Nam's war against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas has spilled over the Cambodian border on occasion.

Sihanouk is deadly serious about wanting this stopped, and has said he will call on Communist armed forces to protect his borders if the West won't. Despite his periodic overtures to the Red bloc, Sihanouk has proved no friend to the Communists at home, jailing virtually all their leaders.

And despite Cambodia's crackling feuds with South Viet Nam and Thailand, the most serious threat to Cambodia is that of Communist infiltration from abroad. Cambodian sources said 200 Communist North Vietnamese guerrilla agents are in training for infiltration into Cambodia.

To give his 29,000-man armed forces more muscle, Sihanouk has asked the United States for enough new aid to equip two new battalions. He'll no doubt get it.

Although they often are targets of Sihanouk's pungent wit and constant political maneuvering, American officials in Phnom Penh feel the unpredictable prince is a major force for peace in Indochina.

"In any case," one said, "Cambodia is Sihanouk. Without him there would be chaos. He may not be an active ally but he is not an enemy either. As long as it stays that way we'll be all right."

OUTCOME OF brewing storm among Arabs in the Middle East will depend on United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser who has maneuvered against Iraqi Premier Abdel Kassem; broken with Yemen's King Iman Ahmed; sharpened his attacks on King Hussein of Jordan and staged propaganda attacks on throne of King Saud of Saudi Arabia. New Storm Brewing

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A new storm is building up among Arabs in Middle East.

At its most violent, it could topple governments and cause bloodshed. Or it could turn out to be merely another epic wind of words and gestures.

The outcome will depend mainly on President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the influence he can exert on the Arab masses.

Egypt's walkout from the Arab League meeting in Shtaura, Lebanon, was a storm warning. Nasser is dropping any pretense of dealing with other Arab governments in the league's polite channels. He is taking off the gloves and going to work more than ever directly with the people — if necessary against their governments.

It's an axiom that Nasser never goes on the defensive. Syria's successful breakaway from his United Arab Republic one year ago hurt him but did not cost him his popularity with the Arab man on the street.

He reacted by intensifying his drive for a kind of national socialism in Egypt and by abandoning the facade of friendship with what he considers the Arab world's reactionary regimes.

In the past year, Cairo has broken with medieval Yemen's ruling iman, gone all-out in a propaganda offensive against the oil - rich Saudi Arabian throne, and sharpened his attacks on Jordan's young King Hussein.

At the same time Nasser has maneuvered against Iraq's Premier Abdel Kerim Kassem — who boycotts the Arab League because of its acceptance of Kuwait in defiance of Iraqi claims of ownership.

RIVALRIES

All these rivalries cut down Nasser's onetime dominance of the league. With his opponents lining up against him, and new North African Arab states showing more independence in Arab affairs, Nasser found the league no longer his instrument.

Syria brought the matter to a head by calling the Shtaura meeting to accuse Nasser of urging Syrians to revolt. Once in the meeting, it pulled out the Arab world's most deadly accusation — accusing Nasser of collaborating with the United States to work out peace with Israel.

At that, the Cairo delegates walked out and threatened never to return.

In Cairo, Nasser has formed rudiments of the Arab People's League, aimed at appealing directly to the Arab masses over the heads of their governments. One of the world's great propaganda mediums, the Voice of Arabs Radio, has stepped up its potent campaigns against his enemies.

Syria has come out fighting, replying to Nasser in kind. Aided by the defection of the U.A.R. military attache at Beirut, it has set up a Free Egypt Committee, aimed at toppling the Cairo leader.

The kinds of Jordan and Saudi Arabia, forgetting their old tribal rivalries, have proclaimed plans for a military and trade union.

Thus, the Arab world is choosing up sides. Standing anxiously aside are the neutrals and mediators, Lebanon, Kuwait and the African Arab states.

The propaganda lightning is striking in several directions but the storm center will be Cairo.

Red China Meddling In Colony Of Macao

By RONNIE WEI

MACAO (AP)—Red China has a finger in practically every pie in this sleepy little Portuguese colony off the China Coast.

It even takes a cut on the illegal refugee traffic between Macao and the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong.

Officially Peiping has nothing to do with the smuggling of refugees from Macao to Hong Kong.

But the way the system works is an open secret. Several smugglers explained it to an Associated Press correspondent.

Many of the smugglers are associated with established travel agencies in Macao. Some of them operate as independent agents themselves.

MOST AGENTS

The most successful agents are registered with an official travel agency in Canton, across the border in Communist China.

This agency works with the security section of the Canton police department, which issues exit visas permitting Chinese to leave Red China.

Up until this year, exit permits were rarely issued and then only to the sick and aged. Since Jan. 1, however, more than 60,000 visas have been issued as part of a new policy apparently aimed at relieving the pressure on inadequate food supplies, and to remove malcontents.

Macao has no restrictions on immigration from China. Many Chinese leaving China, however, have no entry visas for Hong Kong or any other foreign point beyond Macao.

"The official travel agency in Canton usually recommends a specific travel agency in Macao for what is described as 'onward bookings' beyond Macao," one of the smugglers said.

"These recommended travel agencies in Macao are required to maintain a deposit of $1,000 with the Canton agency which charges $5 for each refugee recommended to a Macao agency."

"Onward bookings," usually to Hong Kong, are arranged by Macao agencies which have more than 50 motorized fishing junks.

Fares, based on sex, age and dialect spoken, range from $30 to $200. These are collected from friends or relatives in Hong Kong. The refugees themselves can take out of China only the equivalent of $1.40 if they are heading for Hong Kong, or 17 cents if they are stopping at Macao.

Macao smugglers have their own "code of morality."

COLLECT FARES

They collect fares only after the refugees have safely landed and made contact with relatives or friends in Hong Kong.

If a refugee trying to enter Hong Kong illegally is intercepted by British authorities and deported to Macao after serving a jail sentence, the Macao smugglers consider themselves obliged to smuggle him to the British colony again—free of charge.

Just how much the Chinese Communists have collected from the Macao smugglers is anybody's guess.

Social welfare workers say most of the 60,000 refugees from Red China who reached this Portuguese colony this year with Communist exit permits have gone on to prosperous Hong Kong through the recommendation of the Canton travel agency.

The usually quiet Macao waterfront is dotted with agencies. Some serve as hostels for refugees. They even provide recreation in the form of mahjong games. The refugees are permitted to settle their mahjong debts after they reach Hong Kong, where jobs are comparatively easy to find.

EVERY NIGHT

Every night at Black Sand Bay, some 50 yards from Communist China, hundreds of refugees in dark clothes wade through shallow muddy water to board motorized junks headed for Hong Kong.

The refugees are packed tight below decks. The trip takes about 10 hours.

The smugglers figure the chances at only 1 out of 20 they will be arrested by the British police.

One young refugee student said before sailing for Hong Kong: "The odds are not bad at all. In Communist China one out of every two students is sent to the countryside for back-bending labor."

The agencies in Macao insist they are smuggling refugees at least partly for humanitarian reasons.

One smuggler quoted a Chinese Communist official as saying: "We want them (refugees) to unite with their families in Hong Kong as soon as possible. We collect $5 for each customer we recommend because New China is in a period of difficulties. As soon as we have a good harvest we will do it free of charge."

The spokesman of an established agency said, "Legally, smuggling of refugees to Hong Kong is wrong. But morally, it is not only right but commendable."

"These refugees left Communist China because they were hungry. What can they do in Macao? For a nominal fee we help them enter Hong Kong where they can begin a new life."

Dr. Robert H. Goddard developed a liquid - fueled rocket in the 1920s, but the Army couldn't see any use for it as a weapon.

The first manned rocket flight took place on June 11, 1928, when a German civilian named Friedrich Stamer flew one mile in a glider powered by a 44-pound thrust rocket.

As far back as 1936, the revived German armed forces were experimenting with rockets, one with a thrust of 3,300 pounds.

In 1937 the Soviet Union disclosed it had established rocket test centers at Kazan, Moscow and Leningrad. During World War II the Soviets employed anti-aircraft rockets successfully.

The age of the big military booster arrived Sept. 8, 1944—the day the Germans launched V - 2 ballistic missiles against a suburb of Paris and against London.

In 1947, the year the cold war began, Soviet Premier Stalin told his Politburo he wanted a trans-atlantic rocket which "would make it easier to talk with the gentlemen shopkeeper, Harry Truman, and keep him pinned down where we want him."

While the Soviet Union went to work on missiles in a big way, the United States devoted more and more of its resources in money and material to the building of bombers. Missile development had a low priority.

FIRST STUDY

The first study of the feasibility of an intercontinental range ballistic missile (IRBM) was not completed until January, 1951. This project was to grow into the present 360,000 - pound thrust Atlas missile, first flight tested Dec. 17, 1957 — after Sputnik I.

The Atlas is still the workhorse of the U. S. space program.

The United States began studying the big booster problem in 1953, but the miniaturization of the H-bomb relegated this to deep freeze.

Though the Soviets had been talking about space flight since 1951, the United States did not remove its big booster study from storage until 1958.

Von Braun was given the big booster job that year. In October 1959 he complained: "We are losing time and that is one thing we can't buy back."

The announced budget for the big booster was $138 million. This was cut by the Pentagon to $70 million — with no public announcement.

Von Braun estimated the secret cut slowed the development program by one year.

Still, 1958 must go down as the year the United States finally began pulling itself together for a major space effort.

In mid - March 1958 President Eisenhower ordered the now disbanded National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (NACA) to begin a program involving flight in space.

While NACA had the bulk of the scientific information about space, the military had the boosters. The program was a "cooperative" affair with no firm hand at the top.

It wasn't until November 1958 that preliminary specifications were discussed for the development of a capsule to carry a man into orbit. In December there were 200 scientists and engineers at work on the project.

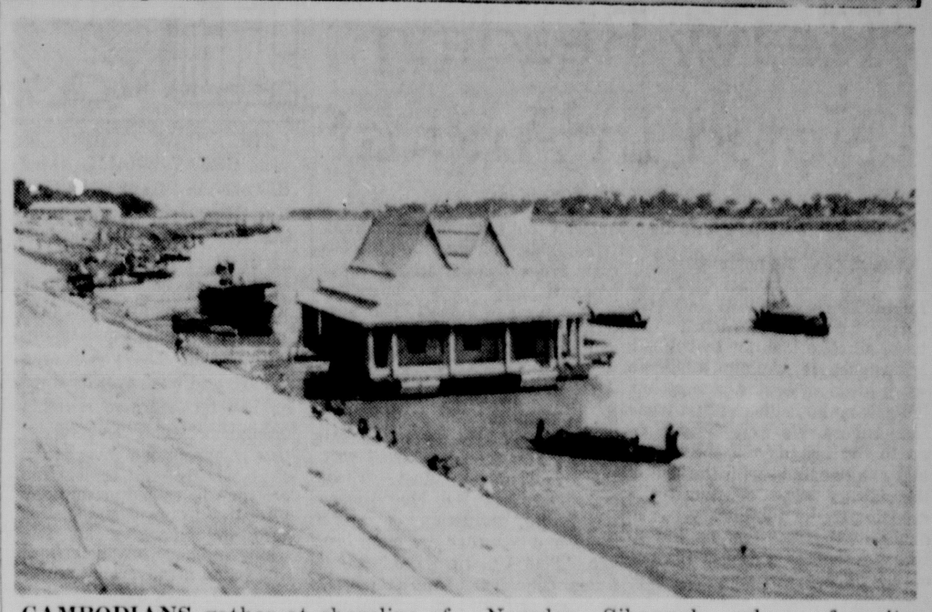
On July 29, 1958, the present National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) came into being, absorbing the old NACA. NASA opened for business on Sept. 30.

NASA has a headquarters in Washington, a West Coast liaison office and nine major research centers.

Within the agency there are 308 identifiable major scientific and administrative levels, each, of course, with subsections.

At the moment NASA has a payroll of 21,880 persons and expects this to grow to 26,274 in 1963. The current budget is $1.8 billion. In 1963 the budget will climb to $3.8 billion — a galloping increase over the 1961 budget of $964 million.

Obviously, the United States is making a huge effort to put its space effort into a go condition from a late start.



CAMBODIANS gather at shoreline of the two-way flowing Tonle Sap River at the capital city of Phnom Penh, Cammodia's six million citizens seem primarily content to fish and farm and leave politics to their leader, Prince Norodon Sihanouk, whose favorite sport is discomforting the great powers. The United States, Soviet and Red China all are wooing neutralist Sihanouk with money, goods or arms. (AP Wirephoto)

Planes Bring Supplies To Congo Areas

United Nations Sends Doctors And Medicine

By PETER GROSE

SHABUNDA, the Congo (AP)—Four chiefs in feathers and beads rushed to the jungle clearing at the head of their Warega tribe citizenry to welcome the white United Nations airplane to this outpost in the wilds of Kivu Province.

It brought in a new World Health Organization doctor for the bush hospital. There was mail from the outside world, including a package for a nun at the Catholic mission from her brother in the provincial capital of Bukavu.

Also on board were several bags of cement for a village building.

This is one instance of the United Nations lifeline to the interior, the reality of the U.N. presence in the Congo behind all the abstract politics and high-level palaver.

Deliberations of the General Assembly don't matter here—what matters is that U.N. experts are on hand to operate basic public services for the ordinary people.

Villagers and missionaries from miles around converged at the grass landing strip, smiling and waving as soon as they heard the C47's motors.

MEDICINE

The doctor brought 600 pounds of medicine and supplies for emergency operations—only the night before twins had been born in town by Caesarian operation under a fading gas lamp.

A breathless American missionary of 34 years' work in the Congo recognized the American accent of a reporter among the new visitors. She pushed through the crowd to embrace him gustily.

"This man is from my village," she cried in Swahili to the delighted mob of children around her so they could join in her excitement.

The missionary, Miss Helen Hoffman, was from Pittsburgh and the journalist from Tucson, Ariz., but from the remoteness of Shabunda just about anywhere in the United States is the same village.

Every day somewhere in the Congo this experience is repeated, as tough military and civilian pilots fly their U.N. missions into areas untouched by any government or central administration.

It's part of U.N. civilian operations, the vital task of keeping everyday life going.

In a vast nation the size of all Western Europe, the U.N. effort sometime seems merely to scratch the surface, but without it there would be next to nothing.

The United Nations is supplying 500 secondary school teachers and transporting returning Belgian teachers to bush schools.

Agriculture experts are flown in to restore rundown farms and get the food supplies back up to pre-independence level.

In Kivu late last year the cotton crop nearly failed simply because the banks had no hard cash to advance to prospective buyers. The United Nations flew in millions of Congolese francs to tide the area over the breakdown in national banking facilities.

Thirty tons of automobile spare parts have been flown into Oriental Province to restore road transport. The Kivu fruit and vegetable crop last year rotted at the farms because there were no trucks available in working order to take it to market.

To supervise the civilian operations, the United Nations has an international team of 454 technicians from 42 countries. Largest contingents are from France, Haiti, Spain and Italy.

The whole program is remote from politics. Its budget is separate from the U.N. Congo force assessment, and while the latter is deep in debt the civilian operations balance sheet is in the black. This year over $14 million is being spent for technical assistance.

The Congo government itself is the second largest contributor, after the United States, for it sees that the trained U.N. staff can manage public services far beyond the capabilities of native Congolese functionaries.

"We no longer have trouble recruiting foreign experts to work in the bush," said one of the chief civilian operations administrators in Leopoldville. "Security seems assured in most areas by now—as it was not earlier this year—and therefore people are eager to come from abroad."

East And West Hold Stakes In Cambodia

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia — a dreamy land where peasants pull fish out of trees, the chief of state (ex-king) proclaims policy while clad in gym clothes and a river flows seasonally in opposite directions—as the world's great powers are held by the diplomatic tails.

The United States, the Soviet Union and Red China all have important stakes in neutralist Cambodia. They have paid for their toeholds in money, goods, arms. Each is willing to pay more to woo Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his six million subjects.

What the powers are vying over is a comfortable little country that is never likely to starve.

Fish are so plentiful in rivers, canals, tributaries and lakes that they literally leap into nets and can easily be plucked from the water by hand. Waters recede so quickly at the end of the rainy season that fish sometimes are stranded in trees and bushes that had been submerged.

OFTEN FLOODS

The Mekong River floods that often ravage neighboring Viet Nam scarcely touch Cambodia, thanks to the two-way Tonle Sap River. As the Mekong swells, most of the overflow is taken up by the Tonle Sap and fed into the Great Lake, a natural reservoir. As the Mekong recedes, the lake discharges back into the Mekong via the Tonle Sap and lake fish may be harvested with pitchforks.

Communism and anti-communism have little meaning for the Cambodian peasant. A U.S. official in Phnom Penh recently hired a Cambodian servant whose last job had been with a Communist embassy. The servant was surprised when the American family did not observe a Communist holiday.

"I thought all Westerners were Communists," he said. "Well, it doesn't matter."

The Cambodian peasant is content to fish and farm and leave the politicking to Sihanouk, their beloved and virtually unchallenged chief of state. With some foreign assistance, he has brought his country real advances in economy, education and health standards.

Sihanouk's popularity is almost absolute. And he is seldom far away. His helicopter or car may appear unexpectedly anywhere in the countryside. Peasants emerge from the fields and their picturesque homes atop stilts for a chat with the prince.

He may only inquire about crops or local problems. Or he may deliver a high-pitched impromptu policy address lasting several hours.

His candor with his subjects, whom he always addresses as "my children," extends even to his family. He has warned Cambodian families against the wayward habits of one of his sons with a well-known eye for the ladies.

When Sihanouk captains the palace volleyball, soccer or basketball teams in a match, the public is always invited. Some times his team even loses. Afterward, he often holds impromptu public press conferences, buffet suppers and dances.

TOP SPORT

But possibly Sihanouk's favorite sport is discomfiting the great powers, knowing that much of his country's influence depends on his playing East against West. The powers put up with it because of what might be gained.

A Cambodian tip to the West could create a solid anti-Communist belt across the southern end of Indochina. A tip to the Communists might split Indochina down the middle and put Red Chinese troops on the borders of pro-Western Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk has threatened to call in the Communist Chinese unless the West agrees to his latest proposal. He wants an 11-nation conference along the lines of the Geneva conference on Laos which would guarantee Cambodian neutrality.

The Communists quickly endorsed the proposal. The United States is hesistant, however, because such a conference would be aimed primarily at Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk has accused both countries of repeated incursions into Cambodian territory. Cambodia and Thailand have already severed diplomatic ties over a border dispute involving a temple. South Viet Nam's war against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas has spilled over the Cambodian border on occasion.

Sihanouk is deadly serious about wanting this stopped, and has said he will call on Communist armed forces to protect his borders if the West won't. Despite his periodic overtures to the Red bloc, Sihanouk has proved no friend to the Communists at home, jailing virtually all their leaders.

And despite Cambodia's crackling feuds with South Viet Nam and Thailand, the most serious threat to Cambodia is that of Communist infiltration from abroad. Cambodian sources said 200 Communist North Vietnamese guerrilla agents are in training for infiltration into Cambodia.

To give his 29,000-man armed forces more muscle, Sihanouk has asked the United States for enough new aid to equip two new battalions. He'll no doubt get it.

Although they often are targets of Sihanouk's pungent wit and constant political maneuvering, American officials in Phnom Penh feel the unpredictable prince is a major force for peace in Indochina.

"In any case," one said, "Cambodia is Sihanouk. Without him there would be chaos. He may not be an active ally but he is not an enemy either. As long as it stays that way we'll be all right."

OUTCOME OF brewing storm among Arabs in the Middle East will depend on United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser who has maneuvered against Iraqi Premier Abdel Kassem; broken with Yemen's King Iman Ahmed; sharpened his attacks on King Hussein of Jordan and staged propaganda attacks on throne of King Saud of Saudi Arabia. (AP Wirephoto)

New Storm Brewing

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A new storm is building up among Arabs in Middle East.

At its most violent, it could topple governments and cause bloodshed. Or it could turn out to be merely another epic wind of words and gestures.

The outcome will depend mainly on President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the influence he can exert on the Arab masses.

Egypt's walkout from the Arab League meeting in Shtaura, Lebanon, was a storm warning. Nasser is dropping any pretense of dealing with other Arab governments in the league's polite channels. He is taking off the gloves and going to work more than ever directly with the people — if necessary against their governments.

It's an axiom that Nasser never goes on the defensive. Syria's successful breakaway from his United Arab Republic one year ago hurt him but did not cost him his popularity with the Arab man on the street.

He reacted by intensifying his drive for a kind of national socialism in Egypt and by abandoning the facade of friendship with what he considers the Arab world's reactionary regimes.

In the past year, Cairo has broken with medieval Yemen's ruling iman, gone all-out in a propaganda offensive against the oil - rich Saudi Arabian throne, and sharpened his attacks on Jordan's young King Hussein.

At the same time Nasser has maneuvered against Iraq's Premier Abdel Kerim Kassem — who boycotts the Arab League because of its acceptance of Kuwait in defiance of Iraqi claims of ownership.

RIVALRIES

All these rivalries cut down Nasser's onetime dominance of the league. With his opponents lining up against him, and new North African Arab states showing more independence in Arab affairs, Nasser found the league no longer his instrument.

Syria brought the matter to a head by calling the Shtaura meeting to accuse Nasser of urging Syrians to revolt. Once in the meeting, it pulled out the Arab world's most deadly accusation — accusing Nasser of collaborating with the United States to work out peace with Israel.

At that, the Cairo delegates walked out and threatened never to return.

In Cairo, Nasser has formed rudiments of the Arab People's League, aimed at appealing directly to the Arab masses over the heads of their governments. One of the world's great propaganda mediums, the Voice of Arabs Radio, has stepped up its potent campaigns against his enemies.

Syria has come out fighting, replying to Nasser in kind. Aided by the defection of the U.A.R. military attache at Beirut, it has set up a Free Egypt Committee, aimed at toppling the Cairo leader.

The kinds of Jordan and Saudi Arabia, forgetting their old tribal rivalries, have proclaimed plans for a military and trade union.

Thus, the Arab world is choosing up sides. Standing anxiously aside are the neutrals and mediators, Lebanon, Kuwait and the African Arab states.

The propaganda lightning is striking in several directions but the storm center will be Cairo.

Red China Meddling In Colony Of Macao

By RONNIE WEI

MACAO (AP)—Red China has a finger in practically every pie in this sleepy little Portuguese colony off the China Coast.

It even takes a cut on the illegal refugee traffic between Macao and the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong.

Officially Peiping has nothing to do with the smuggling of refugees from Macao to Hong Kong.

But the way the system works is an open secret. Several smugglers explained it to an Associated Press correspondent.

Many of the smugglers are associated with established travel agencies in Macao. Some of them operate as independent agents themselves.

MOST AGENTS

The most successful agents are registered with an official travel agency in Canton, across the border in Communist China.

This agency works with the security section of the Canton police department, which issues exit visas permitting Chinese to leave Red China.

Up until this year, exit permits were rarely issued and then only to the sick and aged. Since Jan. 1, however, more than 60,000 visas have been issued as part of a new policy apparently aimed at relieving the pressure on inadequate food supplies, and to remove malcontents.

Macao has no restrictions on immigration from China. Many Chinese leaving China, however, have no entry visas for Hong Kong or any other foreign point beyond Macao.

"The official travel agency in Canton usually recommends a specific travel agency in Macao for what is described as 'onward bookings' beyond Macao," one of the smugglers said.

"These recommended travel agencies in Macao are required to maintain a deposit of $1,000 with the Canton agency which charges $5 for each refugee recommended to a Macao agency."

"Onward bookings," usually to Hong Kong, are arranged by Macao agencies which have more than 50 motorized fishing junks.

Fares, based on sex, age and dialect spoken, range from $30 to $200. These are collected from friends or relatives in Hong Kong. The refugees themselves can take out of China only the equivalent of $1.40 if they are heading for Hong Kong, or 17 cents if they are stopping at Macao.

Macao smugglers have their own "code of morality."

COLLECT FARES

They collect fares only after the refugees have safely landed and made contact with relatives or friends in Hong Kong.

If a refugee trying to enter Hong Kong illegally is intercepted by British authorities and deported to Macao after serving a jail sentence, the Macao smugglers consider themselves obliged to smuggle him to the British colony again—free of charge.

Just how much the Chinese Communists have collected from the Macao smugglers is anybody's guess.

Social welfare workers say most of the 60,000 refugees from Red China who reached this Portuguese colony this year with Communist exit permits have gone on to prosperous Hong Kong through the recommendation of the Canton travel agency.

The usually quiet Macao waterfront is dotted with agencies. Some serve as hostels for refugees. They even provide recreation in the form of mahjong games. The refugees are permitted to settle their mahjong debts after they reach Hong Kong, where jobs are comparatively easy to find.

EVERY NIGHT

Every night at Black Sand Bay, some 50 yards from Communist China, hundreds of refugees in dark clothes wade through shallow muddy water to board motorized junks headed for Hong Kong.

The refugees are packed tight below decks. The trip takes about 10 hours.

The smugglers figure the chances at only 1 out of 20 they will be arrested by the British police.

One young refugee student said before sailing for Hong Kong: "The odds are not bad at all. In Communist China one out of every two students is sent to the countryside for back-bending labor."

The agencies in Macao insist they are smuggling refugees at least partly for humanitarian reasons.

One smuggler quoted a Chinese Communist official as saying: "We want them (refugees) to unite with their families in Hong Kong as soon as possible. We collect $5 for each customer we recommend because New China is in a period of difficulties. As soon as we have a good harvest we will do it free of charge."

The spokesman of an established agency said, "Legally, smuggling of refugees to Hong Kong is wrong. But morally, it is not only right but commendable.

"These refugees left Communist China because they were hungry. What can they do in Macao? For a nominal fee we help them enter Hong Kong where they can begin a new life."

BOOKS-FINANCIAL-TRAVEL

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Heavy Reading Noted In August

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A total of 45,525 books were borrowed from the Ouachita Parish Public Library and its branches during the month of August. This is an all time high for that month as August is usually a month when business begins to slack up. We saw no indication of that trend this August. We were busy right up to the last day of the month and are delighted with the use of the library. The constantly increasing use of the library is evidence of the fact that as the library resources increase the use of the library will show a corresponding increase.

New books continue to arrive at the library. Among this week's additions are books to interest many different readers. Readers of stories of mystery and intrigue have five exciting titles to choose from. They are "The City of the Gold" by Patricia Highsmith, "The Satan Bug" by Ian Stuart, "The Wandering Widows" by E. X. Ferrars, "Menace" by the Gordons and "Two for the Money" by Jeremy York.

An interesting book concerned with the legal profession is "One Man's Freedom" by Edward B. Williams. An exciting book which gives a good picture of the far reaching activities of Communist intelligence organizations is "Spy in the U. S." by Pawel Monat and John Dile. This is the story of a Polish officer who engaged in espionage activities for the communists, but finally realized that he could not continue in their beliefs and sought asylum in the U. S. It is an exciting book, and one which every American should read.

"Thinking About the Unthinkable," is the title of a book on the subject of atomic warfare, written by Herman Kahn. This is a book to make one stop and think. It contains much useful information, even though it is not a pleasant book. Are you interested in the scope of international business? If so, you should see "Facts and Fallacies of International Business," by John Fayerweather.

A new cook book, of interest to the homemaker who wants something new is "European Desserts for the American Kitchens" written by Elaine L. Ross. "Cloak and Cipher" by Dan Moore is an interesting discussion of secret codes and how they are often broken. "Shut Up, He Explained" is a new collection of the humorous sketches of Ring Lardner and will appeal to his many devoted fans.

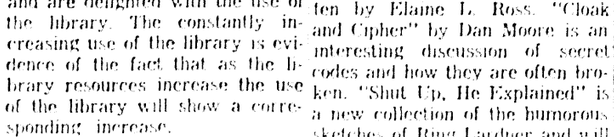
Are you planning a trip to Puerto Rico? If so, you will want to see Ralph Hancock's "Puerto Rico, a Traveler's Guide". It contains much valuable information about this beautiful island. Of interest to students, both high school and college is "The Greeks until Alexander" which is a history of early Greece. It is a beautiful book and a fine addition to the history collection. Another excellent history is "A Short History of Tibet" by Hugh Edward Richardson. Little has been written about this country and although it is not the type of book which is going to be extremely popular, it is a book which a library should have. "Voyages to America Before the time of Columbus are always interesting. The latest book on this subject is "Land to the West, St. Brendan's Voyage" written by Geoffrey Ashe. Last of all there is the biography of P. G. Wodehouse, which he calls "Author, Author." Mr. Wodehouse is one of the great humorists of modern letters and this book should be delightful.

THE STRANGE STORY OF THE GREAT WHALE, ALSO KNOWN AS BIG MAC by Erih Kos (Harcourt, Brace & World $3.50). It seems a whale was captured in the Adriatic and was such a curiosity that it was sent on exhibition through Yugoslavian cities and finally to Belgrade. Everybody was excited and huge crowds stood on line for hours to see this prodigious sight. Everybody, that is, except one government clerk who refused to join the crowds who milled around day after day to pay homage. Our hero, the clerk, quickly lost status among his neighbors who hated a maverick and resented his aloof attitude. When the whale started to decay, the crowds lost interest and public opinion turned against the whale as the stench permeated the city. But did our hero regain his standing with his neighbors? No, they turned against him too for being right in the first place. The moral seems to be that it doesn't pay to oppose the crowd, at least not out loud. The story is amusing and witty. It was translated from Serbo - Croat by Lovett F. Edwards.

BOSWELL'S JOURNAL OF A TOUR TO THE HEBRIDES WITH SAMUEL JOHNSON, edited from the orginal manuscript by Frederick A. Pottle and Charles H. Bennett (McGraw-Hill $10). When Boswell first issued in 1785 his account of his 101 - day travels in Scotland with his friend Johnson, he left out a wealth of interesting detail about himself, preferring that the book be mostly about Johnson. This new edition restores Boswell to his own book and presents a much fuller picture of these two picturesque characters engaged in what was destined to become one of the most famous journeys in English literature.

RIDDLE - DE - DEE, by Bennett Cerf (Random House $2.95). Q. What did the duck say when it laid a square egg? A. "Ouch!" Q. Where was Solomon's Temple? A. On the side of his head. These and 465 similar thigh - slappers are collected into this little book by that master collector of puns, jokes and miscellaneous humor who also happens to be a book publisher. Some of them are old, some new and a lot of them are corny, but once the riddle is posed you simply must have the answer, for you'd never guess it. Q. Waat did the ballpoint pen say to the paper? A. "I dot my eyes on you." Irresistible, what?

THE MAKING OF ECONOMIC SOCIETY, by Robert L. Heilbroner (Prentice - Hall $4.95). A history of economics and its basic role in shaping events whether in slave societies as in ancient Rome, medieval feudalism, revolutions or in the increasingly complex social systems of the present day. This historic treatment of economics serves as an absorbing introduction to a subject which is usually regarded as studded with dull figures and charts and thus to be avoided.



CONCERT

NEW YORK (UPI) — From a record called "Flamenco Virtuoso" you may be able to get a first glimmer of the structure of the mysterious music art form encompassed by the Flamenco style of guitar playing. The virtuoso is Mariano Cordoba, a relative unknown among the musicians who have popularized the Spanish guitar in America, but clearly a master.

He displays the Flamenco style in a number of folkish pieces which are accepted by the Flamenco connoisseurs as entirely authentic. To provide contrasts he also plays his own arrangements of several Spanish and one Mexican popular song in which Flamenco style and ornamentation are the means to the end (Capitol-8374).

Any person fascinated but unexpert in the Flamenco guitar art could consider it essentially a matter of improvising impulsively. If this were so it would be without structure and so formless. Cordoba seems to produce unique scales as flowingly liquid as water and he fractionates tones with no regard for conventional mathematics.

From these and other virtuosos turns emerges at least a glimmer of Flamenco musical structure. It is there — this is no formless art. Yet its wonderful spontaneity is fully preserved by this virtuoso, and it is made to seem to emerge from nothing into vaporish reality only to fade away into nothingness again.

It's been some time since there has been a good collection of the songs of Schubert beautifully sung by a singer with the voice and the sensibilities to make the very most of them. Such a collection has Gerard Souzay, baritone, singing 14 of them, accompanied by Dalton Baldwin, piano (Philips-500-007).

The familiar ones are included, such as "Der Wanderer," "Erlkonig," "Der Doppelganger," "Wanderers Nachtlied," and "Die Forelle." But there are a half dozen or so which are rarely heard from American recital platforms and are highly rewarding.

And there is a collection of music for string orchestra composed in the current century. That's an artificial and meaningless division especially when the collection includes Respigni's reconstructions of "ancient dances and airs." But it makes a vehicle for the exquisite string playing of the ensemble called "I Musica" and that's justification enough. The other composers are Barber, Bartok and Britten (Phillips-500-001.)

POPULAR

NEW YORK (UPI)—If while browsing through your record shop you see two LP's with the same name you aren't seeing double.

By some coincidence two appeared at the same time late in August. One is "Roses Are Red" by Bobby Vinton (Epic LN24020). The other is "Roses Are Red" by Johnny Burnette (Liberty LRP-3255).

The titles are not the only items in common. Both Vinton and Burnette are young and talented artists with tremendous appeal to teenagers. Each has his own style but they go in the same direction.

For teen - agers both records are a good buy. "Roses Are Red" is the only duplicating song. And there is plenty of other music on these two discs for the youngster and the young-at-heart.

In many of our major cities, one of the biggest attractions is the new Cinerama epic, "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm." Here is Cinerama in story form for the first time and those who are so fortunately located that they may see the Grimm story will be interested to know that an excellent LP has been made using highlights of the sound track (MGM 1E3). The voices of the major stars (Laurence Harvey, Buddy Hackett, etc.) and the wonderful music of Bob Merrill can be heard. A dramatic narration by Charles Ruggles pieces the story together.

If you are unable to see the movie, the recording is self-explanatory.

Selected Singles—"Big Love" by Joe Henderson (Todd 45-1077), "April in Paris" (Argo 5419), "La Ragazza" by Perez Prado (RCA Victor 47-8077), "Busy" by Chuck Sedacca (Smash S-1773).

Single of the Week —"Highway Bound" by Jimmy Clanton (Ace 3001). Jimmy is fresh out of the army and picking up where he left off, with good songs for teenagers. "Highway Bound" is Jumbo's own composition and shows another facet of his talent. The flipover, "Venus In Blue Jeans," rounds out what should be a top-seller.

LP's of the Week — Mono: "The Exciting Gospel Sound of the Stevens Singers" (ABC-Paramount ABC-419). A beautiful rendition of traditional spirituals. Stereo: "The McGuire Sisters Sing Songs Everybody Knows" (Coral CRL 757415). The sisters are at their peppiest best in this fast-moving selection.

GUESSES ARE WRONG

Market Retreats During Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Contrary to most professional guesses, the stock market retreated last week in the first trading of what Wall Streeters consider the new business year.

The decline as measured by the market averages was just double that of the previous week. This was the first time since June, soon after the big market break, that prices lost ground two consecutive weeks.

Market analysts, who had confidently expected a renewed upward drive with the end of summer, were mystly puzzled. The general reasoning was that investors were overly nervous as a result of crises in Algeria, Cuba and Berlin.

A majority of business indicators, now becoming available for August, generally appeared favorable for the economy.

For the technicians — experts who follow the market's moves on charts — the holiday shortened week was especially eventful. For on Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed below the much discussed 600 level for the first time since Aug. 13. The sub-600 reading was short lived.

Thursday's only gain of the week lifted this indicator slightly above 600 and that's where it closed Friday. At 600.36 it was off 8.32 for the four sessions, compared with a dip of 4.56 the previous week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.4 and closed at 222.8, compared with a 2.2 loss the previous week. The industrial component was down 4.2, rails 1.2 and utilities 7.

Volume averaged 3.04 million shares daily ocmpared with 2.87 million the previous week while the total was 12,095,563 against 14,327,660 for the five sessions in the previous week.

Thursday's late upturn was credited to Senate passage of the administration's tax revision bill which included a 7 per cent $1 billion tax credit incentive for business plant investment. Friday's rise was nipped when President Kennedy decided to ask for temporary authority to recall a maximum 150,000 reservists due to international tensions.

Favorable news during the weekend included a rise in steel production to a four-month high, higher August auto output and sales than a year ago and a sharp increase in planned September production levels, higher July business sales, than in June, a boost in August paperboard demand, higher August department store sales than a year ago, more liberal August dividend payments than a year ago and an improvement in the savings bond redemption rate as compared with sales.

One factor considered on the minus side was a sharp and unexpected rise in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate at mid-August despite record employment.

SBA To Send Agent To Monroe

Justin Green, manager of the Small Business Administration office in New Orleans, announced Saturday that loan specialist W. G. Troescher will be in Monroe Wednesday in room 216 at the post office and federal court building, to confer with anyone interested in the services of the agency.

This is a continuance of the policy of the Small Business Administration to make its services more convenient to the small business man and the banks in the Monroe area," Green said.

Green also said, "It would be very helpful if inquirers would bring with them at the time of the interview a recent balance sheet and profit and loss statements for the past three years." It is planned that a representative of SBA will visit Monroe monthly, Green added.

DIVERSE DUPLICATIONS

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Among the unusual objects people visiting the last National Business Show at the New York Coliseum asked to have duplicated on a new electrostatic photopy machine were: a $1,000 bill, love letters, checks and a drawing made by a youngster in kindergarten — 25 copies to send to relatives.

LAST TWO YEARS

Operators Put Less In Acreage Leases

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Oil and gas operators poured less money into acreage leases the last two years.

Acreage held in proven areas has increased but large chunks in non - productive and unexplored areas has been released.

Domestic operators had 424 million acres under lease in 33 states at the end of 1959 but a two-year decline dropped the total to only 404½ million.

The sharp decline is indicative of oversupply problems which have plagued the industry.

Such problems have caused many operators to concentrate their drilling programs on proven areas. Many have cut their wildcat operations sharply.

Only 9,050 wildcats were drilled in unproven areas last year compared to 10,073 in 1959 and a record of 13,034 in 1956.

As a result of the emphasis on the less risky proven areas, productive acreage under lease at the end of 1961 exceeded 26½ million acres, an all-time high.

Non-productive leases, however, dropped a second straight year, totaling only 378 million acres compared to 396 million a year earlier. It was only the third decline recorded by domestic operators since the end of World War II.

The 1962 year-end totals have been released in the 1962 edition of "The Oil Production Industry in Your State," published since 1952 by the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Despite the decline of the past two years, a comparison of the 1952 publication with the 1962 edition reflects an impressive growth by the domestic industry.

Leases held in proven areas at the end of 1951 totaled only 12½ million acres. The 26½ million acres held at the end of 1961 represented a 52 per cent gain in 10 years.

Non-productive leases gained 48 per cent, jumping from 255 to 378 million acres.

Six new states — South Dakota, Arizona, Alaska, Nevada, Washington, and Maryland — have been added to the list of oil and gas lease states since 1951.

Eight states, however, had less acreage under lease at the end of 1961 than in 1951. They were Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Montana, New York, North Dakota and Virginia.

Despite another decline, North Dakota replaced West Virginia last year to regain the No. 1 position as the state with the largest percentage of its total acreage under lease.

After launching an oil boom in 1950, North Dakota moved to the top ranking position in 1951 with 67 per cent of her land under lease. A peak of 75 per cent was reached in 1955 and North Dakota held or shared the percentage lead through 1959.

Renewed interest in West Virginia jumped that state into the No. 1 spot in 1960 with 52 per cent as North Dakota dropped to second place with 48 per cent.

North Dakota regained the top position by retaining 48 per cent of her acreage under lease in 1961. West Virginia dropped to a third place tie with Texas at 46 per cent.

Barometer Shows Fair For Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic barometers during the week indicated fair weather, but wariness of possible storms beyond the horizon persisted.

The preponderance of new business statistics was favorable. However, the improvement was by no means impressive.

And opinion about the state of business remained sharply divided.

For example, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said that currently available information "seems to confirm that the economy has weathered an unusual combination of adverse influences better than many people expected."

On the other hand, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said, "We are not growing fast enough economically to keep pace with our growing population and sooner or later we will be in serious trouble."

The employment-unemployment picture could be viewed two ways. The number of employed rose to a record 69,762,000 in August against seasonal expectations of a decline. Unemployment, which usually shows a substantial drop at this time of the year, fell off only slightly. As a result, the idle rate rose to 5.8 per cent of the work force from 5.3 per cent in July.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor, said he didn't see anything in the job figures pointing to a recession.

Automobile and steel production have perked up.

The automakers, nearing full stride in output of 1963 models, turned out an estimated 66,000 passenger cars against 35,378 during the week. They are expected to operate at full blast this month, assembling 456,000 cars, compared with 195,518 in August. If sales hold up, production is expected to soar even higher in October.

Steel output renewed its advance during the week with mills melting 1,672,000 tons, up 3.8 per cent over the previous week. For the year through Sept. 1, production totaled 67,978,000 tons, a gain of 9.4 per cent over the comparable period last year.

Businessmen were particularly cheered by the condition the paperboard industry, which they consider a sensitive indicator of future business. Paperboard is the material from which most boxes for packaging merchandise are made.

Humble Slates Production Test Series In Maxie

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Production tests are planned at Humble Oil & Refining Company's deep test in the Maxie field of Forrest County.

The important venture is Maxie gas unit se-61 in section 18, 1 south, 12 west, which was drilled to 12,000 feet. Little definite information is available, but there are reports that several shows of undetermined commercial worth were logged below 9,000 feet.

The Humble well is located on the south side of the big fault in the Maxie-Pistol Ridge area and if productive will be the first deep production in the Maxie field. The deepest producing level now is about 400 feet.

Sun Oil Co. is preparing to begin drilling on the second test in the new Conerly oil field of Pike County. The new start is the Holmes unit No. 1, sec. 35-3n-9e, and is a northeast diagnonal offset to the discovery well. Contract depth is 10,800 feet.

A new wildcat venture is set to get underway near the Jackson city limits. Placid Oil is reported to be preparing to spud its W. G. Cook Jr. No. 1, sec. 35-6n-1w, about one mile west of the city limits. The interesting test will go to 6,500 feet.

Continental Oil is below 9,300 feet in its Madison County wildcat, the Defore No. 1, sec. 27-9n-1w, located between the Flora and Benton fields. It is to go to 11,600 feet.

In Pike County, about 5 miles southeast of the Little Creek field, King and Love have staked location for their wildcat, the Fernwood Industries No. 1, sec. 35-4n-9e. Contract depth is 11,000 feet. The recently discovered Conerly field is located about 7 miles south of the test.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. is below 13,400 feet in its third test in the recently found Collins field of Covington County. The test is the Collins operating unit No. 3, sec. 25-8n-15w, and it is to go to 13,900 feet.

Field drilling during the past week saw two new oilers and two gas wells completed.

At Dexter in Walthall County, George H. Jett Drilling Co. finaled its Morris No. 2, sec. 35-2n-12e, flowing 338 barrels of oil per day from 9,646-50 feet.

In the junction city field of Clarke County, Viking Oil completed its Carmichael unit No. 2, sec. 32-2n-17e, pumping 27 barrels daily from 3,600 feet.

At Muldon in Monroe County, Union Producing Co. completed its Sanders No. 2, sec. 22-15s-6e, flowing 1,300,000 cubic feet of gas per day from a sand at 5,4424-47 feet.

In the Pistol Ridge field on the Pearl River County side, H. E. Stover finaled his USA No. 1, sec. 10-1s-14w, flowing 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day from 9,479-85 feet.

12 COMPLETIONS

Oil, Gas Activity Hold Own In Week For Area

Drilling last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District gave little indication of a fall slowdown, as drillers reported a surging total of an even dozen completions, along with 24 new locations over the 14 - parish area.

Twenty - four rigs also were listed as actively drilling or testing at week's end by District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

Avoyelles Parish led the way in completions, reporting a total of four, followed by Concordia and Morehouse Parishes with three each. Tensas and Union Parishes had one each.

Morehouse Parish accounted for an exact third of new locations, as well, with the spotting of eight additional sites. Other fresh activity found three new locations in Avoyelles Parish, two in Concordia, Ouachita, Richland and Tensas Parishes and one each in Richland, Tensas, Franklin, Grant LaSalle, Rapides and Union Parishes.

Active rigs were in LaSalle Parish, seven; Concordia, four; East Carroll, three; Tensas, four; and Avoyelles, Caldwell, Ouachita, Rapides, Richland and Union Parishes, one each.

Cotton Futures Back Off From Early Firmness

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices on the New York Cotton Exchange backed off from early firmness last week to close mixed.

Active domestic futures contracts were up $1 to off $1.20. The preceding week they were off 40 cents to $3.30.

Sustaining factors included local short covering in the nearby months, a somewhat smaller private crop estimate, international developments and some new buying.

Meanwhile, offerings came from light hedge selling and liquidation influenced by slow export movement and Tariff Commission action against the proposed 8½ cent a pound fee on imported cotton textiles.

The trade was looking forward to publication Monday of the second official forecast on the 1962 domestic crop. Trade circles expect it to be close to the Aug. 1 estimate of 15.1 million bales but a private estimate during the week predicted it at 14.9 million.

Exports continued disappointing, with the total for the week ended Tuesday estimated at 46,000 bales by the Cotton Exchange Service Bureau. That compares with 21,000 a week earlier and 57,000 the same week last year.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Heavy Reading Noted In August

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A total of 45,525 books were borrowed from the Ouachita Parish Public Library and its branches during the month of August. This is an all time high for that month as August is usually a month when business begins to slack up. We saw no indication of that trend this August. We were busy right up to the last day of the month and are delighted with the use of the library. The constantly increasing use of the library is evidence of the fact that as the library resources increase the use of the library will show a corresponding increase.

New books continue to arrive at the library. Among this week's additions are books to interest many different readers. Readers of stories of mystery and intrigue have five exciting titles to choose from. They are: "The Cry of the Owl" by Patricia Highsmith, "The Satan Bug" by Ian Stuart, "The Wandering Widows" by E. X. Ferrars, "Menace" by the Gordons and "Two for the Money" by Jeremy York.

An interesting book concerned with the legal profession is "One Man's Freedom" by Edward B. Williams. An exciting book which gives a good picture of the far reaching activities of Communist intelligence organizations is "Spy in the U. S." by Pawel Monat and John Dile. This is the story of a Polish officer who engaged in espionage activities for the communists, but finally realized that he could not continue in their beliefs and sought asylum in the U. S. It is an exciting book and one which every American should read.

"Thinking About the Unthinkable," is the title of a book on the subject of atomic warfare, written by Herman Kahn. This is a book to make one stop and think. It contains much useful information, even though it is not a pleasant book. Are you interested in the scope of international business? If so, you should see "Facts and Fallacies of International Business" by John Fayerweather.

A new cook book, of interest to the homemaker who wants something new is "European Desserts for the American Kitchens" written by Elaine L. Ross. "Cloak and Cipher" by Dan Moore is an interesting discussion of secret codes and how they are often broken. "Shut Up, He Explained" is a new collection of the humorous sketches of Ring Lardner and will appeal to his many devoted fans.

Are you planning a trip to Puerto Rico? If so, you will want to see Ralph Hancock's "Puerto Rico, a Traveler's Guide". It contains much valuable information about this beautiful island. Of interest to students, both high school and college is "The Greeks until Alexander" which is a history of early Greece. It is a beautiful book and a fine addition to the history collection. Another excellent history is "A Short History of Tibet" by Hugh Edward Richardson. Little has been written about this country and although it is not the type of book which is going to be extremely popular, it is a book which a library should have. "Voyages to America Before the time of Columbus are always interesting. The latest book on this subject is "Land to the West; St. Brendan's Voyage" written by Geoffrey Ashe. Last of all there is the biography of P. G. Wodehouse, which he calls "Author, Author." Mr. Wodehouse is one of the great humorists of modern letters and this book should be delightful.

CONCERT

NEW YORK (UPI) — From a record called "Flamenco Virtuoso" you may be able to get a first glimmer of the structure of the mysterious music art form encompassed by the Flamenco style of guitar playing. The virtuoso is Mariano Cordoba, a relative unknown among the musicians who have popularized the Spanish guitar in America, but clearly a master.

He displays the Flamenco style in a number of folkish pieces which are accepted by the Flamenco connoisseurs as entirely authentic. To provide contrasts he also plays his own arrangements of several Spanish and one Mexican popular song in which Flamenco style and ornamentation are the means to the end (Capitol-8574).

Any person fascinated but unexpert in the Flamenco guitar art could consider it essentially a matter of improvising impulsively. If this were so it would be without structure and so formless. Corboda seems to produce unique scales as flowingly liquid as water and he fractionates tones with no regard for conventional mathematics.

From these and other virtuoso turns emerges at least a glimmer of Flamenco musical structure. It is there — this is no formless art. Yet its wonderful spontaneity is fully preserved by this virtuoso, and it is made to seem to emerge from nothing into vaporish reality only to fade away into nothingness again.

It's been some time since there has been a good collection of the songs of Schubert beautifully sung by a singer with the voice and the sensibilities to make the very most of them. Such a collection has Gerard Souzay, baritone, singing 14 of them, accompanied by Dalton Baldwin, piano (Philips-500-007).

The familiar ones are included, such as "Der Wanderer," "Erlkonig," "Der Doppelganger," "Wanderers Nachtlied," and "Die Forelle." But there are a half dozen or so which are rarely heard from American recital platforms and are highly rewarding.

And there is a collection of music for string orchestra composed in the current century. That's an artificial and meaningless division especially when the collection includes Respigni's reconstructions of "ancient dances and airs." But it makes a vehicle for the exquisite string playing of the ensemble called "I Musica" and that's justification enough. The other composers are Barber, Bartok and Britten (Phillips-500-001.)

POPULAR

NEW YORK (UPI)—If while browsing through your record shop you see two LP's with the same name you aren't seeing double.

By some coincidence two appeared at the same time late in August. One is "Roses Are Red" by Bobby Vinton (Epic LN24020). The other is "Roses Are Red" by Johnny Burnette (Liberty LRP-3255).

The titles are not the only items in common. Both Vinton and Burnette are young and talented artists with tremendous appeal to teenagers. Each has his own style but they go in the same direction.

For teen - agers both records are a good buy. "Roses Are Red" is the only duplicating song. And there is plenty of other music on these two discs for the youngster and the young-at-heart.

In many of our major cities, one of the biggest attractions is the new Cinerama epic, "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm." Here is Cinerama in story form for the first time and those who are so fortunately located that they may see the Grimm story will be interested to know that an excellent LP has been made using highlights of the sound track (MGM 1E3). The voices of the major stars (Laurence Harvey, Buddy Hackett, etc.) and the wonderful music of Bob Merrill can be heard. A dramatic narration by Charles Ruggles pieces the story together.

If you are unable to see the movie, the recording is self-explanatory.

Selected Singles—"Big Love" by Joe Henderson (Todd 45-1077), "April in Paris" (Argo 5419), "La Ragazza" by Perez Prado (RCA Victor 47-8077), "Busy" by Chuck Sedacca (Smash S-1773)

Single of the Week —"Highway Bound" by Jimmy Clanton (Ace 8001) Jimmy is fresh out of the army and picking up where he left off, with good songs for teenagers. "Highway Bound" is Jimbo's own composition and shows another facet of his talent. The flipover, "Venus In Blue Jeans," rounds out what should be a top-seller.

LP's of the Week — Mono: "The Exciting Gospel Sound of the Stevens Singers" (ABC-Paramount ABC-419). A beautiful rendition of traditional spirituals. Stereo: "The McGuire Sisters Sing Songs Everybody Knows" (Coral CRL 757415). The sisters are at their peppiest best in this fast-moving selection.

THE STRANGE STORY OF THE GREAT WHALE, ALSO KNOWN AS BIG MAC by Erih Kos (Harcourt, Brace & World $3.50): It seems a whale was captured in the Adriatic and was such a curiosity that it was sent on exhibition through Yugoslavian cities and finally to Belgrade. Everybody was excited and huge crowds stood on line for hours to see this prodigious sight. Everybody, that is, except one government clerk who refused to join the crowds who milled around day after day to pay homage. Our hero, the clerk, quickly lost status among his neighbors who hated a maverick and resented his aloof attitude. When the whale started to decay, the crowds lost interest and public opinion turned against the whale as the stench permeated the city. But did our hero regain his standing with his neighbors? No, they turned against him too for being right in the first place. The moral seems to be that it doesn't pay to oppose the crowd, at least not out loud. The story is amusing and witty. It was translated from Serbo - Croat by Lovett F. Edwards.

BOSWELL'S JOURNAL OF A TOUR TO THE HEBRIDES WITH SAMUEL JOHNSON, edited from the orginal manuscript by Frederick A. Pottle and Charles H. Bennett (McGraw-Hill $10): When Boswell first issued in 1785 his account of his 101 - day travels in Scotland with his friend Johnson, he left out a wealth of interesting detail about himself, preferring that the book be mostly about Johnson. This new edition restores Boswell to his own book and presents a much fuller picture of these two picturesque characters engaged in what was destined to become one of the most famous journeys in English literature.

RIDDLE - DE - DEE, by Bennett Cerf (Random House $2.95): Q. What did the duck say when it laid a square egg? A. "Ouch!" Q. Where was Solomon's Temple? A. On the side of his head. These and 465 similar thigh - slappers are collected into this little book by that master collector of puns, jokes and miscellaneous humor who also happens to be a book publisher. Some of them are old, some new and a lot of them are corny, but once the riddle is posed you simply must have the answer, for you'd never guess it. Q. What did the ballpoint pen say to the paper? A. "I dot my eyes on you." Irresistible, what?

THE MAKING OF ECONOMIC SOCIETY, by Robert L. Helbroner (Prentice - Hall $4.95): A history of economics and its basic role in shaping events whether in slave societies as in ancient Rome, medieval feudalism, revolutions or in the increasingly complex social systems of the present day. This historic treatment of economics serves as an absorbing introduction to a subject which is usually regarded as studded with dull figures and charts and thus to be avoided.

SBA To Send Agent To Monroe

Justin Green, manager of the Small Business Administration office in New Orleans, announced Saturday that loan specialist W. G. Troescher will be in Monroe Wednesday in room 216 at the post office and federal court building, to confer with anyone interested in the services of the agency.

This is a continuance of the policy of the Small Business Administration to make its services more convenient to the small business man and the banks in the Monroe area," Green said.

Green also said, "It would be very helpful if inquirers would bring with them at the time of the interview a recent balance sheet and profit and loss statements for the past three years." It is planned that a representative of SBA will visit Monroe monthly, Green added.

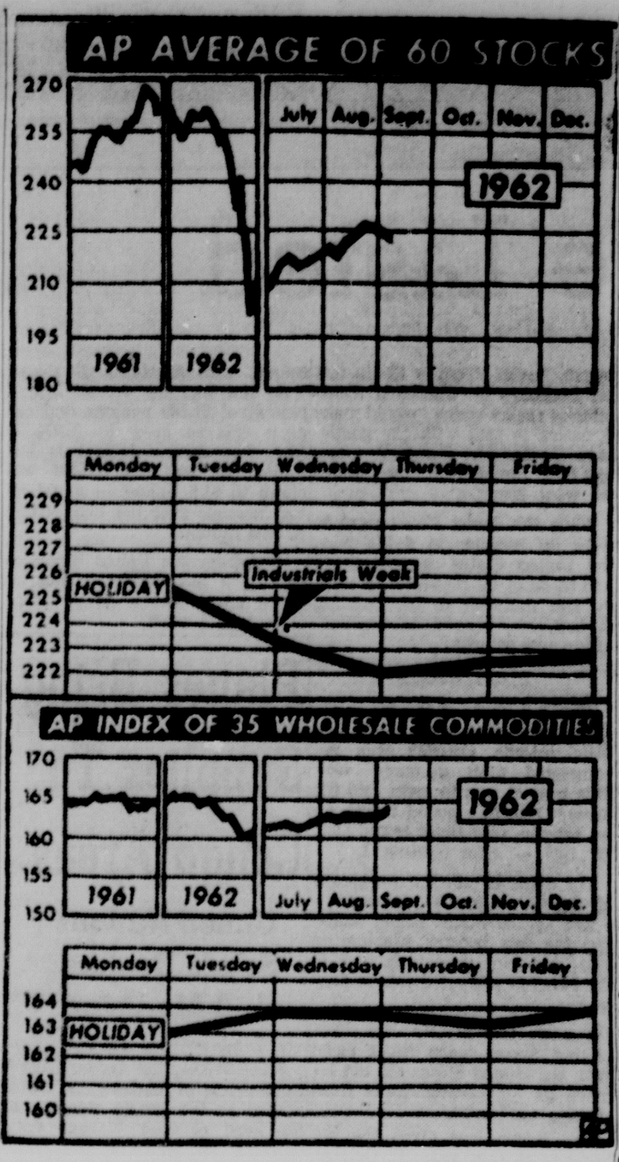
DIVERSE DUPLICATIONS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Among the unusual objects people visiting the last National Business Show at the New York Coliseum asked to have duplicated on a new electrostatic photopy machine were: a $1,000 bill, love letters, checks and a drawing made by a youngster in kindergarten — 25 copies to send to relatives.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined for the second straight week in a row, closing Friday at 222.8 from 225.2 a week earlier. Led by livestock, the commodity index advanced for the second straight week, closing Friday at 164.0 from 163.0 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

GUESSES ARE WRONG

Market Retreats During Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Contrary to most professional guesses, the stock market retreated last week in the first trading of what Wall Streeters consider the new business year.

The decline as measured by the market averages was just double that of the previous week. This was the first time since June, soon after the big market break, that prices lost ground two consecutive weeks.

Market analysts, who had confidently expected a renewed upward drive with the end of summer, were mostly puzzled. The general reasoning was that investors were overly nervous as a result of crises in Algeria, Cuba and Berlin.

A majority of business indicators, now becoming available for August, generally appeared favorable for the economy.

For the technicians — experts who follow the market's moves on charts — the holiday shortened week was especially eventful. For on Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed below the much discussed 600 level for the first time since Aug. 13. The sub-600 reading was short lived.

Thursday's only gain of the week lifted this indicator slightly above 600 and that's where it closed Friday. At 600.86 it was off 8.32 for the four sessions, compared with a dip of 4.56 the previous week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.4 and closed at 222.8, compared with a 1.2 loss the previous week. The industrial component was down 4.2, rails 1.2 and utilities 7.

Volume averaged 3.04 million shares daily ocmpared with 2.87 million the previous week while the total was 12,095,568 against 14,327,660 for the five sessions in the previous week.

Thursday's late upturn was credited to Senate passage of the administration's tax revision bill which included a 7 per cent $1 billion tax credit incentive for business plant investment. Friday's rise was nipped when President Kennedy decided to ask for temporary authority to recall a maximum 150,000 reservists due to international tensions.

Favorable news during the weekend included a rise in steel production to a four-month high, higher August auto output and sales than a year ago and a sharp increase in planned September production levels, higher July business sales, than in June, a boost in August paperboard demand, higher August department store sales than a year ago, more liberal August dividend payments than a year ago and an improvement in the savings bond redemption rate as compared with sales.

One factor considered on the minus side was a sharp and unexpected rise in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate at mid-August despite record employment.

LAST TWO YEARS

Operators Put Less In Acreage Leases

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Oil and gas operators poured less money into acreage leases the last two years.

Acreage held in proven areas has increased but large chunks in non - productive and unexplored areas has been released.

Domestic operators had 424 million acres under lease in 33 states at the end of 1959 but a two-year decline dropped the total to only 404½ million.

The sharp decline is indicative of oversupply problems which have plagued the industry.

Such problems have caused many operators to concentrate their drilling programs on proven areas. Many have cut their wildcat operations sharply.

Only 9,050 wildcats were drilled in unproven areas last year compared to 10,073 in 1959 and a record of 13,034 in 1956.

As a result of the emphasis on the less risky proven areas, productive acreage under lease at the end of 1961 exceeded 26½ million acres, an all-time high.

Non-productive leases, however, dropped a second straight year, totaling only 378 million acres compared to 396 million a year earlier. It was only the third decline recorded by domestic operators since the end of World War II.

The 1962 year-end totals have been released in the 1962 edition of "The Oil Production Industry in Your State," published since 1952 by the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Despite the decline of the past two years, a comparison of the 1952 publication with the 1962 edition reflects an impressive growth by the domestic industry.

Leases held in proven areas at the end of 1951 totaled only 12½ million acres. The 26½ million acres held at the end of 1961 represented a 52 per cent gain in 10 years.

Non-productive leases gained 48 per cent, jumping from 255 to 378 million acres.

Six new states — South Dakota, Arizona, Alaska, Nevada, Washington, and Maryland — have been added to the list of oil and gas lease states since 1951.

Eight states, however, had less acreage under lease at the end of 1961 than in 1951. They were Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Montana, New York, North Dakota and Virginia.

Despite another decline, North Dakota replaced West Virginia last year to regain the No. 1 position as the state with the largest percentage of its total acreage under lease.

After launching an oil boom in 1950, North Dakota moved to the top ranking position in 1951 with 67 per cent of her land under lease. A peak of 75 per cent was reached in 1955 and North Dakota held or shared the percentage lead through 1959.

Renewed interest in West Virginia jumped that state into the No. 1 spot in 1960 with 52 per cent as North Dakota dropped to second place with 48 per cent.

North Dakota regained the top position by retaining 48 per cent of her acreage under lease in 1961. West Virginia dropped to a third place tie with Texas at 46 per cent.

Barometer Shows Fair For Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic barometers during the week indicated fair weather, but wariness of possible storms beyond the horizon persisted.

The preponderance of new business statistics was favorable. However, the improvement was by no means impressive.

And opinion about the state of business remained sharply divided.

For example, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said that currently available information "seems to confirm that the economy has weathered an unusual combination of adverse influences better than many people expected."

On the other hand, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said, "We are not growing fast enough economically to keep pace with our growing population and sooner or later we will be in serious trouble."

The employment-unemployment picture could be viewed two ways. The number of employed rose to a record 69,762,000 in August against seasonal expectations of a decline. Unemployment, which usually shows a substantial drop at this time of the year, fell off only slightly. As a result, the idle rate rose to 5.8 per cent of the work force from 5.3 per cent in July.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor, said he didn't see anything in the job figures pointing to a recession.

Automobile and steel production have perked up.

The automakers, nearing full stride in output of 1963 models, turned out an estimated 66,000 passenger cars against 35,378 during the week. They are expected to operate at full blast this month, assembling 456,000 cars, compared with 195,518 in August. If sales hold up, production is expected to soar even higher in October.

Steel output renewed its advance during the week with mills melting 1,672,000 tons, up 3.8 per cent over the previous week. For the year through Sept. 1, production totaled 67,978,000 tons, a gain of 9.4 per cent over the comparable period last year.

Businessmen were particularly cheered by the condition the paperboard industry, which they consider a sensitive indicator of future business. Paperboard is the material from which most boxes for packaging merchandise are made.

Humble Slates Production Test Series In Maxie

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Production tests are planned at Humble Oil & Refining Company's deep test in the Maxie field of Forrest County.

The important venture is Maxie gas unit se-61 in section 18, 1 south, 12 west, which was drilled to 12,000 feet. Little definite information is available, but there are reports that several shows of undetermined commercial worth were logged below 9,000 feet.

The Humble well is located on the south side of the big fault in the Maxie-Pistol Ridge area and if productive will be the first deep production in the Maxie field. The deepest producing level now is about 400 feet.

Sun Oil Co. is preparing to begin drilling on the second test in the new Conerly oil field of Pike County. The new start is the Holmes unit No. 1, sec. 35-3n-9e, and is a northeast diagnonal offset to the discovery well. Contract depth is 10,800 feet.

A new wildcat venture is set to get underway near the Jackson city limits. Placid Oil is reported to be preparing to spud its W. G. Cook Jr. No. 1, sec. 35-6n-1w, about one mile west of the city limits. The interesting test will go to 6,500 feet.

Continental Oil is below 9,300 feet in its Madison County wildcat, the Defore No. 1, sec. 27-9n-1w, located between the Flora and Benton fields. It is to go to 11,600 feet.

In Pike County, about 5 miles southeast of the Little Creek field, King and Love have staked location for their wildcat, the Fernwood Industries No. 1, sec. 35-4n-9e. Contract depth is 11,000 feet. The recently discovered Conerly field is located about 7 miles south of the test.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. is below 13,400 feet in its third test in the recently found Collins field of Covington County. The test is the Collins operating unit No. 3, sec. 25-8n-15w, and it is to go to 13,900 feet.

Field drilling during the past week saw two new oilers and two gas wells completed.

At Dexter in Walthall County, George H. Jett Drilling Co. finaled its Morris No. 2, sec. 35-2n-12e, flowing 338 barrels of oil per day from 9,646-50 feet.

In the junction city field of Clarke County, Viking Oil completed its Carmichael unit No. 2, sec. 32-2n-17e, pumping 27 barrels daily from 3,600 feet.

At Muldon in Monroe County, Union Producing Co. completed its Sanders No. 2, sec. 22-15s-6e, flowing 1,300,000 cubic feet of gas per day from a sand at 5,4424-47 feet.

In the Pistol Ridge field on the Pearl River County side, H. E. Stover finaled his USA No. 1, sec. 10-1s-14w, flowing 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day from 9,479-85 feet.

12 COMPLETIONS

Oil, Gas Activity Hold Own In Week For Area

Drilling last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District gave little indication of a fall slowdown, as drillers reported a surging total of an even dozen completions, along with 24 new locations over the 14 - parish area.

Twenty - four rigs also were listed as actively drilling or testing at week's end by District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

Avoyelles Parish led the way in completions, reporting a total of four, followed by Concordia and Morehouse Parishes with three each. Tensas and Union Parishes had one each.

Morehouse Parish accounted for an exact third of new locations, as well, with the spotting of eight additional sites. Other fresh activity found three new locations in Avoyelles Parish, two in Concordia, Ouachita, Richland and Tensas Parishes and one each in Richland, Tensas, Franklin, Grant LaSalle, Rapides and Union Parishes.

Cotton Futures Back Off From Early Firmness

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices on the New York Cotton Exchange backed off from early firmness last week to close mixed.

Active domestic futures contracts were up $1 to off $1.20. The preceding week they were off 40 cents to $3.30.

Sustaining factors included local short covering in the nearby months, a somewhat smaller private crop estimate, international developments and some new buying.

Meanwhile, offerings came from light hedge selling and liquidation influenced by slow export movement and Tariff Commission action against the proposed 8½ cent a pound fee on imported cotton textiles.

The trade was looking forward to publication Monday of the second official forecast on the 1962 domestic crop. Trade circles expect it to be close to the Aug. 1 estimate of 15.1 million bales but a private estimate during the week predicted it at 14.9 million.

Exports continued disappointing, with the total for the week ended Tuesday estimated at 46,000 bales by the Cotton Exchange Service Bureau. That compares with 21,000 a week earlier and 55,000 the same week last year.

Authors Write Musical For 1963 Showing

NEW YORK (AP) — The musical being written by Richard Rodgers and Alan Jay Lerner for 1963 arrival on Broadway is to be directed by Gower Champion.

The appointment is the second production item to be set for the show which has not yet been given a title. Barbara Harris was announced earlier as leading lady.

The assignment is Champion's third on the Great White Way. He previously directed "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Carnival."

2 Generations Directed By Garson Kanin

NEW YORK (AP) — With a twinge of anguish, Garson Kanin is directing True Ellison in his new comedy, "Come on Strong."

After the 19 - year - old actress was chosen for a role, Kanin was informed that he had directed her father, James Ellison, in a film with Lucille Ball in 1938 entitled "Next Time I Marry."

"I was 25 years old when I directed that picture," said Kanin. "Absolute terror strikes my heart when I realize Miss Ellison wasn't even born when I worked on the movie."

NEW ROMANTIC TEAM, Shirley MacLaine and Yves Montand, are together for Steve Parker's "My Geisha," which opens Thursday at the Jim Theatre. Also starring are Edward G. Robinson and Bob Cummings. The Paramount Technicolor release was filmed in Japan.

Curtain Call

The Little Theatre board of directors held a lively meeting Tuesday night at the home of president Larry Shipman.

Chief topic of conversation was the appointment of Raymond E. Lucero as technical director. He will be executive director Richard M. Clark's right hand in matters pertaining to sets, lighting and other technical aspects of play production. Raymond is already hard at work on "The Solid Gold Cadillac," which calls for a complicated set design.

The board also made plans for the Gala Preview of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," for patron members which is tentatively scheduled for October 17. The drive for patron members is now in full swing with each mail swelling the total.

GOOD NEWS

Mrs. Harold L. Woods Jr., chairman of the program committee, gave the board the good news that more businesses than ever before will be represented in this season's theatre program.

Scherck Bogen held a meeting of the casting committee at his home last Monday, attended by Betty Bandy, Jo Brian, Judy Evans, V. P. Dairymple and Ray Vineyard. They were joined by Richard Clark, fresh from his Texas vacation. V. P. has made two western trips this summer, one to Seattle for the fair and one to Yellowstone. In Seattle he enjoyed both "Waiting For Godot," and the Nichols-May show.

Bess and Lamar Mullican have been lost to Lake Providence where he has accepted a teaching post. This is a blow to our Little Theatre which will long remember Lamar as the wily Sakini in "The Teahouse of the August Moon." Norman Jones, last seen in "Five Finger Exercise," is in town for a few weeks prior to a stint in Korea.

OPENING NIGHT

Mrs. C. H. McHenry and Miss LaBlage Feazel are planning to attend the opening night of "The Fantasticks," in New Orleans this Friday. This is the first of two shows to be directed for Gallery Circle Theatre by Ivan Uttal who hopes to visit our playhouse before his return to New York.

Many thanks to Mrs. Charles C. Hall for supplying one of the back programs we need to complete our file. We had hoped last Sunday's Curtain Call would stimulate a greater response, so if you have some prior to 1946, please call FA 5-3200.

We know the Little Theatre of El Dorado is excited over the prospect of doing their first musical, "Guys and Dolls," in November. Perhaps we should start thinking about a chartered bus trip to one of their performances, like the one we made to Jackson.

Try-outs were held this past Wednesday and Thursday nights to select a cast for "The Solid Gold Cadillac." As usual, there were many onlookers in addition to those reading for parts. Among those present on Wednesday were Betty Bandy, Scherck Bogen, Jo Brian, Richard Brooks, Murray Burtford, Feejee Carmack, Mrs. L. H. Carter, Pat Clark, Mary Lou Clay, V. P. Dairymple, Jan Evans, Judy and Bob Evans, John Filhiol, Nancy and Beryl Franklin, Juanita Gentry, Dick Grider, W. J. Haddad, Rande Harrell, Ann Harter, Janice and Robert Hattaway, Norman Jones, Joanne Lay, Mrs. C. H. McHenry, Garland Moore, Al Nelson, Jim Nuckels, R. H. Nobes, Mike Parkerson, Pat Pexton, Ruth and Larry Shipman, Marilyn Taylor, Ray Vineyard, Billy Wells, Sarah Woodmack, and Frances Yeidell. Richard Clark introduced Raymond Lucero and conducted the tryouts.

Eileen Brennan Wins A Role In 'Student Gypsy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Eileen Brennan, who won off-Broadway acclaim as the leading lady of the musical spoof "Little Mary Sunshine," is being reunited with composer Rick Besoyan in her — and his — first Main Stem venture.

Miss Brennan has been cast as the heroine of "The Student Gypsy or the Prince of Liederkranz," which producer Edward Padula has scheduled for January debut.

Since appearing in "Little Mary Sunshine," she has displayed her dramatic ability in the national company of "The Miracle Worker."

DETROIT (AP) — The Minnesota Twins, with Bob Allison's continuing extra-base belting keeping them in the thick of the pennant race, kept up their domination of the Detroit Tigers 9-2 Saturday.

Allison lined two homers as the Twins jumped to an 8-0 lead in the first three innings and swept to their 12th victory in 14 meetings with Detroit.

The triumph enabled the second-place Twins to stick three games behind the New York Yankees in the eighth American League pennant race. The Yankees routed Boston 6-1.

Allison clouted a two-run homer in the first and a solo homer in the third off Don Mossi, who yielded the first eight Minnesota runs. The slugging right fielder has smashed six homers, two doubles and two triples in Minnesota's last 10 games.

Camilo Pascual breezed to his 18th victory behind the early lead. The Cuban right-hander boosted his league - leading strikeout total to 172 by fanning six.

Pascual went the route for the first time since July when he suffered a sore arm. The Twins scored three times in the first, once in the second, and four times in the third, before Frank Lary came on to hold them scoreless until the eighth.

It was the first test of Lary's ailing shoulder since July 29th, when the Tigers put him on the disabled list. Lary, a 23-game winner last year, limited the Twins to two singles in the 4 1-3 innings he pitched.

Lennie Green helped Allison in the Twins' 12-hit assault, banging out three singles and driving in two runs. Pascual also drove in two runs with a bases - loaded walk in the third and a single off reliever Bob Humphreys in the eighth.

Chico Fernandez' second of three singles drove in the Tigers' first run in the third. Dick Brown accounted for the second run with a homer in the fifth.

Tittle Sparks Giants Over Eagles, 27-10

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Quarterback Y. A. Tittle moved the New York Giants to scores the first three times they had the ball Saturday and the National Football League's defending Eastern Conference champions rolled over the Philadelphia Eagles 27-10 in the final exhibition game for both teams.

Before a near sellout crowd of 44,966 in Princeton University's Palmer Stadium, New York's Bobby Gaiters scooted 67 yards for a touchdown on the game's third play.

After a 22-yard field goal by Don Chandler the next time New York had the ball Tittle passed 45 yards to end Joe Walton for another touchdown. He hit Walton again with a 7-yard toss just before the half ended. Chandler added a 46-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Bobby Walston's 34-yard field goal got the Eagles' only points in the first half. Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, who was constantly troubled by the Giants' defensive line, hit Tommy McDonald with a 18-yard pass for a touchdown late in the final period.

Tittle, who directed the Giants for only the first half, completed 12 of 18 passes for 173 yards.

Membership dues, which entitle members to use of the club's 28-target range on Arkansas road, are $3 for individuals, $5 for family groups, and $2 for individual juniors not included in family groups.

Yale football teams have won 59, lost 27, tied four during Jordan Olivar's 11-year reign as head coach.

Phillies Bounce Back To Defeat Milwaukee, 6-4

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8 (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils frittered away a three-run lead on Roy Sievers' 20th homer in the first inning and then bounced back Saturday for a 6-4 victory over the slumping Milwaukee Braves.

A three-run rally in the sixth pulled the Phils from behind and was enough to hand the Braves their ninth defeat in the last 10 games. The loss left sixth place Milwaukee one game away from official elimination in the National League pennant race.

Pierce Gets Credit In Crucial Contest

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran southpaw Billy Pierce hurled San Francisco to a 7-2 win over the Chicago Cubs Saturday for his 14th triumph and the fourth straight win for the surging National League Giants.

San Francisco went into this contest just one-half game behind the pace-setting Los Angeles Dodgers, who had a night game scheduled against Pittsburgh.

Pierce gave up 10 hits and both runs in the seven innings he worked before giving way to a pinch hitter and reliever Bob Bolin.

The 35-year-old Pierce found himself in frequent trouble during the first four innings, but pitched his way out of it to make his record 14-5.

A crowd of 17,643 saw a pitcher's battle during those open frames.

Right-hander Don Cardwell throttled the Giants until two were out in the fifth. Then San Francisco rallied to score four runs on three hits, three walks and a costly error by shortstop Andre Rodgers, a former Giant.

Harvey Kuenn walked to start the first uprising. Chuck Hiller doubled him home and scored on Filipe Alou's single. Willie McCovey singled Alou to third and Willie Mays walked to fill the bases. Matty Alou grounded to Rodgers, who fumbled the ball allowing a run to score and keeping the bases jammed. Ed Bailey walked in a run and Fred Burdette, the second of four Cub pitchers replaced Cardwell, who left with his 15th defeat against seven victories.

Jose Pagan forced Bailey for the third out.

The Cubs scored once in the sixth on singles by Rodgers, Moe Thacker and pinch hitter Billy Ott and again in the seventh on a walk to Ken Hubbs and a single by Ernie Banks that sent Hubbs to third. He scored on a double play.

The winners added three more runs in the eighth, again on three hits and helped by the Cubs fourth error.

Rodgers was charged with his second error in the eighth inning and the Giants added to the Cubs' discomfortures when Filipe Alou stole home while second baseman Hubbs tossed the ball in the air as though playing catch with himself.

Dodgers Stop Losing Streak, Beat Pirates

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rookie left-hander Pete Richert pitched a four-hitter and went the distance for the first time this season as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers broke a three-game losing streak by defeating Pittsburgh 6-1 Saturday night before 49,500.

The victory kept the Dodgers a half-game ahead of the San Francisco Giants, who defeated Chicago earlier in the day.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston juggled his lineup, using rookie catcher Doug Camilli and starting Andy Carey at third and Larry Burright at second. Camilli tripled and singled, batting in a run, and Carey had a double and two RBIs.

Richert (5-3) struck out eight, didn't walk a man and retired a dozen batters in order in one stretch.

The losing pitcher was right-hander Al McBean (15-9), who lasted only 2 1-3 innings and gave up eight of the 11 Dodger hits.

Los Angeles scored twice in the second on a single by Ron Fairly, a triple by Camilli and a double by Carey. With one out in the Dodger third, consecutive singles by Tom Davis, Frank Howard and Fairly produced another run and Jacl Lamabe replaced McBean. Lamabe loaded the bases by walking Camilli, then forced in a run by walking Carey.

Fairly scored on Burright's grounder to second and Camilli came home with an unearned run when second baseman Bill Mazeroski threw past first after fielding the ball and tagging Carey.

The Pirates got their run in the seventh. Bob Clemente led off with a double, took third on Donn Clendenon's fly to deep center and scored when Burright fumbled the throw from the outfield.

Springhill Takes Tight 7-6 Victory

SPRINGHILL (Special) — Springhill scored a second quarter touchdown and got a vital extra point kick by Rodney Tyler to score a 7-6 victory over Haynesville here Saturday night.

The start of the game between the two Class AA rivals was delayed over an hour due to a power failure.

Fullback Don Howell scored the Springhill TD on a four-yard run to cap a 66-yard second quarter drive. Tyler then booted home what proved to be the winning point.

Haynesville's TD came midway in the final period on a 16-yard pass from fullback Frank Busch to end Bill Coltharp. Busch's kick to tie the score was blocked by a trio of Springhill linemen.

Richardson Is Stopped Short By McKinley

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Bounding Chuck McKinley stifled a last gasp rally by Ham Richardson Saturday and advanced to the men's semifinals in the National Tennis Championships with two hot-shot Australians and a nimble Mexican.

The St. Ann, Mo., butterball was coasting along with two sets and a 5-1 lead when Richardson, in semi-retirement from tennis since he became a stock salesman in Dallas, rallied brilliantly. McKinley finally fought off the former Davis Cupper and won 6-2, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4.

ARNOLD PALMER uses a 3 wood after his tee shot landed in deep rough on the fourth hole in the World Series of Golf Saturday. The ball moved only a few feet. A second shot from the rough put the ball on the green. Palmer then sank an 18-foot putt to give him a par 4 on the hole. (AP Wirephoto)

Sterlington Rolls To 22-0 Grid Win

STERLINGTON (Special) — The 1962 edition of Sterlington High School's football squad rolled up a 22-0 victory over Ouachita Parish High School's "B" team in its season opener here Saturday night.

The Sterlington squad scored on a short three yard drive by Buddy Hemler in the first period. Halfback Tommy Bonner scooted 15-yards around end for another Sterlington tally in the second quarter, and a pass-play from quarterback Steve Hendrix to Jerry Seffens was good for the final six - pointer in the last stanza. Sterlington added two more points the same period on a safety.

Seffens, Hemler and Bonner sparked the Sterlington lads to the offensive win while a strong defensive Sterlington line hampered Ouachita's scoring attempts.

Sterlington scored midway into the first period when Hemler's three-yard plunge capped a 25-yard drive. The host team moved into scoring position when the junior Lions punted from their one to their 25-yard line.

Seffens kicked the extra point. He toed another PAT after Bonner broke loose for a 15-yard sweep early in the second quarter. Again, Sterlington began its TD drive from the Ouachita 25-yard line. A fumble on the kick off following Sterlington's first tally placed the hosts in scoring position for this one.

Both teams were unable to move until late in the second quarter when Ouachita presented its only serious scoring threat of the contest. Ouachita halfback McNarian broke from his own 45 and dashed to the Sterlington 14 before halfback Seffens caught him from behind. The Lion juniors fujbled three plays later and end Harry Stevens recovered for the Sterlington team.

The third was the only scoreless quarter with each team holding its own and exchanging fumbles. Sterlington had possession of the ball at the end of the period on the Ouachita 50.

A 30-yard pass play from quarterback Hendrix to Seffens in the first play of the fourth period accounted for the final Sterlington TD. Seffens missed the kick after.

Ouachita quarterback Gilstrap was caughtt behind the goal by Stevens only three plays after a Sterlington punt placed Ouchita on its own 25-yard line.

Houston Sweeps 2 Games From Mets, 6-5, 4-3

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts stretched their winning streak to six games Saturday by sweeping the New York Mets 4-3 and 6-5 in 10 innings in a day-night doubleheader.

Roger Craig, after blowing a 4-1 lead, wild pitched home the deciding run in the nightcap after the Colts had won the opener with two runs in the last of the ninth. The pair of losses stretched the Mets' latest losing string to six. Craig lost his sixth in a row and his 23rd against seven victories.

The Colts tied the second game at 5-5 on a run-scoring single by rookie Dave Roberts in the eighth. In the 10th, Bob Lillis singled, was sacrificed to second, and advanced to third on an infield out. With Roberts at bat, Craig cut loose with the wild pitch that enabled Lillis to race home with the winning run.

Haynes' four touchdowns were within one of the AFL record held by himself and Billy Cannon of Houston. Abner gained 122 yards running with the ball on 19 carries to make it another big night for Dallas' biggest star.

Nicklaus 1 Out; Player 4 Behind

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Masters and British Open champion Arnold Palmer matched the course record with a scintillating 31-34-65 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead over National Open champion Jack Nicklaus and went four ahead of PGA king Gary Player in the opening round of the 36-hole World Series of Golf.

The Latrobe, Pa., belter, his putter a fiery wand, used only 25 putts in his sensational tour of Firestone Country Club's 7,165 yard par 35-35—70 course, one of America's toughest tests.

The titled trio plays the final 18-hole round Sunday, and the $50,000 top prize could go to any of them. The second placer gets $15,000, the third placer $10,000 at the end of the 36 holes.

The last six holes were staged before the color cameras of NBC-TV on a nationwide hookup, but most of the fireworks exploded before they started grinding.

Palmer, showing a lot of early foot, birdied the first three holes but could gain only a stroke on Nicklaus, who birdied the first and third. Palmer chipped in from 30 feet on the first hole, after his strong approach had hit a galleryite on the edge of the green—a break which prevented his ball from bounding down a grass-bare hill into a water hazard. Nicklaus capped it with a 15-footer to stay even.

Palmer was trapped on the second, blasted to three feet for his second straight birdie, and on the third he ran down a 20-footer after Nicklaus had birdied from 22 feet away.

The most fantastic hole for Palmer was the fourth. He hooked his drive into a grove of trees to the edge of a deep gully. The ball was waist high as he used a three-wood with a baseball-type swing, only to sky the ball into more deep rough behind a row of trees. But he lifted the ball over the obstacle, landed 12 feet from the pin and got down in par 4. That matched Nicklaus and Player, who played it the regular way, on in two and two putts.

Ten birdies were scored by the terrific trio before the cameras picked 'em up at the 13th hole. In the spotlight's glare, only three sub-par scores were registered—and Palmer got his only bogey of the day as he flubbed a short chip from beside the green on the 13th.

Nicklaus, in manufacturing his sterling 66 with 33-33, had five birdies and one bogey. He canned putts of 15, 22, 30, 12 and 6 feet for his sub-par holes. On the eighth his drive was in the rough, behind trees, his second in a trap, causing him to lose a stroke.

Player, the compact South African, had 14 pars and two birdies coming to the final hole, but he three putted from 90 feet on that acre-sized green for a bogey to finish with 35-34—69.

Palmer had nine one - putt greens in addition to the first where he didn't use any. His birdie putts were 3, 20, 4, 6, and 6 feet. Nicklaus consumed 28 shots on the greens, Player 31—the latter hanging at least six on the rim of the cup.

Despite Palmer's fast getaway, Nicklaus caught him at the end of seven holes when he deuced the 225-yarder. Disaster hit the 22-year-old Open king from Columbus on the 450-yard eighth however, Palmer getting a birdie as Jack scored his lone bogey. That put Palmer two strokes ahead.

Nicklaus got one back with a birdie on the tenth, lost it to Palmer's deuce on the 12th, and was only one down after Arnie bogeyed the 13th. Palmer went two ahead on the long 16th lake hole, where he was nearly hole-high on the 625-yarder in two blows. But Nicklaus sank a 6-foot birdie putt on the 17th to pick up a stroke. They halved the closing hole in pars.

Starr, Roach Lead Packers To 20-14 Win

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Bart Starr and his understudy, John Roach, passed the Green Bay Packers to a 20-14 National Football League exhibition victory Saturday night over the Washington Redskins.

It was the 19th consecutive victory for the world champion Packers in exhibition contests. They have not been beaten in preseason competition since 1959.

Starr, who went off the field in the third quarter limping with an apparent ankle injury, threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ron Kramer in the first period and another for three yards to Max McGee in the third.

Roach, who quarterbacked the Packers for most of the second half, added another TD on a 16-yard pass to Tom Moore in the second quarter. Halfback Paul Hornung kicked two conversions, but missed the third, and also made two unsuccessful field goal attempts.

The most spectacular play of the game was a 61-yard Washington scoring pass from quarterback George Izo to the speedy Bobby Mitchell late in the final period.

Mitchell caught the ball on the 25 and outran his pursuers. Ed Khayat booted the conversion.

The other Washington tally came on a quarterback sneak by Norman Snead. Khayat booted the extra point.

A shirt-sleeved crowd estimated at 16,000 saw the game.

Pierce Gets Credit In Crucial Contest

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran southpaw Billy Pierce hurled San Francisco to a 7-2 win over the Chicago Cubs Saturday for his 14th triumph and the fourth straight win for the surging National League Giants.

San Francisco went into this contest just one-half game behind the pace-setting Los Angeles Dodgers, who had a night game scheduled against Pittsburgh.

Pierce gave up 10 hits and both runs in the seven innings he worked before giving way to a pinch hitter and reliever Bob Bolin.

The 35-year-old Pierce found himself in frequent trouble during the first four innings, but pitched his way out of it to make his record 14-5.

A crowd of 17,643 saw a pitcher's battle during those open frames.

Right-hander Don Cardwell throttled the Giants until two were out in the fifth. Then San Francisco rallied to score four runs on three hits, three walks and a costly error by shortstop Andre Rodgers, a former Giant.

Harvey Kuenn walked to start the first uprising. Chuck Hiller doubled him home and scored on Filipe Alou's single. Willie McCovey singled Alou to third and Willie Mays walked to fill the bases. Matty Alou grounded to Rodgers, who fumbled the ball allowing a run to score and keeping the bases jammed. Ed Bailey walked in a run and Fred Burdette, the second of four Cub pitchers replaced Cardwell, who left with his 15th defeat against seven victories.

Jose Pagan forced Bailey for the third out.

The Cubs scored once in the sixth on singles by Rodgers, Moe Thacker and pinch hitter Billy Ott and again in the seventh on a walk to Ken Hubbs and a single by Ernie Banks that sent Hubbs to third. He scored on a double play.

The winners added three more runs in the eighth, again on three hits and helped by the Cubs fourth error.

Rodgers was charged with his second error in the eighth inning and the Giants added to the Cubs' discomfortures when Filipe Alou stole home while second baseman Hubbs tossed the ball in the air as though playing catch with himself.

Bob Allison Belts Twins By Tigers

By JERRY GREEN

DETROIT (AP) — The Minnesota Twins, with Bob Allison's continuing extra-base belting keeping them in the thick of the pennant race, kept up their domination of the Detroit Tigers 9-2 Saturday.

Allison lined two homers as the Twins jumped to an 8-0 lead in the first three innings and swept to their 12th victory in 14 meetings with Detroit.

The triumph enabled the second-place Twins to stick three games behind the New York Yankees in the eighth American League pennant race. The Yankees routed Boston 6-1.

Allison clouted a two-run homer in the first and a solo homer in the third off Don Mossi, who yielded the first eight Minnesota runs. The slugging right fielder has smashed six homers, two doubles and two triples in Minnesota's last 10 games.

Camilo Pascual breezed to his 18th victory behind the early lead. The Cuban right-hander boosted his league - leading strikeout total to 172 by fanning six.

Pascual went the route for the first time since July when he suffered a sore arm. The Twins scored three times in the first, once in the second, and four times in the third, before Frank Lary came on to hold them scoreless until the eighth.

It was the first test of Lary's ailing shoulder since July 29th, when the Tigers put him on the disabled list. Lary, a 23-game winner last year, limited the Twins to two singles in the 4 1-3 innings he pitched.

Lennie Green helped Allison in the Twins' 12-hit assault, banging out three singles and driving in two runs. Pascual also drove in two runs with a bases - loaded walk in the third and a single off reliever Bob Humphreys in the eighth.

Chico Fernandez' second of three singles drove in the Tigers' first run in the third. Dick Brown accounted for the second run with a homer in the fifth.

Tittle Sparks Giants Over Eagles, 27-10

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Quarterback Y. A. Tittle moved the New York Giants to scores the first three times they had the ball Saturday and the National Football League's defending Eastern Conference champions rolled over the Philadelphia Eagles 27-10 in the final exhibition game for both teams.

Before a near sellout crowd of 44,966 in Princeton University's Palmer Stadium, New York's Bobby Gaiters scooted 67 yards for a touchdown on the game's third play.

After a 22-yard field goal by Don Chandler the next time New York had the ball Tittle passed 45 yards to end Joe Walton for another touchdown. He hit Walton again with a 7-yard toss just before the half ended. Chandler added a 46-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Bobby Walston's 34-yard field goal got the Eagles' only points in the first half. Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, who was constantly troubled by the Giants' defensive line, hit Tommy McDonald with a 18-yard pass for a touchdown late in the final period.

Tittle, who directed the Giants for only the first half, completed 12 of 18 passes for 173 yards.

Yale football teams have won 59, lost 27, tied four during Jordan Olivar's 11-year reign as head coach.

Dodgers Stop Losing Streak, Beat Pirates

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rookie left-hander Pete Richert pitched a four-hitter and went the distance for the first time this season as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers broke a three-game losing streak by defeating Pittsburgh 6-1 Saturday night before 49,500.

The victory kept the Dodgers a half-game ahead of the San Francisco Giants, who defeated Chicago earlier in the day.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston juggled his lineup, using rookie catcher Doug Camilli and starting Andy Carey at third and Larry Burright at second. Camilli tripled and singled, batting in a run, and Carey had a double and two RBIs.

Richert (5-3) struck out eight, didn't walk a man and retired a dozen batters in order in one stretch.

The losing pitcher was right-hander Al McBean (15-9), who lasted only 2 1-3 innings and gave up eight of the 11 Dodger hits.

Los Angeles scored twice in the second on a single by Ron Fairly, a triple by Camilli and a double by Carey. With one out in the Dodger third, consecutive singles by Tom Davis, Frank Howard and Fairly produced another run and Jacl Lamabe replaced McBean. Lamabe loaded the bases by walking Camilli, then forced in a run by walking Carey.

Fairly scored on Burright's grounder to second and Camilli came home with an unearned run when second baseman Bill Mazeroski threw past first after fielding the ball and tagging Carey.

The Pirates got their run in the seventh. Bob Clemente led off with a double, took third on Donn Clendenon's fly to deep center and scored when Burright fumbled the throw from the outfield.

Phillies Bounce Back To Defeat Milwaukee, 6-4

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8 (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils frittered away a three-run lead on Roy Sievers' 20th homer in the first inning and then bounced back Saturday for a 6-4 victory over the slumping Milwaukee Braves.

A three-run rally in the sixth pulled the Phils from behind and was enough to hand the Braves their ninth defeat in the last 10 games. The loss left sixth place Milwaukee one game away from official elimination in the National League pennant race.

Springhill Takes Tight 7-6 Victory

SPRINGHILL (Special) — Springhill scored a second quarter touchdown and get a vital extra point kick by Rodney Tyler to score a 7-6 victory over Haynesville here Saturday night.

The start of the game between the two Class AA rivals was delayed over an hour due to a power failure.

Fullback Don Howell scored the Springhill TD on a four-yard run to cap a 66-yard second quarter drive. Tyler then booted home what proved to be the winning point.

Haynesville's TD came midway in the final period on a 16-yard pass from fullback Frank Busch to end Bill Coltharp. Busch's kick to tie the score was blocked by trio of Springhill linemen.

Richardson Is Stopped Short By McKinley

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Bounding Chuck McKinley stifled a last gasp rally by Ham Richardson Saturday and advanced to the men's semifinals in the National Tennis Championships with two hot-shot Australians and a nimble Mexican.

The St. Ann, Mo., butterball was coasting along with two sets and a 5-1 lead when Richardson, in semi-retirement from tennis since he became a stock salesman in Dallas, rallied brilliantly. McKinley finally fought off the former Davis Cupper and won 6-2, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4.

IN SEASON OPENER

Sterlington Rolls To 22-0 Grid Win

STERLINGTON (Special) — The 1962 edition of Sterlington High School's football squad rolled up a 22-0 victory over Ouachita Parish High School's "B" team in its season opener here Saturday night.

The Sterlington squad scored on a short three yard drive by Buddy Hemler in the first period. Halfback Tommy Bonner scooted 15-yards around end for another Sterlington tally in the second quarter, and a pass-play from quarterback Steve Hendrix to Jerry Seffens was good for the final six - pointer in the last stanza. Sterlington added two more points the same period on a safety.

Seffens, Hemler and Bonner sparked the Sterlington lads to the offnsive win while a strong defensive Sterlington line hampered Ouachita's scoring attempts.

Sterlington scored midway into the first period when Hemler's three-yard plunge capped a 25-yard drive. The host team moved into scoring position when the junior Lions punted from their one to their 25-yard line.

Seffens kicked the extra point. He toed another PAT after Bonner broke loose for a 15-yard sweep early in the second quarter. Again, Sterlington began its TD drive from the Ouachita 25-yard line. A fumble on the kick off following Sterlington's first tally placed the hosts in scoring position for this one.

Both teams were unable to move until late in the second quarter when Ouachita presented its only serious scoring threat of the contest. Ouachita halfback McNarian broke from his own 45 and dashed to the Sterlington 14 before halfback Seffens caughtt him from behind. The Lion juniors fujbled three plays later and end Harry Stevens recovered for the Sterlington team.

The third was the only scoreless quarter with each team holding its own and exchanging fumbles. Sterlington had possession of the ball at the end of the period on the Ouachita 30.

A 30-yard pass play from quarterback Hendrix to Seffens in the first play of the fourth period accounted for the final Sterlington TD. Seffens missed the kick after.

Ouachita quarterback Gilstrap was caughtt behind the goal by Stevens only three plays after a Sterlington punt placed Ouchita on its own 25-yard line.

Southside Wins Over Calhoun 9 In Delta Action

Southside of Monroe gained the finals in Delta League play Saturday night by downing Calhoun, 3-2, at Legion Stadium.

Southside must now await the outcome of Monday night's game between Swartz and Chatham to find out who its opponent will be in the championship series.

Southside used the combined pitching of L. M. Welch, who got credit for the win, and Bobby Satterfield to gain the important win. The two moundsmen limited Calhoun to four hits.

Jerry Lovette was charged with the loss.

Eddie McGowen with 2-4, Satterfield with 2-3, and Welch with 1-1 paced the winners' offensive attack.

Finley had 2-5 for the losers.

Houston Sweeps 2 Games From Mets, 6-5, 4-3

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts stretched their winning streak to six games Saturday by sweeping the New York Mets 4-3 and 6-5 in 10 innings in a day-night doubleheader.

Roger Craig, after blowing a 4-1 lead, wild pitched home the deciding run in the nightcap after the Colts had won the opener with two runs in the last of the ninth. The pair of losses stretched the Mets' latest losing string to six. Craig lost his sixth in a row and his 23rd against seven victories.

The Colts tied the second game at 5-5 on a run-scoring single by rookie Dave Roberts in the eighth. In the 10th, Bob Lillis singled, was sacrificed to second, and advanced to third on an infield out. With Roberts at bat, Craig cut loose with the wild pitch that enabled Lillis to race home with the winning run.

Abner Haynes Scores Four TD's In Win

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Abner Haynes ran 2, 25 and 29 yards for touchdowns and caught a 9-yard pass for another Saturday night in leading the Dallas Texans to a 42-28 triumph over Boston's Patriots in an American Football League opener.

Haynes' four touchdowns were within one of the AFL record held by himself and Billy Cannon of Houston. Abner gained 122 yards running with the ball on 19 carries to make it another big night for Dallas' biggest star.

Starr, Roach Lead Packers To 20-14 Win

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Bart Starr and his understudy, John Roach, passed the Green Bay Packers to a 20-14 National Football League exhibition victory Saturday night over the Washington Redskins.

It was the 19th consecutive victory for the world champion Packers in exhibition contests. They have not been beaten in preseason competition since 1959.

Starr, who went off the field in the third quarter limping with an apparent ankle injury, threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ron Kramer in the first period and another for three yards to Max McGee in the third.

Roach, who quarterbacked the Packers for most of the second half, added another TD on a 10-yard pass to Tom Moore in the second quarter. Halfback Paul Hornung kicked two conversions, but missed the third, and also made two unsuccessful field goal attempts.

The most spectacular play of the game was a 64-yard Washington scoring pass from quarterback George Izo to the speedy Bobby Mitchell late in the final period.

Mitchell caught the ball on the 25 and outran his pursuers. Ed Khayat booted the conversion.

The other Washington tally came on a quarterback sneak by Norman Snead. Khayat booted the extra point.

A shirt-sleeved crowd estimated at 16,000 saw the game.

Bombers Defeat Bosox With Ford

Protect Lead Over Twins With 6-1 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, with the help of Jim Coates, pitched his 15th triumph of the season as the New York Yankees vanquished the Boston Red Sox 6-1 Saturday to protect their lead over the Minnesota Twins.

Ford, who spaced six hits in five innings before he was forced to retire because of an injury, also received fine batting support from Bobby Richardson, Bill Skowron and Clete Boyer. The trio collected seven of the Yankees' 10 hits off loser Don Schwall and three successors.

Richardson had a single, double, triple and sacrifice for a perfect day at the plate, driving in a run and scoring another. Skowron had a single, double and walk while Boyer drove home a pair of runs with a single and double.

Ford was hit with a pitch in the left thigh in the third inning and was forced to quit three innings later when the injured area began to stiffen. The injury was not considered serious and the veteran left-hander is expected to take his regular turn on the mound next Wednesday.

Coates pitched scoreless ball through the last four innings. He worked his way out of a one-out bases-loaded jam in the eighth by striking out Chuck Schilling and pinch hitter Russ Nixon.

Eddie Bressoud has three of the Red Sox' nine hits and scored their only run. That came in the third inning when the shortstop singled, advanced to third on another single by Carl Yastrzemski, and scored when Richardson fumbled Lu Clinton's grounder.

The Yankees got that run back in their half of the third when Ford was hit by a pitch, Tony Kubek beat out a bunt, Richardson bunted for a sacrifice and Tommy Tresh flied deep to Clinton.

Boyer's single following Skowron's two-bagger put the Yankees in front 2-1 in the fourth. New York made it 3-1 in the fifth on Richardson's double and Roger Maris' run-scoring single.

The Yankees iced the game against Mike Fornieles in the sixth, scoring three runs before southpaw Arnold Earley could end the uprising.

AREA DOVE SHOOTING

Dove hunting has been spotty in Northeast Louisiana since the shooting began September 1st, but hunters who found the hot spots have had good shoots.

All in all we don't think the doves have bunched up like they were this time last year. Biologist Cliff Williams shares the same opinion.

Cliff and his men checked about 125 hunters the first three days of the season. Their studies showed an average kill of five birds per hunter, which is better than a lot of reports that we heard from.

But on the other hand, there were reports of other hunters who got their limits. It would be safe to predict, however, that most hunters failed to bag 12 doves on opening day.

Most of the hunting was done in corn fields and over cotton, in addition to around waterholes. The grain fields aren't right yet.

And as usual, most of the doves killed were immature birds. Cliff says the biologists found in their checks that 70 per cent of the birds were young, 30 per cent mature.

Here again the argument against the early season pops up, but it should be remembered that the mortality rate among doves is great. In fact, studies have found that 60 to 70 per cent of the young birds will die of natural causes.

That's perhaps the biggest reason for the early season — to give the hunter a chance to shoot birds that will die anyway.

Most of our native doves will begin migrating by about September 20th, so the early season again gives the area hunter a chance to shoot birds that will move on later.

When the native bird moves out, probably to East Texas and some to Mississippi, Louisiana then begins to pick up on birds that migrate here from other states.

The migration of the dove is not predictable as much so as that of waterfowl, but more than likely birds migrating to Louisiana come from other Mississippi Flyway states — just like ducks.

At any rate dove shooting should be better when the birds flock and when the grain fields begin to produce. This first leg of the three-split season will end September 16th.

By the time the second half begins, which is October 13-28, dove hunting is expected to be much improved. The third and last leg is December 7 through January 13.

Despite the success or the lack of success on the part of the hunters, dove shooting has come of age in Northeast Louisiana. It's an excellent way to polish the ole shooting eye and train a youngster how to hunt safely.

REFUGES FOR WATERFOWL

The U. S. Department of the Interior released a statement recently regarding the authorization of three new wildlife refuges totaling 26,502 acres and the purchase of 8,444 acres for enlarging two existing refuges.

Whether these moves will be of benefit to the waterfowl picture of the Mississippi Flyway we cannot say, but at least it's encouraging to see somebody in Washington doing something to help the waterfowl problems.

According to the department's release, the Migratory Bird Commission authorized the establishment of these new wildlife refuges:

Prunehook National Wildlife Refuge with 11,233 acres in Sussex County, Delaware; the Toppenish National Wildlife Refuge, 12,379 acres in the Yakima River watershed, near Toppenish, Washington; and the Lake Nettie National Wildlife Refuge, 2,890 acres, in McLean County, North Dakota.

Scheduled for enlargement are the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge in New Jersey where an additional 7,603 acres were authorized, and the Mackay Island National Wildlife Refuge in North Carolina and Virginia where the purchase of an additional 841 acres was approved.

Not one of these areas fit into the Mississippi Flyway picture.

But all of the proposed plans for the expansion and creation of wildlife refuges are being made in areas where the future of wildlife is being threatened by one means or another — industry or otherwise.

ANY DEER SEASONS

While Tensas Parish will have the only any-deer season in Northeast Louisiana this year, hunters in 36 Arkansas counties will be permitted to shoot "any" deer.

In Arkansas, the any-deer provision, without the use of dogs, applies to 26 counties the first December period and to 29 counties the last period.

But the November season will appiy to only nine counties for "any" deer hunting, including Ashley, Chicot (both in our area), Arkansas, Desha, Drew, Lincoln, Union, Monroe and Phillips.

This points up a big thing.

Arkansas has more deer than Louisiana does. Hunters kill more deer in Arkansas than they do in Louisiana.

In an effort to keep its deer population in balance, Arkansas has "any" deer seasons.

SPORTSMEN ON RECORD

For information purposes, last year was a big year in sports atfield.

A census conducted by the federal government in all but four states disclosed that a total of 11,798,890 persons purchased hunting licenses. This was an increase of 13,000 over 1960.

This, of course, does not include the many hunters who are not required to purchase a license — like the youngsters, people over 65 and others in the armed forces.

But the census showed that the hunters with licenses spent $64,062,782 just for a licenses, stamps, tags and permits—about $61,000 more than in 1960.

Louisiana, for example, had over 260,000 licensed hunters.

The same census also showed a total of 19,394,177 sport fishermen bought licenses in 50 states — an increase of over 300,000 in 1960.

They spent over $52-million just for licenses.

In Louisiana, there were almost 139,000 fishermen with licenses. But think of what it would have been if canepole fishermen had to have a license.

LITTLE MAN'S CORNER

It was hot, but the doves were flying and the little men made news afield.

Hunters getting the limit of birds were in the minority, but there were some — like Buddy Newmann of Monroe, who got his limit three days running in Morehouse Parish.

Harry Cooper of Monroe also got his limit on the first day out, but found it rough the next day, mainly because of the company he was keeping. Cooper didn't fare so well when he joined a group of conservationists in Grady Merriman, R. B. Martin and Walter Pierron Jr. They didn't quite get the limit.

The Lake Providence area produced some good shooting the first two or three days. One hunter, Lloyd Posey of Minden, bagged his limit with a muzzleloader.

Hunters said you could hear the trigger snap, then hear the boom.

Others bagging the limit in the Lake Providence area were Dr. George Wright, Inden, and from Lake Providence — Wayne Baker, H. H. Howington, Graham Schneider, Pop Patrick, Jack Brown, Michael Brown, Dr. Bernard Waxman, Pilcher Gilfoil, J. E. Brown, Jim Baur Sr. and Jim Baur Jr., Van Hicks, Kiley Thames, Ivan Haas, Jim Herrington, Doug Cheatham and James Harold Crews.

And on the fishing scene, Joe Sanders of Jena continues to catch the limit of bass in Little River.

Successful bass fishermen lately in the Ferriday area include Charley Sutton, Cecil Sutherland and Ear Warren.

EIGHT GAME SCHEDULE

No Breather For Indians During 1962 Grid Season

Short on quantity but mighty long on quality — that's a capsule commentary on Northeast State's 1962 football schedule.

Coach Jack Rowan's Indians will play only eight opponents this fall but there's not a breather in the lot.

Gulf States Conference opponents make up the meat of the Tribe slate and they're enough to make any schedule rugged. The tight little loop annually produces some of the finest players in the country.

Northeast's first GSC foe is Northwestern, which invades for the annual homecoming game Oct. 6 in Brown Stadium. Always tough, Jack Clayton's Demons appear even rougher than usual this fall with 29 lettermen, the most returning experienced players in the conference, back from the 1961 club that was 7-3 and remained in contention for the conference title until the final weekend. With probably the most elusive back in the conference in all-GSC Kenny Thompson and a fine tackle in Jerry Fowler, the Demons are loaded. Clayton's fellow GSC coaches have voted Northwestern the pre - season conference favorite.

There's no letup for Northeast after the Northwestern game because the next foe on the slate is McNeese, 1961 co-champion and rated second by League coaches in this year's pre-season poll. Les DeVall is expected to present another typically tough defensive club with a heavier emphasis than usual on rushing, since fine Cowboy passer Don Breaux has graduated.

The other 1961 co - champion, Southeastern is Northeast's Oct. 20 opponent in Hammond. Heaviest hit of any GSC club by graduation, the Lions are still highly-regarded since 16 good lettermen are back and a fine group of transfers and freshmen are available. However, the main reason Southeastern is not taken lightly is Coach Stan Galloway, who always cries loudest in August but always seems to come up with a winner.

Northeast will meet the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Shreveport again this season. The two teams opened a State Fair Stadium series last fall with Northeast taking a thrilling 27-20 victory. This year's game is set for Oct. 27 and should be just as good. Southwestern, like Northeast, was predominately a freshmen - sophomore club in 1961 and the youngsters will be a lot tougher this year.

After a Nov. 3 open date, the Indians end their GSC schedule against Louisiana Tech in Monroe Nov. 10. Tech boasts one of 1961's top aerial batteries in quarter-back Mickey Slaughter and end Jerry Griffin, a combination that makes the Bulldogs a threat to score from any place on the field.

Northeast's none - conference schedule is also imposing. The Indians have one of their most rugged opening assignments in history this year — a Sept. 22 game with Lamar Tech in Brown Stadium. Tech was third in the strong Lone Star Conference last year, finished the regular season with a 7-2-1 record and defeated Middle Tennessee State, 21-14, in the Tangerine Bowl. Lamar has one of Texas' top collegiate passers, Windell Hebert, who is no stranger to Northeast fans. Hebert threw touchdown passes of 64 and 55 yards in the last six minutes of last year's game to give Lamar a 38-34 victory over the Indians.

Another Lone Star Conference team, East Texas State, is next on the schedule Sept. 29 in Commerce, Tex. The East Texans have doubtless been scheming all summer on how to repay the Indians for a 36-0 pasting last year, the worst defeat suffered by East Texas in 1961.

Northeast ends its season Nov. 17 with a game in Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State. The Statesmen lost heavily from last year's fine team, seventh in the nation in rushing offense with a 275.5 yard average, but have a fine crop of transfers on hand.

Tickets for all Northeast home games may be obtained by calling the athletic department, FA 5-6361, extension 371, or FA 5-1804.

BAXTER BLOWS-UP

Johnston Grabs Lead In Denver

DENVER (AP)—Bill Johnston sailed through the third round with a 69, 1-under-par, to grab the lead in the Denver Open golf tournament Saturday as two-day leader Rex Baxter Jr. blew to 78, after setting a course record 64 in the first round.

Johnston's 207 total gave him a stroke lead over George Bayer and Bob Goalby, who fired the tourney's only eagle on the way to a 67. Bayer had 71. Goalby scored the eagle on the par 4 388-yard No. 4 hole where his wedge shot from 70 yards away rolled into the cup.

Baxter started the day with a three-stroke lead over the field.

Cards In Win Over Redlegs By 5-4 Count

CINCINNATI (AP) St. Louis made the most of seven hits and with Don Ferrarese pitching in support of Larry Jackson cut down Cincinnati's third place Reds Saturday night 5-4 in a rain spattered game.

Jackson had skillfully scattered nine hits until the ninth when Leo Cardenas led off with a single.

Jackson fanned Roglio Alvarez and threw out Eddie Kasko but Don Blasingame followed with a scoring single to deep right.

Ferrarese took over and after a moment of control trouble that put Blasingame on second via a wild pitch, fanned dangerous Vada Pinson to seal the decision.

Gene Oliver's 11th homer headed a Cardinal attack that stopped a Reds' winning streak at five games.

The last five innings were played in a light drizzle.

Jackson scored what proved the deciding marker himself in the seventh after leading off with a double. Julian Javier sacrificed and after Stan Musial drew a walk, Jackson darted home on Curt Flood's sacrifice fly.

Flood, a onetime Redleg, made two spectacular catches in the outfield in the sixth inning after drizzle had made the area slippery.

Jackson had to pitch his way out of trouble after giving up two hits in the seventh, and one in the eighth.

The Cards, who picked up three unearned runs from the Reds Friday night, took in another in the first inning on a pair of two-out singles followed by a miscue by substitute first baseman Marty Keough.

Bombers Defeat Bosox With Ford

Protect Lead Over Twins With 6-1 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, with the help of Jim Coates, pitched his 15th triumph of the season as the New York Yankees vanquished the Boston Red Sox 6-1 Saturday to protect their lead over the Minnesota Twins.

Ford, who spaced six hits in five innings before he was forced to retire because of an injury, also received fine batting support from Bobby Richardson, Bill Skowron and Cletis Boyer. The trio collected seven of the Yankees' 10 hits off loser Don Schwall and three successors.

Richardson had a single, double, triple and sacrifice for a perfect day at the plate, driving in a run and scoring another. Skowron had a single, double and walk while Boyer drove home a pair of runs with a single and double.

Ford was hit with a pitch in the left thigh in the third inning and was forced to quit three innings later when the injured area began to stiffen. The injury was not considered serious and the veteran left-hander is expected to take his regular turn on the mound next Wednesday.

Coates pitched scoreless ball through the last four innings. He worked his way out of a one-out bases-loaded jam in the eighth by striking out Chuck Schilling and pinch hitter Russ Nixon.

Eddie Bressoud has three of the Red Sox' nine hits and scored their only run. That came in the third inning when the shortstop singled, advanced to third on another single by Carl Yastrzemski, and scored when Richardson fumbled Lu Clinton's grounder.

The Yankees got that run back in their half of the third when Ford was hit by a pitch, Tony Kubek beat out a bunt, Richardson bunted for a sacrifice and Tommy Tresh flied deep to Clinton.

Boyer's single following Skowron's two-bagger put the Yankees in front 2-1 in the fourth. New York made it 3-1 in the fifth on Richardson's double and Roger Maris' run-scoring single.

The Yankees iced the game against Mike Fornieles in the sixth, scoring three runs before southpaw Arnold Earley could end the uprising.

AREA DOVE SHOOTING

Dove hunting has been spotty in Northeast Louisiana since the shooting began September 1st, but hunters who found the hot spots have had good shoots.

All in all we don't think the doves have bunched up like they were this time last year. Biologist Cliff Williams shares the same opinion.

Cliff and his men checked about 125 hunters the first three days of the season. Their studies showed an average kill of five birds per hunter, which is better than a lot of reports that we heard from.

But on the other hand, there were reports of other hunters who got their limits. It would be safe to predict, however, that most hunters failed to bag 12 doves on opening day.

Most of the hunting was done in corn fields and over cotton, in addition to around waterholes. The grain fields aren't right yet.

And as usual, most of the doves killed were immature birds. Cliff says the biologists found in their checks that 70 per cent of the birds were young, 30 per cent mature.

Here again the argument against the early season pops up, but it should be remembered that the mortality rate among doves is great. In fact, studies have found that 60 to 70 per cent of the young birds will die of natural causes.

That's perhaps the biggest reason for the early season — to give the hunter a chance to shoot birds that will die anyway.

Most of our native doves will begin migrating by about September 20th, so the early season again gives the area hunter a chance to shoot birds that will move on later.

When the native bird moves out, probably to East Texas and some to Mississippi, Louisiana then begins to pick up on birds that migrate here from other states.

The migration of the dove is not predictable as much so as that of waterfowl, but more than likely birds migrating to Louisiana come from other Mississippi Flyway states — just like ducks.

At any rate dove shooting should be better when the birds flock and when the grain fields begin to produce. This first leg of the three-split season will end September 16th.

By the time the second half begins, which is October 13-28, dove hunting is expected to be much improved. The third and last leg is December 7 through January 13.

Despite the success or the lack of success on the part of the hunters, dove shooting has come of age in Northeast Louisiana. It's an excellent way to polish the ole shooting eye and train a youngster how to hunt safely.

REFUGES FOR WATERFOWL

The U. S. Department of the Interior released a statement recently regarding the authorization of three new wildlife refuges totaling 26,502 acres and the purchase of 8,444 acres for enlarging two existing refuges.

Whether these moves will be of benefit to the waterfowl picture of the Mississippi Flyway we cannot say, but at least it's encouraging to see somebody in Washington doing something to help the waterfowl problems.

According to the department's release, the Migratory Bird Commission authorized the establishment of these new wildlife refuges:

Primehook National Wildlife Refuge with 11,233 acres in Sussex County, Delaware; the Toppenish National Wildlife Refuge, 12,379 acres in the Yakima River watershed, near Toppenish, Washington; and the Lake Nettie National Wildlife Refuge, 2,890 acres, in McLean County, North Dakota.

Scheduled for enlargement are the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge in New Jersey where an additional 7,603 acres were authorized, and the Mackay Island National Wildlife Refuge in North Carolina and Virginia where the purchase of an additional 841 acres was approved.

Not one of these areas fit into the Mississippi Flyway picture.

But all of the proposed plans for the expansion and creation of wildlife refuges are being made in areas where the future of wildlife is being threatened by one means or another — industry or otherwise.

ANY DEER SEASONS

While Tensas Parish will have the only any-deer season in Northeast Louisiana this year, hunters in 36 Arkansas counties will be permitted to shoot "any" deer.

In Arkansas, the any-deer provision, without the use of dogs, applies to 26 counties the first December period and to 29 counties the last period.

But the November season will appiy to only nine counties for "any" deer hunting, including Ashley, Chicot (both in our area), Arkansas, Desha, Drew, Lincoln, Union, Monroe and Phillips.

This points up a big thing.

Arkansas has more deer than Louisiana does. Hunters kill more deer in Arkansas than they do in Louisiana.

In an effort to keep its deer population in balance, Arkansas has "any" deer seasons.

SPORTSMEN ON RECORD

For information purposes, last year was a big year in sports afield.

A census conducted by the federal government in all but four states disclosed that a total of 11,798,890 persons purchased hunting licenses. This was an increase of 13,000 over 1960.

This, of course, does not include the many hunters who are not required to purchase a license — like the youngsters, people over 65 and others in the armed forces.

But the census showed that the hunters with licenses spent $64,062,782 just for a licenses, stamps, tags and permits—about $61,000 more than in 1960.

Louisiana, for example, had over 260,000 licensed hunters.

The same census also showed a total of 19,394,177 sport fishermen bought licenses in 50 states — an increase of over 300,000 in 1960.

They spent over $52-million just for licenses.

In Louisiana, there were almost 139,000 fishermen with licenses. But think of what it would have been if canepole fishermen had to have a license.

LITTLE MAN'S CORNER

It was hot, but the doves were flying and the little men made news afield.

Hunters getting the limit of birds were in the minority, but there were some — like Buddy Newmann of Monroe, who got his limit three days running in Morehouse Parish.

Harry Cooper of Monroe also got his limit on the first day out, but found it rough the next day, mainly because of the company he was keeping. Cooper didn't fare so well when he joined a group of conservationists in Grady Merriman, R. B. Martin and Walter Pierron Jr.

They didn't quite get the limit.

The Lake Providence area produced some good shooting the first two or three days. One hunter, Lloyd Posey of Minden, bagged his limit with a muzzleloader.

Hunters said you could hear the trigger snap, then hear the boom.

Others bagging the limit in the Lake Providence area were Dr. George Wright, Inden, and from Lake Providence — Wayne Baker, H. H. Howington, Graham Schneider, Pop Patrick, Jack Brown, Michael Brown, Dr. Bernard Waxman, Pilcher Gilfoil, J. E. Brown, Jim Baur Sr. and Jim Baur Jr., Van Hicks, Kiley Thames, Ivan Haas, Jim Herrington, Doug Cheatham and James Harold Crews.

And on the fishing scene, Joe Sanders of Jena continues to catch the limit of bass in Little River.

Successful bass fishermen lately in the Ferriday area include Charley Sutton, Cecil Sutherland and Ear Warren.

SCRIMMAGE SATURDAY

Progress Pleases La. Tech Coaches

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech topped off the first full week of grid work with a scrimmage Saturday afternoon and as expected, many younger players were right in the middle of things.

A lot of time is still being devoted to fundamentals as the Bulldogs prepare for their date here with McNeese Sept. 29. Coach Joe Aillet and his staff members are getting a long look at the young talent.

Tech coaches seemed pleased with the progress made so far, but indicated much molding must be done before the Techmen are ready to face a team of McNeese's caliber.

No one, except possibly tri-captains Mickey Slaughter, quarterback, Pat Collins, guard, and Jerry Griffin, end, appear to be certain starters. A scrap is on for the other posts on the Tech units.

Aillet declined at this stage of practice to single out any individuals. Wally Martin, junior fullback from Ruston, was switched to center and is becoming acquainted with his new duties. Martin remains a rugged linebacker on defense.

Tackles Andy Malone and Billy Bagwell are still out of action and it is uncertain when they will return. Malone reported in with a bum knee and Bagwell had an appendectomy. Other injuries have not been of the crippling variety.

McNeese's opener with Pensacola Navy was cancelled, so now the Cowboys will open with Mexico Polytechnic Sept. 22 in Lake Charles. The Cowboys, along with Northwestern State, are rated as favorites in the Gulf States conference race.

EIGHT GAME SCHEDULE

No Breather For Indians During 1962 Grid Season

Short on quantity but mighty long on quality — that's a capsule commentary on Northeast State's 1962 football schedule.

Coach Jack Rowan's Indians will play only eight opponents this fall but there's not a breather in the lot.

Gulf States Conference opponents make up the meat of the Tribe slate and they're enough to make any schedule rugged. The tight little loop annually produces some of the finest players in the country.

Northeast's first GSC foe is Northwestern, which invades for the annual homecoming game Oct. 6 in Brown Stadium. Always tough, Jack Clayton's Demons appear even rougher than usual this fall with 29 lettermen, the most returning experienced players in the conference, back from the 1961 club that was 7-3 and remained in contention for the conference title until the final weekend. With probably the most elusive back in the conference in all-GSC Kenny Thompson and a fine tackle in Jerry Fowler, the Demons are loaded. Clayton's fellow GSC coaches have voted Northwestern the pre - season conference favorite.

There's no letup for Northeast after the Northwestern game because the next foe on the slate is McNeese, 1961 co-champion and rated second by league coaches in this year's pre-season poll. Les DeVall is expected to present another typically tough defensive club with a heavier emphasis than usual on rushing, since fine Cowboy passer Don Breaux has graduated.

The other 1961 co - champion, Southeastern is Northeast's Oct. 20 opponent in Hammond. Heaviest hit of any GSC club by graduation, the Lions are still highly-regarded since 16 good lettermen are back and a fine group of transfers and freshmen are available. However, the main reason Southeastern is not taken lightly is Coach Stan Galloway, who always cries loudest in August but always seems to come up with a winner.

Northeast will meet the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Shreveport again this season. The two teams opened a State Fair Stadium series last fall with Northeast taking a thrilling 27-20 victory. This year's game is set for Oct. 27 and should be just as good. Southwestern, like Northeast, was predominately a freshmen - sophomore club in 1961 and the youngsters will be a lot tougher this year.

After a Nov. 3 open date, the Indians end their GSC schedule against Louisiana Tech in Monroe Nov. 10. Tech boasts one of 1961's top aerial batteries in quarter-back Mickey Slaughter and end Jerry Griffin, a combination that makes the Bulldogs a threat to score from any place on the field.

Northeast's none - conference schedule is also imposing. The Indians have one of their most rugged opening assignments in history this year — a Sept. 22 game with Lamar Tech in Brown Stadium. Tech was third in the strong Lone Star Conference last year, finished the regular season with a 7-2-1 record and defeated Middle Tennessee State, 21-14, in the Tangerine Bowl. Lamar has one of Texas' top collegiate passers, Windell Hebert, who is no stranger to Northeast fans. Hebert threw touchdown passes of 64 and 55 yards in the last six minutes of last year's game to give Lamar a 38-34 victory over the Indians.

Another Lone Star Conference team, East Texas State, is next on the schedule Sept. 29 in Commerce, Tex. The East Texans have doubtless been scheming all summer on how to repay the Indians for a 36-0 pasting last year, the worst defeat suffered by East Texas in 1961.

Northeast ends its season Nov. 17 with a game in Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State. The Statesmen lost heavily from last year's fine team, seventh in the nation in rushing offense with a 275.5 yard average, but have a fine crop of transfers on hand.

Tickets for all Northeast home games may be obtained by calling the athletic department, FA 5-6361, extension 371, or FA 5-1804.

Johnston Grabs Lead In Denver

DENVER (AP)—Bill Johnston sailed through the third round with a 69, 1-under-par, to grab the lead in the Denver Open golf tournament Saturday as two-day leader Rex Baxter Jr. blew to 78, after setting a course record 64 in the first round.

Johnston's 207 total gave him a stroke lead over George Bayer and Bob Goalby, who fired the tourney's only eagle on the way to a 67. Bayer had 71, Goalby scored the eagle on the par 4 388-yard No. 4 hole where his wedge shot from 70 yards away rolled into the cup.

Baxter started the day with a three-stroke lead over the field.

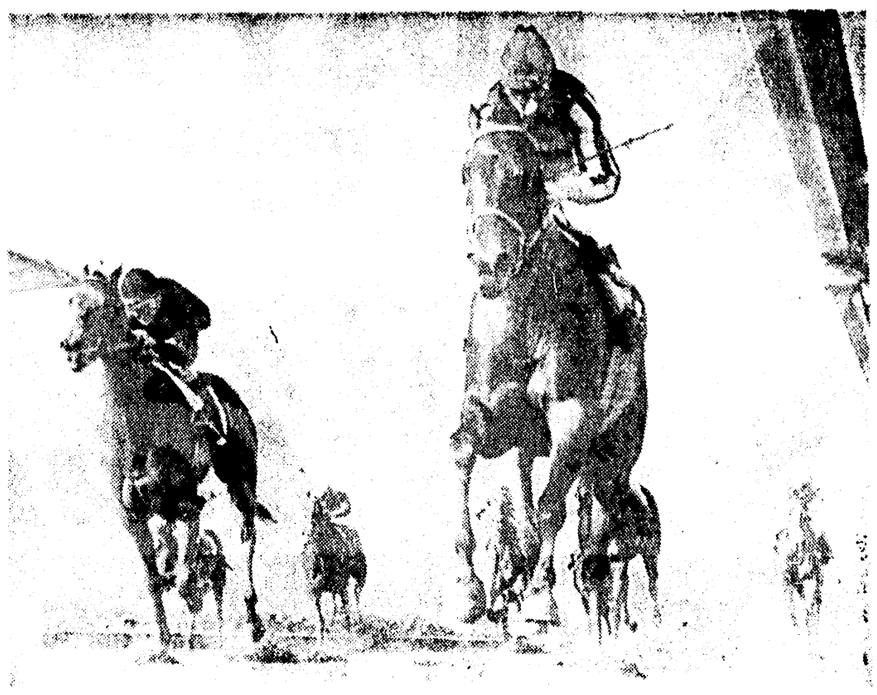
Eagles Get Back

PRINCETON (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, seeking more defensive backfield depth, acquired Mike McClellan a 6-foot, 188-pounder, from the San Francisco 49ers Saturday via the waiver route.



RUNNING IN front from wire to wire, Smart Deb, right, Robert Ussery riding, flashes across the finish line, a length and one-half in front of Fashion Verdict, left, ridden by John Sellers, to win the $102,760 Matron Stakes at New York's Aqueduct Saturday. The favorite, Affectionately, hidden behind the winner, finished third. Smart Deb, an invader from Chicago, covered the six furlongs in 1:09 4/5 to win her seventh race in a row. She paid $7.60. BELINSKY WINS ONE

LA Angels Hang On; Down Baltimore, 2-1

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP)—The tenacious Los Angeles Angels capitalized on the wildness of Baltimore's Chuck Estrada to edge the Orioles 2-1 Saturday night and remain 4½ games behind the league leading New York Yankees.

Controversial Bo Belinsky was credited with the victory for the third-place Angels although he lasted only five innings. He was removed after apparently tiring in the fifth, when he allowed Baltimore's only run on a bases-loaded walk.

Don Lee hurled the final four innings and preserved Belinsky's first victory since Aug. 11 and only his second in more than 11 weeks.

Belinsky, making his first start since appearing before Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to negotiate personally a purported trade which would have sent him to Kansas City at the end of the season, now has a 9-9 record. He was 7-2 on June 21.

Los Angeles made only three hits, compared to Baltimore's 11, but Estrada's wildness gave the Angels scoring opportunities in the first and fifth innings.

The Angels scored without a hit in the opening frame. Little Albie Pearson was walked on four straight pitches, and moved around on a stolen base, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Lee Thomas.

In the fifth Estrada walked Billy Moran and gave up a two-out double to Leon Wagner which sent Moran across the plate to make the score 2-0.

The only other hits off Estrada, who is now 7-15, were singles in the third by Bob Rodgers and in the sixth by Pearson.

Pearson also turned in the defensive play of the game. With one out and a runner on first base in the eighth, he ran back to the center field fence to haul down pinch hitter John Powell's line drive about 410 feet from the plate. Jerry Adair followed with a single, which proved harmless.

TEXAS TABBED 2ND

Ohio State Rated First In AP Poll; LSU Fifth

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, edged by all-conquering Alabama in the voting for the No. 1 college team of 1961, was an overwhelming choice Saturday in The Associated Press' pre-season poll to take it all in 1962.

The deep and mighty Buckeyes were picked to top the nation by 41 of the 50 sports writers and sportscasters from across the country who participated in the poll. Texas was tabbed for second and Alabama for third.

Michigan State was selected for the fourth position followed by Louisiana State, Mississippi, Purdue, Duke, Penn State, Washington.

Alabama was picked to finish first by three members of the national panel, Michigan State and Mississippi by two each, and Texas and Purdue by one each.

On the basis of 10 points for first, nine for second, eight for third, etc., Ohio State rolled up 558 points in the balloting to 372 for Texas and 325 for Alabama.

Of the 10 teams picked to rank with the elite this season, six finished in the top 10 last year. They are Alabama (1), Ohio State (2), Texas (3), Louisiana State (4), Mississippi (5), and Michigan State (8).

Iowa was tabbed as the No. 1 team in 1961 but the Hawkeyes, after sweeping four straight, were ruined by injuries and wound up with a 5-4 record.

Ohio State has lost All-America fullback Bob Ferguson by graduation but Coach Woody Hayes has a deep and potent squad headed

BELINSKY WINS ONE

LA Angels Hang On; Down Baltimore, 2-1

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP)—The tenacious Los Angeles Angels capitalized on the wildness of Baltimore's Chuck Estrada to edge the Orioles 2-1 Saturday night and remain 4½ games behind the league leading New York Yankees.

Controversial Bo Belinsky was credited with the victory for the third-place Angels although he lasted only five innings. He was removed after apparently tiring in the fifth, when he allowed Baltimore's only run on a bases-loaded walk.

Don Lee hurled the final four innings and preserved Belinsky's first victory since Aug. 11 and only his second in more than 11 weeks.

Belinsky, making his first start since appearing before Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to negotiate personally a purported trade which would have sent him to Kansas City at the end of the season, now has a 9-9 record. He was 7-2 on June 21.

Los Angeles made only three hits, compared to Baltimore's 11, but Estrada's wildness gave the Angels scoring opportunities in the first and fifth innings.

The Angels scored without a hit in the opening frame. Little Albie Pearson was walked on four straight pitches, and moved around on a stolen base, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Lee Thomas.

In the fifth Estrada walked Billy Moran and gave up a two-out double to Leon Wagner which sent Moran across the plate to make the score 2-0.

The only other hits off Estrada, who is now 7-15, were singles in the third by Bob Rodgers and in the sixth by Pearson.

Pearson also turned in the defensive play of the game. With one out and a runner on first base in the eighth, he ran back to the center field fence to haul down pinch hitter John Powell's line drive about 410 feet from the plate. Jerry Adair followed with a single, which proved harmless.

TEXAS TABBED 2ND

Ohio State Rated First In AP Poll; LSU Fifth

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, edged by all-conquering Alabama in the voting for the No. 1 college team of 1961, was an overwhelming choice Saturday in The Associated Press' pre-season poll to take it all in 1962.

The deep and mighty Buckeyes were picked to top the nation by 41 of the 50 sports writers and sportscasters from across the country who participated in the poll. Texas was tabbed for second and Alabama for third.

Michigan State was selected for the fourth position followed by, Louisiana State, Mississippi, Purdue, Duke, Penn State, Washington.

Alabama was picked to finish first by three members of the national panel, Michigan State and Mississippi by two each, and Texas and Purdue by one each.

On the basis of 10 points for first, nine for second, eight for third, etc., Ohio State rolled up 558 points in the balloting to 372 for Texas and 325 for Alabama.

Of the 10 teams picked to rank with the elite this season, six finished in the top 10 last year. They are Alabama (1), Ohio State (2), Texas (3), Louisiana State (4), Mississippi (5), and Michigan State (8).

Iowa was tabbed as the No. 1 team in 1961 but the Hawkeyes, after sweeping four straight, were ruined by injuries and wound up with a 5-4 record.

Ohio State has lost All-America fullback Bob Ferguson by graduation but Coach Woody Hayes has a deep and potent squad

Journalism Broadened At Northeast

"The journalism curriculum at Northeast Louisiana State College has been substantially changed and improved to include both newspaper journalism and radio-television majors, effective with the opening of the fall semester," Dr. William R. Hammond, dean of the division of liberal arts, has announced.

"The program continues to include courses in theory, but its major improvement is its stress of practical laboratory work," Dean Hammond said.

The program will include supervised practical work connected with the student newspaper, yearbook, and news releases.

Practical work, including on-the-job training, will be arranged for advanced students at the local radio and television stations and newspapers.

The program will include some laboratory presentation of news programs live at the local radio and television stations during the spring semester.

On-the-job training at the local newspapers, radio and television stations is planned to be started during the fall of 1963-64.

James R. Parrish, director of the news bureau and assistant professor of journalism, is in charge of the new program.

The curriculum also contains other changes, with more leeway being given to elective subjects. Stress on courses other than journalism is being continued in order that majors will secure a well - rounded education.

The Radio - TV program has courses in news reporting, feature writing, theory of radio and television news writing, laboratory for radio and television news writing, public relations, communication law, and advanced reporting.

The program for newspaper majors includes courses in news reporting, history of American journalism, feature writing, newspaper, editing, newspaper advertising, school publications, communication law, public relations, and advanced reporting.

Radio - TV majors will schedule three speech courses related to the radio - TV media.

A journalism major will be comprised of 30 semester hours of journalism courses and other prescribed requirements.

Students may also elect to minor in journalism, with basic reporting and 15 additional hours of journalism as the requirement for minors.

Persons interested in additional information should direct their inquiries to Parrish at Northeast Louisiana State College.

But there are over 2,750,000 Americans in uniform today. The USO tries to reach all of them. Fall Millinery Look Is Exotic Or Feminine

A close - up on cover - ups that fit deep on a slant to reveal a bit of the bang sweep that goes with smoother hairdos is in the offing for fall millinery. The look is casual or feminine or exotic, Women's Wear Daily points out. Furs are in a flurry everywhere, taking the lead as fashion bests. Lots of leather is seen. Profile caps share honors with turbans, slouches with snoods and berets.

Brow - tippers are in the manner of the '30s, or World War I, hats that advance small to toque-tall as companions for muffled collars and Mata Hari clothes. Visored caps are strong within the new boyish movements, their crowns softened from last year.

Fall Millinery Look Is Exotic Or Feminine

A close - up on cover - ups that fit deep on a slant to reveal a bit of the bang sweep that goes with smoother hairdos is in the offing for fall millinery. The look is casual or feminine or exotic, Women's Wear Daily points out. Furs are in a flurry everywhere, taking the lead as fashion bests. Lots of leather is seen. Profile caps share honors with turbans, slouches with snoods and berets.

Brow - tippers are in the manner of the '30s, or World War I, hats that advance small to toque-tall as companions for muffled collars and Mata Hari clothes. Visored caps are strong within the new boyish movements, their crowns softened from last year.

First week in September is New Year for most clubs and other civic groups. After a summer recess devoted to water sports, travel, Little League, out of town visitors and chaotic schedules, Monroyans are once again turning their attention to organized activity.

Highlighting the coming week's calendar will be the cocktail-style show planned Saturday evening by the JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE. The party begins at eight in the Paragon ballroom, with "Fashions Through the Years" to be shown at 8:30. CAROL M'DONALD, general chairman, states that costumes depicting modes of the last hundred years have been loaned for this show by Sears from their national collection. Haute coutoure of the coming season will be seen in styles from the Palace. JOYCE KELLOGG and MARY LEE MILAM will narrate.

Following the style revue, the Abstracts will play for dancing beginning at ten-thirty. Tickets for the event, at three dollars per person, may be obtained from any active League member.

Others assisting Carol on her committee are JEAN HAMILTON, VERA KELSO, CONNIE JONES, PAT MADDEN, LIBBY MILLER, ANN BELL, NELL FAUCETT, YVONNE ANDERSON, BARBARA JONES, and MARGERY PHILLIPS.

Try - outs for "The Solid Gold Cadillac" were held at Strauss Playhouse Wednesday and Thursday evenings, foreshadowing LITTLE THEATRE's first presentation of the new season. The play is a comedy - fantasy about a little old lady lost in the jungles of corporation financing — and not so lost, at that. It is scheduled to open in mid-October.

RAYMOND E. LUCERO was present for the readings and was introduced to those attending. Raymond, a graduate of Texas Western, will be with Monroe Little Theatre as technical director.

MONROE GARDEN CLUB opens its club year with a tea honoring new members to be held tomorrow at the home of MARY LEE MILAM with EVA BECKETT as co-hostess. Twenty-six ladies will be honored at the party between the hours of two and four. MILDRED HEARD is chairman, assisted by DOT BREARD.

Refreshments will be served from two tables. A formal tea table will be set up in the dining room, while that on the porch will demonstrate suitable decorations for an autumn teen-age party. The centerpiece incorporates a football, stuffed Tiger, and dolls costumed as Tigerette and Lionette.

"AUTUMN NOCTURNE" was theme of Co-mopolitan Dance club's Fall party, held Friday evening in the Paragon ballroom. BARBARA BROWN, decorations chairman, heralded the new season with lavish use of foliage and other symbols. Wild ducks and Indian corn hung on the screen at the entrance, with a Harvest Moon lighting the dancefloor. Silhouettes of mosshung trees surrounded the bandstand, with a lake scene at one side. Individual tables were centered with hurricane lamps in fall colors, encircled with foliage and pine cones.

A business meeting and luncheon opens the club year for MONROE LITERARY Club, which meets this coming Wednesday. ANN SHELL and IRENE KEELING will be hostesses for luncheon at the Italian Village.

Bridge champion of Bayou DeSiard country club will be determined at a duplicate game to be held at the club on this coming Saturday. The event is open to club members only. Two sessions are planned, at one-thirty, and again at seven-thirty, with buffet supper to be served at six. Prizes will be silver trophies.

POTPOURRI BOOK CLUB has selected Pulitzer Prize winners as subject for the year's study. ELEANOR BROWN is to review an early winner, "Alice Adams," at the opening meeting Monday, September 24. Hostesses will be DELL BREARD and SUE DOUGHERTY.

FT. MIRO CHAPTER, Daughters of the American Revolution, opened the year with a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Louis Lock room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. CARRIE DEE DREW, year book chairman, presented an outline of the programs planned for the year. Guest speaker MRS. W. M. M'DOWELL spoke to the group on Communism.

Following the meeting, the ladies adjourned to attend the annual silver tea of LT. JOSEPH BOWMAR SOCIETY, CAR., held yesterday afternoon in the home of MARY VAUGHN INABNET. Several state officers were in town for this traditional beginning and largest affair of the CAR calendar.

Officers and visitors comprised the receiving line, and fifteen younger members dressed in colonial costume greeted arriving guests. Bowmar's senior president, IRENE ALEXANDER, served as general chairman of the tea. Others who assisted were GLADYS MURPHY, BETTY STONE, and JOYCE BURKHALTER, refreshments; MAE SHAW, telephoning; GERRY SPERRY and JOY MARSHALL, flowers; and JUNE EBY, corsages.

September is, first and foremost, back-to-school month. And school days are frequently preceeded by house parties. LYNN SMITH left this past week for Memphis, Tennessee, where she is attending KAPPA DELTA house-party at Southwestern before the opening of rush week.

JACK TROUSDALE left last Saturday to fly to Saginaw, Michigan, for a visit with friends there and at Pigeon on Lake Huron. They will motor from Michigan to Lebanon, Tennessee this coming week to register at Castle Heights Military academy for the coming school term.

Young miss KITTY BRIGHT celebrated her ninth birthday with a tonsillectomy the week before school opened, so a party was in order last Monday. Nineteen little friends were invited for croquet and other games in the yard before a barbecue supper. Hamburgers, followed by ice cream cones and cupcakes, were served from a table covered with a birthday cloth.

THE FIRST WEEK OF SCHOOL puts us in mind of Janet Purvin Mange's poem entitled "Teacher's Lament":

For thirteen years I've been a nurse, a doctor, judge, and preacher,
A lawyer, maid, magician, cop . . .the jobs that make a teacher
And now September's here again; my fourteenth year has come.
Once more I pause and ask myself: What Have I Really Done?
I've patched up all the bruises of my little girls and boys;
I've settled fights; I've found lost junk and confiscated toys.
I've pinned their suits; I've zipped their pants; I've combed out tangled tresses.
Unknotted shoes and mended holes and buttoned up their dresses.
I've searched their heads, examined ears, and noses, mouths and eyes;
I've made reports a million times and hollered for supplies.
I've braved all basement duty and I've supervised the grounds;
I've been attacked by sticks and balls, by ropes and rocks and hounds.
And now vacation's over; while all the mamas cheer
I fortify myself against a long, frustrating year.
I'll have ideals; I'll set the goals I know I cannot reach.
For never, through the whole long year, will I have time to teach.

Mary Elizabeth Rogers Becomes Bride Of Jeremy C. Mingledorff

Gold altar vases holding arrangements of white gladioli and agapanthus and gold candelabra holding cathedral tapers formed a setting in St. Matthews Catholic Church for the wedding Saturday, September 8 of Miss Mary Elizabeth Rogers and Jeremy Conrad Mingledorff. Father Jordan Schell performed the double ring ceremony at 11 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Wilfred Rogers, 606 Pine, West Monroe and Mr. Mingledorff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daniel Mingledorff, 211 Hudson Lane, Monroe.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Jack White.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white silk peau de soie, featuring a scoop neckline and elbow length sleeves cuffed with folds of the silk. The flat front skirt featured reembroidered Alencon lace forming scalloped accents at the hemline. Unpressed side pleats widened in back creating added fullness and a crushed cummerbund of the silk ended in wide streamers in back over the sweeping chapel train. Her bouffant veil of illusion fell elbow length from a double princess crown of seed pearls and crystals on Alencon lace. She wore gloves of white tulle and carried a cascade bouquet of two white Japhet orchids, lily of the valley and white bridal roses, with a shower of satin and tulle. A drop pearl with a diamond worn by the bride, was a gift of the bridegroom.

Maid of honor was Miss Bobbie Faye Ervin, cousin of the bride, who wore a gown of rich jewel gold lustrous satin de charme. The fitted bodice featured a scooped neckline and below elbow sleeves and the skirt was full with a controlled pear shape effect. Her headpiece was a tiny circle pillbox, entwined with seed pearls and veil of illusion in matching gold as her dress. She wore gold satin shoes and matching gloves and carried a colonial bouquet of gold maline and a sunburst of miniature chrysanthemums encircling a large bronze chrysanthemum with gold velvet ribbon.

Eric Gregory Mingledorff, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Patrick J. Riley, Henry D. Weaks and Robert L. Gill. Frederick Fudickar and Kurt Mingledorff served as altar boys.

Mrs. Rogers was wearing for her daughter's wedding a dress of pure silk peau de soie in endive green, with jewel neckline, dolman sleeves and slim skirt. Her hat was a small pillbox of endive green velvet with a band of gold above the stitched satin brim. She wore black pumps and long white kid gloves and a white Japhet orchid. Mrs. Mingledorff, mother of the groom, was dressed in a neptune blue imported chiffon wool model with jewel neckline, raglan sleeves and slightly flared skirt. Her hat was a shallow crown pillbox of feathers in soft shades of green and snow peach, covered in tulle and her accessories were long brown kid gloves and brown shoes. She also wore a white Japhet orchid.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were hosts at a reception at the Paragon Club. Miss Dana Mingledorff, sister of the groom, presided at the bride's book at a table adorned by a memory candle, encircled with lily of the Nile and English ivy. Baskets of chrysanthemums formed a background setting where twin round tables, covered with satin were overlaid with white tulle. The tables were garlanded with California Smilax.

The wedding cake, served by Mrs. W. L. Jopling and Mrs. George Marshall, centered one table with a cupid candelabra. Mrs. Rex Queen presided at the punch table, which held an antique cupid epergne filled with white stock, lily of the Nile and miniature white pompons.

For a wedding trip to the East the bride changed to an imported wool model with neon red chiffon blouse and underbodice appliqued in chiffon flowers, wide tucked midriff of chiffon, slim skirt and hip length semi-box jacket. She wore matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The couple will establish a home in South Bend, Indiana. Mrs. Mingledorff graduated from West Monroe high school, attended Louisiana Tech, the University of Colorado, Northeast Louisiana State College and will continue her studies through correspondence from Louisiana State University. She is a member of Phi Mu sorority.

Mr. Mingledorff graduated from Marion Military Institute at Marion, Alabama and is presently attending the University of Notre Dame at South Bend.

First week in September is New Year for most clubs and other civic groups. After a summer recess devoted to water sports, travel, Little League, out of town visitors and chaotic schedules, Monroyans are once again turning their attention to organized activity.

Highlighting the coming week's calendar will be the cocktail-style show planned Saturday evening by the JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE. The party begins at eight in the Paragon ballroom, with "Fashions Through the Years" to be shown at 8:30. CAROL M'DONALD, general chairman, states that costumes depicting modes of the last hundred years have been loaned for this show by Sears from their national collection. Haute coutoure of the coming season will be seen in styles from the Palace. JOYCE KELLOGG and MARY LEE MILAM will narrate.

Following the style revue, the Abstracts will play for dancing beginning at ten-thirty. Tickets for the event, at three dollars per person, may be obtained from any active League member.

Others assisting Carol on her committee are JEAN HAMILTON, VERA KELSO, CONNIE JONES, PAT MADDEN, LIBBY MILLER, ANN BELL, NELL FAUCETT, YVONNE ANDERSON, BARBARA JONES, and MARGERY PHILLIPS.

Try - outs for "The Solid Gold Cadillac" were held at Strauss Playhouse Wednesday and Thursday evenings, foreshadowing LITTLE THEATRE's first presentation of the new season. The play is a comedy - fantasy about a little old lady lost in the jungles of corporation financing — and not so lost, at that. It is scheduled to open in mid-October.

RAYMOND E. LUCERO was present for the readings and was introduced to those attending. Raymond, a graduate of Texas Western, will be with Monroe Little Theatre as technical director.

MONROE GARDEN CLUB opens its club year with a tea honoring new members to be held tomorrow at the home of MARY LEE MILAM with EVA BECKETT as co-hostess. Twenty-six ladies will be honored at the party between the hours of two and four. MILDRED HEARD is chairman, assisted by DOT BREARD.

Refreshments will be served from two tables. A formal tea table will be set up in the dining room, while that on the porch will demonstrate suitable decorations for an autumn teen-age party. The centerpiece incorporates a football, stuffed Tiger, and dolls costumed as Tigerette and Lionette.

"AUTUMN NOCTURNE" was theme of Cosmopolitan Dance club's Fall party, held Friday evening in the Paragon ballroom. BARBARA BROWN, decorations chairman, heralded the new season with lavish use of foliage and other symbols. Wild ducks and Indian corn hung on the screen at the entrance, with a Harvest Moon lighting the dancefloor. Silhouettes of mosshung trees surrounded the bandstand, with a lake scene at one side. Individual tables were centered with hurricane lamps in fall colors, encircled with foliage and pine cones.

A business meeting and luncheon opens the club year for MONROE LITERARY Club, which meets this coming Wednesday. ANN SHELL and IRENE KEELING will be hostesses for luncheon at the Italian Village.

Bridge champion of Bayou DeSiard country club will be determined at a duplicate game to be held at the club on this coming Saturday. The event is open to club members only. Two sessions are planned, at one-thirty, and again at seven-thirty, with buffet supper to be served at six. Prizes will be silver trophies.

POTPOURRI BOOK CLUB has selected Pulitzer Prize winners as subject for the year's study. ELEANOR BROWN is to review an early winner, "Alice Adams," at the opening meeting Monday, September 24. Hostesses will be DELL BREARD and SUE DOUGHERTY.

FT. MIRO CHAPTER, Daughters of the American Revolution, opened the year with a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Louis Lock room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. CARRIE DEE DREW, year book chairman, presented an outline of the programs planned for the year. Guest speaker MRS. W. M. M'DOWELL spoke to the group on Communism.

Following the meeting, the ladies adjourned to attend the annual silver tea of LT. JOSEPH BOWMAR SOCIETY, CAR., held yesterday afternoon in the home of MARY VAUGHN INABNET. Several state officers were in town for this, traditional beginning and largest affair of the CAR calendar.

Officers and visitors comprised the receiving line, and fifteen younger members dressed in colonial costume greeted arriving guests. Bowmar's senior president, IRENE ALEXANDER, served as general chairman of the tea. Others who assisted were GLADYS MURPHY, BETTY STONE, and JOYCE BURKHALTER, refreshments; MAE SHAW, telephoning; GERRY SPERRY and JOY MARSHALL, flowers; and JUNE EBY, corsages.

September is, first and foremost, back-to-school month. And school days are frequently preceeded by house parties. LYNN SMITH left this past week for Memphis, Tennessee, where she is attending KAPPA DELTA house-party at Southwestern before the opening of rush week.

JACK TROUSDALE left last Saturday to fly to Saginaw, Michigan, for a visit with friends there and at Pigeon on Lake Huron. They will motor from Michigan to Lebanon, Tennessee this coming week to register at Castle Heights Military academy for the coming school term.

Young miss KITTY BRIGHT celebrated her ninth birthday with a tonsillectomy the week before school opened, so a party was in order last Monday. Nineteen little friends were invited for croquet and other games in the yard before a barbecue supper. Hamburgers, followed by ice cream cones and cupcakes, were served from a table covered with a birthday cloth.

THE FIRST WEEK OF SCHOOL puts us in mind of Janet Purvin Mange's poem entitled "Teacher's Lament":

For thirteen years I've been a nurse, a doctor, judge, and preacher,
A lawyer, maid, magician, cop . . .the jobs that make a teacher.
And now September's here again; my fourteenth year has come.
Once more I pause and ask myself: What Have I Really Done?
I've patched up all the bruises of my little girls and boys;
I've settled fights; I've found lost junk and confiscated toys.
I've pinned their suits; I've zipped their pants; I've combed out tangled tresses.
Unknotted shoes and mended holes and buttoned up their dresses.
I've searched their heads, examined ears, and noses, mouths and eyes;
I've made reports a million times and hollered for supplies.
I've braved all basement duty and I've supervised the grounds;
I've been attacked by sticks and balls, by ropes and rocks and hounds.
And now vacation's over; while all the mamas cheer
I fortify myself against a long, frustrating year.
I'll have ideals; I'll set the goals I know I cannot reach,
For never, through the whole long year, will I have time to teach.

Baskets of chrysanthemums formed a background setting where twin round tables, covered with satin were overlaid with white tulle. The tables were garlanded with California Smilax.

The wedding cake, served by Mrs. W. L. Jopling and Mrs. George Marshall, centered one table with a cupid candelabra. Mrs. Rex Queen presided at the punch table, which held an antique cupid epergne filled with white stock, lily of the Nile and miniature white pompons.

Brides Walk In Elegance

Fall's bride will walk down the aisle in an elegant gown. After several seasons of simplicity in bridal fashions, brides are returning to more lavish gowns.

The elegant bride may choose a sheath, classic cut or sweeping fullness, but whatever her silhouette choice, her wedding dress will most certainly be lavished with lace or embroidery. Many gowns reflect a medieval splendor. The look is regal, and trains carry out the court motif.

Many brides - on - a budget want gowns that can be worn after the wedding. For them, fashion interprets the elegant look in removable jackets or boleros over strapless gowns.

Patent Leather To Shine In Fall Footwear

NEW YORK — Fashion has taken out a patent on a new footwear trend. This fall you will be wearing black patent leather pumps, walking shoes and spectators.

Once an exclusive feature of the spring scene, the patent leather shoe will make its debut as daytime dresswear — thanks to recent technological improvements in leather - making. The new patent leather now has built-in resistance to extremes of weather and temperature — making it a natural addition to the fall shoe wardrobe.

But beware of patent infringement since there are substitute shoe materials that look like patent. Only patent leather, being leather, has the suppleness and fibrous structure that absorbs moisture. This assures you comfort and long wear.

Featured at a pre-season display of leather shoes at the headquarters of Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America was a galaxy of sparkling genuine patent leather pumps, spectators, strap shoes and slingbacks to complement fall dresses, suits and coats. Different heel heights and the season's range of toe silhouettes add to the variety of patent leather shoes that will be available in shoe and department stores in the next few weeks.

Because of its cherry gleam, the patent leather shoe teams tastefully with fall woolens, tweed mixtures that contain black, and matte fabrics such as silks and crepe de chine. For additional color, many a daytime patent leather pump features underlays of colored leathers — red, green and blue predominating.

As a walking shoe, the black patent leather pump is set on a stacked heel or a self - leather mid-heel. As a spectator, it has perforations. Because of its greater strength, the genuine patent leather walking shoe gives longer, more comfortable wear. Restored to freshness with the swipe of a damp cloth, the patent leather shoe always sparkles as you walk.

For late day, smart women will combine eye appeal and comfort in a patent leather strap or slingback. T-strap, asymmetric strap and ankle strap all lighten the look of a shoe, even as they improve its foot-molding fit. A slender, flexible leather sold and a smooth leather lining round out the picture of fashionable comfort.

Black patent leather is joined by a variety of deep-hued patents that pace the leading shoe color families. Most striking are a charcoal patent leather that takes its place as a new and smart neutral, and a bronze patent leather that puts a high key fashion base under basic brown costumes. Combinations of patent leather with smooth or suede leathers provide additional color and texture interest.

Spats For Gals Hit Fun Note

Take the word "past" — give the letters a subtle twist and lo, you have "spats" — the over-the-shoe, shin-climbing "boot top." For daytime they are simple and tailored and for evening they go as resplendent as a queen's jewel box.

A narrow strap fits under the shoe, and the spat climbs as high as you want it to. Whether plain or fancy, it's a real fun note this fall.

COLORS FOR COATS

Coats cover a wide range of pales, bright primary colors and deepened shades. Bright reds, blues, greens and yellows contrast with olive - greens, chocolate browns, rusts, winter navy, grey and black.

Collegiate Lass Chooses Carefree Campus Classics

Variety, carefree comfort and chic good looks are the three paramount prerequisites of the young fashion individualist preparing for her back - to - college wardrobe this year. She plans her fashion investments as wisely as her daily agenda. This collection of exciting campus classics, all woven with Celanese contemporary fibers and designed by leading American manufacturers offers the perfect solution to her every-occasion needs.

Celanese selected lovely, vivacious Fran Sharon, who is cast as the collegiate in the current Broadway comedy "Take Her, She's Mine" to model these delightful new styles that offer the fall fashion message in coats, suits, dresses and sportswear for the most ambitious of college curriculums.

Fran loves her sportswear selections woven of Arnel triacetate, the easy-care fiber, which includes culottes and matching vest in the Western flavor and a slightly English accented outfit with Norfolk jacket. They both belie their sturdy practicality with smart young shapes and plumage colors.

Petti-Panties New For Fall

Particularly new and exciting are petti-coat-panties. These are full blown, to the knee panties in two weights of nylon tricot, that together give a bouffant look to underline the full-A-Line skirts of many after-five fashions.

Pettipoints, the long slender panty with the half - slip look wheel freely into the fall scene in rich colors and persian-inspired prints.

FALL FAVORITE

Favorite look of fall is the dress or skirt plus matching stole, often in plaid.

Floral Frame

A unique party tip is to frame your powder room mirror with flowers that enchance all feminine complexions. As tiny flower holders, use lipstick cases —gold, green, blue, red or jeweled and sparkling ones. Apply them to the mirror's frame with posey clay or scotch tape. If your particular frame is not suitable for this purpose, attack the cases just inside the frame. Fill the tiny holders with roses, dwarf geraniums, carnations, gardenias or daisies.

Absentee Plant Care

If you're going away on a "quickie" vacation, or trip, for four or five days, here's how you can let house plants take care of themselves and stay healthy while you're gone. Place all plants on thoroughly soaked bath towels in the bath, kitchen sink or laundry tup exposed to some light but not direct sunlight. Then set the water faucet so that one drop of water will fall every few second on the bath towels. The towels will conduct the moisture to the plant's soil, keeping plants in good condition until you return.

WAY WITH BELTS

New way with wide belts for fall results in a half - belted look as belts often appear only to define front shaping and slip through side slots to release back fullness.

Sale Of Notions Soars To New Heights In '62

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Little things mean a lot — of dollars spent in the notions departments of the nation's stores.

The National Notion Association predicts sales of everything from scissors to sunglasses will total $690 million in 1962, an increase of 15 per cent over 1961.

The estimate came from Abbott Barrett, association president, as the industry held its annual mid-year trade show in New York. Barrett said the '62 estimate is based on a survey of members, some of whom reported their business already up as much as 50 per cent over 1961.

Changes in fashion and their effect at the notion and novelty counters set the theme for the show. The revival of Western-style dress, from low slung jeans through calico blouses and bandana scarves, was reflected in such home sewing accessories as rick-rack braid and string ties.

The Cleopatra look was cited for its effect on hair grooming aids. And from the teen-agers, often the first to start a fad, came such things as adjustable metal headbands with gold, pearl or bead insets in the whim department also, the show featured these new items.

Change-it-yourself barettes, in which the wearer can change the bow ribbon to match her costume; reflector swim caps bright as a neon sign; reflector raincoats which glow at night and protect the wearer against both rain and careless drivers.

Sunglasses in which the wearer can dial degree of light penetration; heart-shaped sunglasses copied from those worn by Sue Lyon, star of the Lolita movie; zany lipstick-smeared study lamps; and an old-fashioned stocking nightcap trimmed with a pompon.

One of the factors helping the notion industry is the home sewing boom. The association estimated that a rocket, unwinding spools of thread as it traveled could make 2,000 round trips to the moon before it exhausted all the thread used in 1961 by home seamstresses.

The association figured there are 40 million women, average age 24 years, stitching, snipping and buttonholing their way through 400,000 miles of fabric a year.

Last year, it said, these women spent $300 million on such extras as buttons, shears, zippers, thimbles, thread and braid. They cut more than 90 million patterns.

Little Ways To Fashion

Some women look tacky in a thousand - dollar costume, while others look great in a twenty-five dollar one. The difference is in the little things they did or didn't do.

Perhaps the first little way to fashion is a negative one. Stop saying, "But of course I'd never (or never could) wear that." Why not? Is it really necessary to choose every outfit in a dreary "basic" color, every coat because it's "practical"?

Outside of learning to use color, all the other little ways consist of accessories choices. The simplest costume looks expensive with the right, dramatic hat. On the other hand, the most Paris of designs can be ruined by the fussy shoe, the colored glove, the plastic handbag, or just by a combination of too many busy accents.

Dazzling Look Shown In Fall Fashion Scene

After - five collections this fall have a sportswear touch in ease and delightfully casual fabrics, such as mohair, tweed and wool knits. "Shirt sleeves," man-tailored cuffs make a surprise appearance in posh fabrics. Metallic brocades are still 'in.' So are beads, jets, sequins, feathers. More devastating dazzle-dazzle: cut velvets, luscious velveteen and fluffy long hair wool combinations.

Extra special show stoppers include an accordion pleated lame skirt with wool flannel top, both gray — dramatic rough-texture dress designs borrowed from Spanish rugs — ponchos for rain wear — newsworthy knee - high 'gokey' boots for sports. A fresh idea is the Bermuda coat to accompany shorts, in green flannel, taupe or gray herringbone.

Ski beauties will love stretch-expanded vinyl black, new and shiny with a poured - in 'skin-diver' look for snowy slopes — or the new freedom of stretch knickers with matching socks.

Other stimulating fashion notes include full-length at home dresses, a quilted plastic jacket with laden skirt for casual wear (watch for quilted plastic to turn up in new places!), a sport suit in orange corduroy and reversible suits. Big news on campus and elsewhere — fur with fur — lots of a good thing.

Sewing Chiffon Requires Skill

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Sewing chiffon isn't for the beginning sewer. Here are tips from Vogue Patterns on handling this lovely but difficult material.

Snip selvage every few inches. Straighten ends and check grain. Use sharp, smooth pins (chiffon catches easily) and pin often. Lay fabric over a sheet to keep it from slipping, and hold secure with free hand while cutting.

When making a layered chiffon dress, mark each layer separately with chalk or tailor's tacks, match carefully when placing layers together. Baste like mad, avoiding stretching the fabric in any way. When stitching, over tissue, use silk thread and a No. 9 needle. Make French seams wherever possible.

Allow dress to hang out about 24 hours before hemming. Put in zippers by hand. Chiffon dresses shouldn't be allowed to hang in closets without putting the skirt hem up over the hanger bar.

Dazzling Look Shown In Fall Fashion Scene

After - five collections this fall have a sportswear touch in ease and delightfully casual fabrics, such as mohair, tweed and wool knits. "Shirt sleeves," man-tailored cuffs make a surprise appearance in posh fabrics. Metallic brocades are still 'in.' So are beads, jets, sequins, feathers. More devastating dazzle-dazzle; cut velvets, luscious velveteen and fluffy long hair wool combinations.

Extra special show stoppers include an accordion pleated lame skirt with wool flannel top, both gray — dramatic rough-texture dress designs borrowed from Spanish rugs — ponchos for rain wear — newsworthy knee - high 'gokey' boots for sports. A fresh idea is the Bermuda coat to accompany shorts, in green flannel, taupe or gray herringbone.

Ski beauties will love stretch-expanded vinyl black, new and shiny with a poured - in 'skin-diver' look for snowy slopes — or the new freedom of stretch knickers with matching socks.

Other stimulating fashion notes include full-length at home dresses: a quilted plastic jacket with loden skirt for casual wear (watch for quilted plastic to turn up in new places), a sport suit in orange corduroy and reversible suits. Big news on campus and elsewhere — fur with fur — lots of a good thing.

Sewing Chiffon Requires Skill

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Sewing chiffon isn't for the beginning sewer. Here are tips from Vogue Patterns on handling this lovely but difficult material.

Snip selvage every few inches. Straighten ends and check grain. Use sharp, smooth pins (chiffon catches easily) and pin often. Lay fabric over a sheet to keep it from slipping, and hold secure with free hand while cutting.

When making a layered chiffon dress, mark each layer seprately with chalk or tailor's tacks, match carefully when placing layers together. Baste like mad, avoiding stretching the fabric in any way. When stitching, stitch over tissue, use silk thread and a No. 9 needle. Make French seams wherever possible.

Allow dress to hang out about 24 hours before hemming. Put in zippers by hand. Chiffon dresses shouldn't be allowed to hang in closets without putting the skirt hem up over the hanger bar.

Cosmetics Firm Head Says Women Overdo Makeup

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A woman boss of a cosmetics firm says American women are overdoing their makeup.

"Most of them are using too much, with harsh results," said Estee Lauder. "There isn't enough subtlety."

"I see no reason why a natural look in makeup cannot be considered beautiful," said Mrs. Lauder. "Fix up your face according to your skin, not according to what your neighbor is doing. The skin should have a creamy, luminous quality. Naturally, the shades in makeup should be determined by the individual's coloring. But I have often found that one shade of rouge (deep rose) and one shade of eyeshadow (turquoise) will do wonders for the average woman."

Mrs. Lauder, who offers a 10 point program of skin care, boasts a creamy looking, unlined complexion that is her own best testimonial. Yet the blonde, brown eyed businesswoman has two mature sons and two grandchildren.

Born at Flushing, N. Y., Mrs. Lauder originally planned to become a dermatologist, following a pattern set by some of her uncles who were dermatologists in Vienna.

But love intervened when she met Joseph Lauder, a business analyst. And it wasn't until her two children were of school age that she resumed her interest in skin care. She started selling one of her family's all-in-one face cream formulas in the rear of a small, hairdressing shop in Manhattan.

"They say the way to spread the word is by telephone, telegraph and tell a woman," she said. "It was the last that worked for me. One customer had told another."

In an interview, Mrs. Lauder suggested these 10 skin care rules which she says certainly have succeeded for her.

— No soap and water unless you have a problem skin. "I have not washed my face since I was 12," she said. She recommends a pure, light-textured cleansing oil that lubricates as it removes soil and makeup.

— Always use a little protective cream on the face when in the tub or shower. "Steam creates a taut, drying effect," she said.

— "Stay out of the sun, or at least if you must sun, keep the dosage small.

— Any woman over 30 should use a facial mask to tone the skin and bring up the circulation. "I use one every day when I get home from the office," she said. "I call it my five-minute cocktail."

— Learn the art of applying makeup. Get advice from one of the hundreds of trained personnel which various manufacturers have behind cosmetics counters. Mrs. Lauder alone has "several hundred" who have been schooled in cosmetics use.

— Don't wear the same daytime makeup on into evening because artificial light creates a different effect.

— Never smooth rouge on the cheeks only. Put a faint touch on forehead, chin, and ear lobes to bring the whole face in harmony.

— Select one fragrance and make it your signature.

—Always use fresh cotton pads to apply powder. Don't just powder your nose when touching up makeup.

Walls, Carpet Should Conform For Suitability

Q. With a melon colored sofa, chocolate brown chair, blue chair, cocoa colored carpet, sand colored draperies, what color do we paint the walls of our new 15 by 17 living room? We want to change from the white they now are. Would a soft, pastel blue be appropriate?

A. There really isn't enough blue among your furnishings to warrant painting the walls blue. A pale cocoa to conform to cocoa carpet would be more suitable. Introduce intense brilliant hues in accessories.

Q. We are moving to a new house where all the woodwork will be a natural color. A Lawson sofa and chair have just been recovered in an olive green. I like the Early American look. Please help me with rest of room, walls, rug, draperies, two chairs. What do you think of blue with olive?

A. A French blue could be used to advantage on the walls. It could also appear in a provincial print for draperies if you plan a print here. Rug could be green. Cover two chairs in persimmon or in a print, if you use it, which has persimmon and green as well as blue in the design. Have some bright blue for accent. Search for some good Early American brass accessories.

— Learn the art of applying makeup. Get advice from one of the hundreds of trained personnel which various manufacturers have behind cosmetics counters. Mrs. Lauder alone has "several hundred" who have been schooled in cosmetics use.

— Don't wear the same daytime makeup on into evening because artificial light creates a different effect.

— Never smooth rouge on the cheeks only. Put a faint touch on forehead, chin, and ear lobes to bring the whole face in harmony.

— Select one fragrance and make it your signature.

—Always use fresh cotton pads to apply powder. Don't just powder your nose when touching up makeup.

Walls, Carpet Should Conform For Suitability

Q: With a melon colored sofa, chocolate brown chair, blue chair, cocoa colored carpet, sand colored draperies, what color do we paint the walls of our new 13 by 17 living room? We want to change from the white they now are. Would a soft, pastel blue be appropriate?

A: There really isn't enough blue among your furnishings to warrant painting the walls blue. A pale cocoa to conform to cocoa carpet would be more suitable. Introduce intense brilliant blue in accessories.

Q: We are moving to a new house where all the woodwork will be a natural color. A Lawson sofa and chair have just been recovered in an olive green. I like the Early American look. Please help me with rest of room, walls, rug, draperies, two chairs. What do you think of blue with olive?

A: A French blue could be used to advantage on the walls. It could also appear in a provincial print for draperies (if you plan a print here). Rug could be green. Cover two chairs in persimmon or in a print, if you use it, which has persimmon and green as well as blue in the design. Have some bright blue for accent. Search for some good Early American brass accessories.

MR. AND MRS. MARSHALL BLACKWELL

Jean Clingan Is Bride Of Mr. Blackwell

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Jean Clingan and Marshall Q. Blackwell on Friday, August 24 in the First Baptist church of Mangham. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Clingan, Mangham and Mr. Blackwell is the son of Mrs. Fred son Reese of Wheaton, Maryland and C. Q. Blackwell of Albany, Ga., and the grandson of Mrs. M. W. Wooten and the late Dr. Wooten of Mangham.

Rev. C. W. Jones performed the ceremony at 7:30 p.m. beneath an arch entwined with ivy and wedding bells. On either side of the rostrum were tree candelabra with white tapers and floor standards of white gladioli and jade foliage.

Nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. C. W. Jones at the organ, Mrs. B. N. Hyson at the piano and W. C. Thames Jr., soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of imported white lace featured a matching jacket with long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a Queen's crown of pearls and she carried a white Bible, centered with an orchid and stephanotis, interlaced with white streamers.

Miss June Ross, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown was of white silk embroidered organza over Dior blue, styled with scoop neckline and full skirt. She wore a headdress of blue satin and net with matching shoes and carried a nosegay of white chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Kathryn Etier, Miss Elaine Templeton, Miss Dorothy Mercer. Also wearing blue were the junior bridesmaids, Miss Billie Gail Smart of Vidalia and Miss Donna June Ross, of Jonesville, and the flower girl, Becky Smart, of Vidalia, nieces of the bride. Ring bearer was Steven Ross, nephew of the bride.

Serving as best man was Robert Reese, brother of the groom. Groomsmen - ushers were John Ben Boughton, David Pardue and Ronnie Sharbans.

Mrs. Clingan, mother of the bride, wore a dress of white silk with blue print and matching accessories with a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a green chiffon dress with a white carnation corsage and Mrs. Wooten chose a pink silk crepe.

A reception followed the ceremony in the social room of the church where the refreshment table was centered with the tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. At one end of the table was an arrangement of white flowers in a silver bowl and the punch bowl was opposite.

Mrs. Maxine Smart of Vidalia, sister of the bride, served punch, alternating with the tea girls, Mrs. Betty Sue Gray and Miss Dixie Reagan, cousins of the bride of Rayville. Mrs. J. Dale Ross of Jonesville, served the cake and Miss Dorothy Banks presided over the bride's book.

For a wedding trip the bride changed into a navy blue silk crepe jacket dress with navy accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Elegant Look Prevails On Autumn Scene

Fall fashions come in an exciting cavalcade of color, fabric and discreet styling.

Since silhouettes are varied and no one shape is paramount, designers have placed emphasis on wonderful fabrics and glowing, flattering colors.

Coatings, suitings and even dress fabrics have many characteristics in common—only weights of the fabric are radically different in the various categories.

However, there's a world of difference in the fabrics for daytime and fabrics for late evening — those for the p.m. side of the clock take on extra-rich elegance.

Fabrics turn from the loopy, fluffy and soft-handed casual-look for day, rich, luxurious mood of glow, glitter and glamour for evening.

In color a new world of soft, gentle browns come into the limelight alongside of a renaissance of vibrant, clear - glowing reds.

There's a deep almost midnight tone to winter navy while greens for fall are subdued and rich. A neutral rice tone and a "Bond Street" grey are companions in elegance for suitings and coatings particularly.

MRS. THOMAS ROY MORGAN, prior to her marriage September 1 in Henderson, Texas, was Miss Billie Sue Ballard, daughter of Mrs. John Meeks of Monroe and the late Aaron E. Ballard. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Morgan of Shreveport. The couple will establish a home in Shreveport.

Shoes Can Coordinate Wardrobe

NEW YORK — Leather shoes are the key to the well coordinated co-ed this fall.

On view at headquarters here of the Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America were hundreds of flats, boots, heel bumps and strap shoes in leather colors and finishes designed to make a costume of skirts, blouses, jackets and other separates. Also on display were the leather garments, handbags and other accessories that will be seen on the smartest college and high school co-eds this season.

Whether she's back-to-school or off on a date, the hip teen will select her shoes in a leather texture and color to coordinate with her leather gloves, handbag and belt. Two trends in shoe-accessory matching were featured: one color in a variety of leather finishes — smooth, suede, brushed or grained leather; or one leather texture in a variety of tonal gradations — such as red maple, red clay, vintage and scarlet.

But whether she mixes or matches, this season the teen girl has her choice of the high and the low in footwear fashions — from the low-cut skimmer to the mid-calf boot in soft, supple, foot-hugging leather. In between, she will find fresh ideas in smooth leather-lined date shoes, re-styled versions of the classic leather moccasin and even the "leather sneaker."

In every style, there are striking leather textures to suit your taste. For example, in date shoes you can find gleaming black patent — a new idea in fall shoes— suede, grain or reptile leathers. In moccasins, the most popular shoe in the schoolgirl's wardrobe, there are brushed leathers, waxed steerhide and smooth leather. The use of golden tone, heightened by yellows or greens add another whole color family to the teen shoe collection.

The classic moc is found in both refined and heavy "hand-stitched" versions. Set on its slim leather sole, the moccasin is as comfortable as it looks. Bold colors—some in brushed leather others in glove leather—lift the moccasin off the ground and onto Cloud 9. There are wild oranges, chrysanthemum gold and lute green—a new blue-green.

As the leather boot, the teen's own shoe discovery, grows more popular more styles become available. This year the "almost boot" leads the boot fashion parade. This style restricts the rising line to throat, one side or back. One new "almost boot" in a smooth-and-brushed leather version has a high back brought all the way around the ankle and then cut straight down to form a flat silhouette for the front of the shoe. A single eyelet tie at the top of the throatline closes the flap that is formed.

Higher boots are available in brushed, glove and steerhide—a leather that is both tough and soft, giving the teen that combination of wear and comfort that an active girl on a limited budget appreciates. With short skirts, the teen wears knee-high boots in soft leather that can be crushed down or folded over in "fireman's fashion." The weatherproof leather sole that forms the base of the boot gives you support as well as smooth flexibility.

The teen has still another footwear passion — the "leather sneaker" — one of many leather flats that's fast replacing the canvas sneaker. As light as a canvas-rubber shoe, the leather sneaker has the added advantage of comfort, durability and fashion coordination. Very few stylists have even attempted to coordinate sneakers, which rapidly become misshapen and discolored, with other fashion accessories.

More Formality Is Noted In New Furniture

The Mediterranean influence is more of a mood than a direct derivation from those countries which border that sea, Home Furnishings Daily finds. There is much hand carving in the furniture pieces and a blending of Mediterranean motifs. They are massive and many are flush to the floor. There is a renewed interest in olive wood.

In the French influenced furniture — especially important in bedrooms — the provincial types are more authentic. Clear, light finishes have been used and painted surfaces, in both the gleaming type and the more subdued brush - stroked white, are important.

More authenticity also prevails in Early American, with a revival of interest in museum-inspired furnishings. Rustic types are more or less on the decline. More formality is noted, with even a Chippendale type of carving being used.

Contemporary has not been overlooked but it is going much more conservative. Sculptured flowing lines are on the decline. There is more surface decoration, more floor - based types of case goods. Popular woods for fall are walnut, teak, rosewood and oak which have been finished close to the grain and given an oil rubbing.

In all periods of furniture, there are many more quality details. There is, for example, a handmade look to much of the hardware. Tooled leather surfaces are found on many of the occasional tables and desks. Interior lights have been added to buffets and corner cabinets. Playing of one wood against another also gives the more quality look.

In fabrics, floral prints are bold and splashy for the contemporary look. For traditional, there are more two tones in rich colors; cut velvets with stripe effect and printed linens. In the ever - increasing and practical vinyls, there is a new patent finish which is a glossy look overlaying leather grain. New quilting techniques will be found intriguing.

Red will be selling strong for accent pieces. The amethysts and rose shades are high along with the popular green offshoots — lime and avocado.

CALL TO CLASSICS

Classic revival for fall puts the spotlight on mixable separates, with the well - tailored jacket in many shapes becoming an increasingly important component for casual wardrobes.

MISS BARBARA HANCOCK

Shape Is Link Between Varied Fall Fashions

Fashion is a personal matter this fall, as designers offer every woman a greater than ever opportunity to express her individuality in dressing. Approved silhouettes are many; most are linked by an over - all trend toward more shapeliness, more subtlety — trims kept to a minimum to allow cut, fabric and color full play.

Among the shapes are the "natural," featuring bias - cut fluidity along figure - skimming lines; the "spare" look, where narrowed down simplicity is most important; the figure - following shift style, which veers from straight lines toward lightly defined curves; the fitted front, free back models and the out-and - out shapely silhouette with nipped waistline, rounded hipline. "Muffled up" or "Mata Hari" look introduces high - rising curves, stoles or fur collars.

Accents are elegant. Fur leads the way, for collars, cuff, tuxedo fronts, hemline borders and linings. Leather, fringe, velvet and handsome stitching highlight more casual clothes, while beads, sequins, metallics take the stage after dark.

SLEEVES SET IN

"Spare" shape for fall fashion silhouettes with long, narrow set-in sleeves. In some instances, the sleeve has more than a hint of "leg o'mutton" styling.

Miss Hancock To Be Early Autumn Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hancock of Crossett, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Barbara, to Robert Rieff Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cecil Mitchell of Pargoud, Ark.

Miss Hancock attended Louisiana State University and received her B. S. E. degree from the University of Arkansas. Mr. Mitchell received his B. A. degree in business administration from the University of Arkansas and did graduate work there.

The wedding will be an event of early autumn.

CREPES POPULAR

Crepes, in one piece dresses and the dress and jacket costumes are dependable season - spanners and favorite of the wool-allergics in silk, acetate and rayon. A fashion - trend is the luncheon through dawn costume, featuring the flattering above the table dressy look in chiffon over lace . . . Chantilly lace type combined with nude illusion . . . original designed jet and bead trims, with versatile jackets.

Shoes Can Coordinate Wardrobe

NEW YORK Leather shoes are the key to the well coordinated co-ed this fall.

On view at headquarters here of the Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America were hundreds of flats, boots, heel pumps and strap shoes in leather colors and finishes designed to make a costume of skirts, blouses, jackets and other separates. Also on display were the leather garments, handbags and other accessories that will be seen on the smartest college and high school co-eds this season.

Whether she's back-to-school or off on a date, the hip teen will select her shoes in a leather texture and color to coordinate with her leather gloves, handbag and belt. Two trends in shoe-accessory matching were featured: one color in a variety of leather finishes — smooth, suede, brushed or grained leather; or one leather texture in a variety of tonal gradations — such as red maple, red clay, vintage and scarlet.

But whether she mixes or matches, this season the teen girl has her choice of the high and the low in footwear fashions — from the low-cut skimmer to the mid-calf boot in soft, supple, foot-hugging leather. In between, she will find fresh ideas in smooth leather-lined date shoes, re-styled versions of the classic leather moccasin and even the "leather sneaker."

In every style, there are striking leather textures to suit your taste. For example, in date shoes you can find gleaming black patent—a new idea in fall shoes—suede, grain or reptile leathers. In moccasins, the most popular shoe in the schoolgirl's wardrobe, there are brushed leathers, waxed steerhide and smooth leather. The use of golden tones heightened by yellows or greens add another whole color family to the teen shoe collection.

The classic moc is found in both refined and heavy "hand-stitched" versions. Set on its slim leather sole, the moccasin is as comfortable as it looks. Bold colors—some in brushed leather others in glove leather—lift the moccasin off the ground and onto Cloud 9. There are wild oranges, chrysanthemum gold and lute green—a new blue-green.

As the leather boot, the teen's own shoe discovery, grows more popular more styles become available. This year the "almost boot" leads the boot fashion parade. This style restricts the rising line to throat, one side or back. One new "almost boot" in a smooth-and-brushed leather version has a high back brought all the way around the ankle and then cut straight down to form a flat silhouette for the front of the shoe. A single eyelet tie at the top of the throatline closes the flap that is formed.

Higher boots are available in brushed, glove and steerhide—a leather that is both tough and soft, giving the teen that combination of wear and comfort that an active girl on a limited budget appreciates. With short skirts, the teen wears knee-high boots in soft leather that can be crushed down or folded over in "fireman's fashion." The weatherproof leather sole that forms the base of the boot gives you support as well as smooth flexibility.

The teen has still another footwear passion — the "leather sneaker" — one of many leather flats that's fast replacing the canvas sneaker. As light as a canvas-rubber shoe, the leather sneaker has the added advantage of comfort, durability and fashion coordination. Very few stylists have even attempted to coordinate sneakers, which rapidly become misshapen and discolored, with other fashion accessories.

In the French influenced furniture — especially important in bedrooms — the provincial types are more authentic. Clear, light finishes have been used and painted surfaces, in both the gleaming type and the more subdued brush - stroked white, are important.

More authenticity also prevails in Early American, with a revival of interest in museum-inspired furnishings. Rustic types are more or less on the decline. More formality is noted, with even a Chippendale type of carving being used.

Contemporary has not been overlooked but it is going much more conservative. Sculptured flowing lines are on the decline. There is more surface decoration, more floor - based types of case goods. In fabrics, floral prints are bold and splashy for the contemporary look. For traditional, there are more two tones in rich colors; cut velvets with stripe effect and printed linens. In the ever - increasing and practical vinyls, there is a new patent finish which is a glossy look overlaying leather grain. New quilting techniques will be found intriguing.

Red will be selling strong for accent pieces. The amethysts and rose shades are high along with the popular green offshoots — lime and avocado.

Shape Is Link Between Varied Fall Fashions

Fashion is a personal matter this fall, as designers offer every woman a greater than ever opportunity to express her individuality in dressing. Approved silhouettes are many; most are linked by an over - all trend toward more shapeliness, more subtlety — trims kept to a minimum to allow cut, fabric and color full play.

Among the shapes are the "natural," featuring bias - cut fluidity along figure - skimming lines; the "spare" look, where narrowed down simplicity is most important; the figure - following shift style, which veers from straight lines toward lightly defined curves; the fitted front, free back models and the out-and - out shapely silhouette with nipped waistline, rounded hipline. "Muffled up" or "Mata Hari" look introduces high - rising curves, stoles or fur collars.

Accents are elegant. Fur leads the way, for collars, cuff, tuxedo fronts, hemline borders and linings. Leather, fringe, velvet and handsome stitching highlight more casual clothes, while beads, sequins, metallics take the stage after dark.

SLEEVES SET IN

"Spare" shape for fall fashion silhouettes with long, narrow set-in sleeves. In some instances, the sleeve has more than a hint of "leg o'mutton" styling.

CREPES POPULAR

Crepes, in one piece dresses and the dress and jacket costumes are dependable season - spanners and favorite of the wool-allergics in silk, acetate and rayon. A fashion - trend is the luncheon through dawn costume, featuring the flattering above the table dressy look in chiffon over lace . . . Chantilly lace type combined with nude illusion . . . original designed jet and bead trims, with versatile jackets.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Containers From Nature

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

By MRS. LESLIE CLARK
Guest Writer

The Garden Center and TV show on Wednesday was brought to us by the Highland Study Club of West Monroe, of which Mrs. A. B. Smith is President.

Theme of the show was "Containers from Nature." Our thanks to Mrs. K. R. Young for judging this show. The first composition was by Mrs. Frank Townsley and Mrs. Malcolm Bass. An all dried arrangement of cattails, aspidistra leaves, nandina berries, celosia, and the exotic looking milkweek seed pods blended beautifully in color to form a line - mass. The container of driftwood had been brushed with thinned shellac to give it a slight glaze. This was very effective and could be used informally.

ARMADILLO

Mrs. A. B. Smith used an armadillo shell for her container. It had been cleaned and dried, the outside left in its natural state, the inside sprayed gold. Bronzed magnolia leaves formed the triangular line with nandina berries, in a blending of green to brown, for filler. Three garlic blossoms and gold grapes formed the focal area. This was striking in tones of browns, tan and gold.

Mrs. Floyd Adams chose sea shells for her lovely twin arrangements. Soft textured petunias, red violet in color, combined with red roses and red foliage barberry composed the small mass arrangements. These showed a lovely blending of color and could be used side by side or back to back. They would serve nicely as book-ends.

Mrs. Frank Buce contributed a small design of one beautiful dahlia in a bit of driftwood. It looked as though she might have picked it from the barn yard or wood pile and polished to a smooth dull finish. A few green leaves added a bit of rhythm. This was placed on a slate base that blended perfectly with the wood of the container. A tiny glass placed in a hole in the center held water for the fresh cut flower.

For her second arrangement, Mrs. Buce used a curved piece of driftwood in values of brown. Red Lilliput Zinnias and green woods fern formed the triangular design. The wood contained a hollow in which a cup needlepoint holder was placed to hold water needed for the fresh plant material. This showed a very nice blending of textures.

COMBINED

Mrs. A. G. Hicks combined fall fruits, vegetables and flowers in harmonizing colors for her triangular design. A small orange pumpkin was used as the primary placement and also formed the container for the fresh celosia used as filler. A golden quince, pomegranates and buckeyes completed this very pleasing color combination making it ideal for the kitchen.

Horticulture contributions by Mrs. J. F. Smith were a specimen dahlia and an unusual stalk of celosia, both crested and plumed on the same stem. Mrs. Young contributed a pod of vining okra. Our sincere thanks to you ladies of the Highland Study Club for this inspiring show.

The Zephyranthes - zephyr lily or fairy lily - is blooming now. These are breathtaking when planted in drifts. You can prune half the season's growth from your roses now for October blooming. Feed with a weak liquid cow manure. Manure is a natural for roses. Watch for blackspot and red spider. Somehow the fall blossoms are prettier than the spring ones. Take indoors those tender potted plants to give them time to adjust before cold weather.

If you want an inexpensive house plant for winter, start a sweet potatoe vine. You can glamorize it with an attractive container. Fall is tree planting time. To you young homemakers with new yards to landscape, give careful consideration to the trees you choose. There are so many worthwhile and rewarding trees that could take the place of the short - lived ones, and they need not be costly.

A good grouping of trees, a lawn, and the house, give the cheapest and most desirable of landscape effects. Two of the loveliest trees on the landscape are the elm and maple. These are trees of relatively slow growth but of lasting value in a garden. Winter lawns can be planted this month by sowing rye grass seed. Use three to five pounds of seed per 1000 square feet of lawn. A light topping of well rotted manure after seed are sown will improve the quality of the winter lawn.

ENCHANTING

An enchanting spot of natural beauty is Holly Bluff Gardens on The - Jordan. This garden boasts rare camellias, azalias, tropical trees and shrubs and is open the year round from sunrise to sunset. There is a miniature museum full of objects d'art collected by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Crump on their world travels, and the old water wheel, ivy covered. All this — and so close to home, sixty miles east of New Orleans just off U. S. 90 - Bay St. Louis, Miss. Its worth your time and effort.

Wednesday, Mrs. Morris L. Johnson, a member of College Heights Garden Club, will be our special guest on TV. Her topic—"Drying Material for Flower Arrangeing and Dried Arrangements."

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Potpourri Of Weather

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

September is here again with its hot weather, droughts and hurricane rains: a potpourri of violences typical of the weather which southern gardens have to endure. If your garden pulls through late August and September, it will look good the rest of the year.

Were it not for the fall blooming bulbs and a few perennials and trusty annuals, southern gardens would be drab indeed in early September. Already, the sternbergias are beginning to brighten up things with their little golden blossoms. The oxblood colored miniature amaryllises, for some reason, are not open in my garden yet. At least, they were not open yesterday — but they may be in bloom by day after tomorrow. They can come up in nothing flat and surprise you.

NEXT

A few purple colchicums will come next, and then quantities of different kinds in deep and light violet. The showiest of all the colchicums will be The Giant. This one is now for sale in seed stores. Each of the strangely-shaped corms will give you from eight to 24 long stemmed pink violet flowers. The stems are white in this variety, and the flowers last about a week in or out of water.

In the garden, you may pick the blossoms of colchicums just when they are fully grown and before they fall over. The new buds are beautiful as they develop right in sight where they make brilliant patches of color. The old blossoms are very showy sprawled on the ground, but they will last longer in the house out of the sun than in the garden, so you may pick them and manage to have both a garden full and a house full at the same time.

LACK OF WATER

In seasons when we have prolonged droughts, many of the buds of red spiderlilies never have enough water to develop.

Second Guess Often Applied To Weather

By HARRY FERGUSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next to a baseball umpire, the weather man gets more second guessing than anybody. The difference is that the U.S. Weather Bureau makes no claim to being infallible and, in fact, spends most of its time revising its previous judgments.

The Jones family decides to spend Saturday driving 40 miles to a beach and having a picnic. At 7 a.m. they check on the weather by looking at the morning papers or turning on the television or radio. It doesn't make any difference where they get their information because it all comes from the same source — the U.S. Weather Bureau. They read or hear this:

SUNNY VIEW

"Mostly sunny today with a high temperature of 82 degrees. Fair and cooler tonight."

The odds are almost seven to one that the Jones family will find things exactly as forecast. But there always is that one chance that it will start raining as soon as they hit the road and continue all day. The heaviest cross the weather bureau has to bear is that when a forecast is correct people take it for granted, but when it is wrong they never forget it.

Over the years the weather bureau has a record of making correct forecasts 87 per cent of the time. When they go astray, it is primarily because of a factor which they call "insufficient sampling." There are 300 full time weather bureaus operating 24 hours a day and about 12,000 volunteer helpers. But it is still impossible to have a weather observer in every town in the country.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"The one chore that 'bugs' me most, is getting the boys' clothes ready for school. Can you please tell me how to make cuffs on boys' slacks when I have to change the length?"

Mrs. P. V. G.

Dear Mrs. P. V. G.:

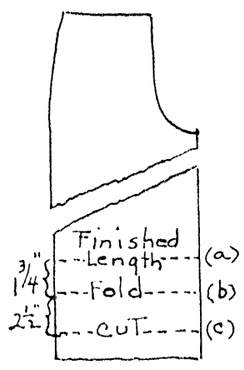
Altering and changing my own (4) children's clothes the week before school starts is no easy job. Having to cuff a pair of trousers for your boys or husband usually faces all of us. Here are easy to follow instructions and a sketch that I hope you will clip and save.

1. Rip out the original cuff and press the trouser legs flat.

2. Mark the correct length of finished trousers. (a).

3. Chalk mark 1¼ inches below first chalk line for width of cuff. (b).

(4) Mark 2½ inches below second line and cut excess fabric off. (c).



Fold hem to wrong side of trousers on the middle chalk line (b). Machine stitch cut edge (c) to trousers. This could also be done by hand with a catch stitch. This stitching line will be covered with the cuff. Fold cuff up to right side of the first chalk line (a), and the cuff should be even and the correct length. Tack the finished cuff to trousers at both seams.

PRE-SHRINK WOOL

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"This summer I picked up some lovely woolens at the woolen mills, but was told they would need to be shrunk before cutting. How is this done at home and is there any way to be sure any woolens we buy have been pre-shrunk?"

Mrs. T. G.

Dear Mrs. T. G.:

The best way to be sure woolens have been pre - shrunk is to ask the sales person when making the purchase. It doesn't take too much time and is well worth the extra effort.

Thoroughly dampen a sheet without leaving any excess water. Lay the sheet over the full length of the wool. Fold the two together in folds about 12" wide. Place a sheet of plastic over this so the moisture will penetrate.

Leave this about 12 hours before unfolding. When you remove the sheet, carefully pat the wool in shape so that the grain is perfect. It is best to do this on the carpet. It will not have enough moisture to hurt the carpet, but the rough surface will help keep the fabric in shape. Let it dry in this position and do NOT press when dry. The beautiful part about wool is that it retains its finish and shape without pressing. After your garment has been completed you can have it professionally pressed.

"Dear Eunice,

"I'm ashamed to admit that everything I own is too long because I have neglected to shorten the skirts so they would be currently in style. What is the correct length for fall?"

Mrs. C. G. E.

Dear Mrs. C. G. E:

I answered this last week but some of you must have missed it. The accepted length of skirts this fall will be just below the knee. A few foreign designers have introduced a longer skirt than we have had for many years, but it is too soon to know whether it will be generally accepted. The important rule that most designers agree on is that you must choose a length that is becoming to you individually.

This week's Tailor Trix winner is Mrs. Teddy English, Framingham, Mass., who suggests:

"When making a full gathered skirt, sew into the hem the stiffening that is used in the headings of curtains and draperies. Use either a 3" or 4" width. When sewed in the skirt, the skirt will have that STAND - AWAY look which young girls love, and fewer slips are required."

If the skirt is circular, you can buy the stiffening by the yard and cut a bias strip instead of a straight one.

Please send your "tips" to Sew Simple. Perhaps you will be lucky enough to win a Tailor Trix Pressing Board. Send your suggestions to Sew Simple in care of Monroe Morning World

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Horizons for home movie fans have been enlarged with the announcement of a new portable home movie light with a fast, rechargeable power pack.

It enables a movie maker to shoot a roll of film at night outdoors without the necessity of plugging into an electric outlet to supply the power for his light.

The compact new unit is the GE Portable Cinema Light. It consists of a high - intensity, sealed - beam lamp and a nickel - cadmium battery pack. The lamp is attached to a bracket which holds the camera in alignment. The battery pack is carried by a shoulder strap. Lamp and power pack together weigh only eight and a half pounds.

LIGHT DURATION

When fully charged, the power pack provides at least six minutes of light, enough for a full roll of 8 mm movie film. Then it is recharged by plugging into an electric outlet for one hour. Leaving it in longer, even overnight, does no harm. The lamp bulb itself has a total rated life of three hours, providing enough light to shoot between 30 to 40 rolls of home movie film.

The portable cinema light will give best results with indoor color films (Type A) at distances from four to 10 feet. Its guide number is 20 with ASA 40 speed films. The beam of the light is broad enough to cover the view of a wide - angle lens or a zoom lens at the wide angle position.

In addition, two other lamps are available as accessories which extend the beam of light by narrowing its angle. One lamp, the DWJ, is designed for normal 15mm lenses. Its range with ASA 40 film is up to 14 feet. The third lamp, the DWG, is designed for telephoto lenses. Its narrow spotlight beam goes out 40 to 50 feet and will give good color exposures with an f-1.9 lens with ASA 40 film. The lamps can be exchanged within a matter of minutes.

INNOVATION

Another innovation is introduced in home movie projection with the new Kodak Automatic 8 Projector, Model 1, — automatic rewinding.

With this machine, the operator places a reel of film (up to 200 - foot capacity) on the supply spindle, turns the projector on and inserts the film into a slot at the top of the gate. Then he sits back and relaxes.

The film is automatically fed through the gate onto an enclosed take - up reel and is projected, as has been done heretofore. But when the end of the film is reached, the projector turns the projection lamp off and a room lamp on, automatically rewinds the film and then turns the projector motor off!

Actually one preliminary move on the part of the operator is necessary before this projector automation is possible: a "rewind film clip" must be attached to the trailing end of any film to be shown. Once on, it stays on and triggers the mechanism into its rewind action.

However, the machine also has a rewind lever so that the automatic rewind can be started manually at any time during projection.

NIGHT OUTDOOR HOME MOVIES are possible now with a new GE Portable Cinema Light unit. A home movie fan can shoot aboard a boat, at a beach picnic, on trains and planes, at carnivals and state fairs where an electric outlet isn't handy. A compact power pack provides on-the-spot power for a roll of 8mm film.

Seasonal Azalea Ills

By AUDREY DAWSON

Your azaleas at this season may show symptoms of several ills which can be easily corrected. Probably the most common is chlorosis, the leaves turns yellow between the veins and the veins remain dark green.

This is caused by lack of iron. If this condition exists, it can be corrected by the addition of aluminum sulphate to the soil. Apply this at the rate of one-fourth to one - half pound per square yard of surface soil. Scatter or broadcast on top of the soil, under and just beyond the spread of the branches. Be careful not to exceed one - half pound per square of surface soil at any application as there is danger of making the soil too acid.

There is another method which you may use, but it is only temporary. Apply ferrous sulphate commonly called copperas to the foliage. Spray the azalea leaves with a solution containing one ounce of ferrous sulphate to a gallon of water.

Remember, when watering azaleas it is much better to give them a thorough soaking once each week than to water several times a week. A thorough soaking once a week is all that is necessary.

BULLETIN

Next month is daffodil planting time, so now is the time to make plans and talk with your nurseryman or feed store to make sure of obtaining just what you want. We have a bulletin, "Daffodils for the Yard," which gives the varieties, planting and care. If you want a copy call FA 3-2251. The narcissus starts blooming early in the year and blooms for about eight weeks. You may select colors from white to dark yellow.

Some varieties have pink tints. There are really three popular groups of bulbs, narcissus, jonquils, and daffodils. The jonquils have round leaves and produce yellow flowers but seem not to be quite as hardy as the narcissus, but they have an advantage separated as often as narcissus because they do not become too crowded.

There are ever so many varieties of daffodils and the varieties recommended for this area are listed in the bulletin offered. So, if you want color in your yard or garden in the early part of 1963, be sure to get some bulbs planted next month. The bulbs will produce flowers the first season because the bloom bulbs have already been formed in the bulb you buy.

PEARS

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have pears and you need a preserve recipe, we have a bulletin, "Jellies, Jams, and Preserves," which you may have by calling FA 3-2251. This is one of the services of your Agricultural Extension Office. There's other ways of using pears — as pear butter, pear honey, pear conserve, pear marmalade, directions for making these are all found in the bulletin. Remember our Ouachita Valley Fair, October 8-13. Don't you want to exhibit your prize winning pear preserves.

BOYS WEAR

Mrs. Homemaker, if you have boys in your family, you will be interested in a test that was made recently on T - shirts and Jeans. The clothes were worn by fourth and fifth grade boys and washed after each wearing for 10, 20, 30, and 40 times. Results showed that cotton shirts undergo their biggest change at the first laundering. T - shirts shrank no matter how they were washed and the jeans all shrank more than the one per cent indicated on the label.

Cotton shirts shrank lengthwise, sometimes so much they no longer fitted the boys.

Cotton orlon sport shirts, although marked machine washable were not colorfast at 120 degrees F.

Tests also included gingham and flannel shirts. The gingham shirts did not shrink and they did not fade after repeated washings. But they did not stand up as well as the flannel shirts. Even during the first 10 washings, elbows and cuffs grew thin. However, the flannel shirts shrank and faded more than the gingham.

CARPETS

Dirt and dust are the two worst enemies of your carpets and rugs. They drop in among the fibers and ground against them. The sharp, gritty edges sometimes cut the pile.

A daily once - over lightly with a carpet sweeper or a vacuum cleaner is a must. A thorough vacuuming should be done once or twice a week, depending upon the amount of traffic in your home.

The dangers of spots and stains can be minimized if you act quick when anything is dropped or spilled on a carpet. Remove the spots and stains before they dry.

There are three cleaning materials that should be kept on hand at all times for quick spot cleaning. These materials are a mild detergent, white vinegar, and dry cleaning fluid.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Containers From Nature

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

By MRS. LESLIE CLARK
Guest Writer

The Garden Center and TV show on Wednesday was brought to us by the Highland Study Club of West Monroe, of which Mrs. A. B. Smith is President.

Theme of the show was "Containers from Nature." Our thanks to Mrs. K. R. Young for judging this show. The first composition was by Mrs. Frank Townsley and Mrs. Malcolm Bass. An all dried arrangement of cattails, aspidistra leaves, nandina berries, celosia, and the exotic looking milkweek seed pods blended beautifully in color to form a line - mass. The container of driftwood had been brushed with thinned shellac to give it a slight glaze. This was very effective and could be used informally.

ARMADILLO

Mrs. A. B. Smith used an armadillo shell for her container. It had been cleaned and dried, the outside left in its natural state, the inside sprayed gold. Bronzed magnolia leaves formed the triangular line with nandina berries, in a blending of green to brown, for filler. Three garlic blossoms and gold grapes formed the focal area. This was striking in tones of browns, tan and gold.

Mrs. Floyd Adams chose sea shells for her lovely twin arrangements. Soft textured petunias, red violet in color, combined with red roses and red foliage barberry composed the small mass arrangements. These showed a lovely blending of color and could be used side by side or back to back. They would serve nicely as book-ends.

Mrs. Frank Buce contributed a small design of one beautiful dahlia in a bit of driftwood. It looked as though she might have picked it from the barn yard or wood pile and polished to a smooth dull finish. A few green leaves added a bit of rhythm. This was placed on a slate base that blended perfectly with the wood of the container. A tiny glass placed in a hole in the center held water for the fresh cut flower.

For her second arrangement, Mrs. Buce used a curved piece of driftwood in values of brown. Red Lilliput Zinnias and green woods fern formed the triangular design. The wood contained a hollow in which a cup needlepoint holder was placed to hold water needed for the fresh plant material. This showed a very nice blending of textures.

COMBINED

Mrs. A. G. Hicks combined fall fruits, vegetables and flowers in harmonizing colors for her triangular design. A small orange pumpkin was used as the primary placement and also formed the container for the fresh celosia used as filler. A golden quince, pomegranates and buckeyes completed this very pleasing color combination making it ideal for the kitchen.

Horticulture contributions by Mrs. J. F. Smith were a specimen dahlia and an unusual stalk of celosia, both crested and plumed on the same stem. Mrs. Young contributed a pod of vining okra. Our sincere thanks to you ladies of the Highland Study Club for this inspiring show.

The Zephyranthes - zephyr lily or fairy lily - is blooming now. These are breathtaking when planted in drifts. You can prune half the season's growth from your roses now for October blooming. Feed with a weak liquid cow manure. Manure is a natural for roses. Watch for blackspot and red spider. Somehow the fall blossoms are prettier than the spring ones. Take indoors those tender potted plants to give them time to adjust before cold weather.

If you want an inexpensive house plant for winter, start a sweet potatoe vine. You can glamorize it with an attractive container. Fall is tree planting time. To you young homemakers with new yards to landscape, give careful consideration to the trees you choose. There are so many worthwhile and rewarding trees that could take the place of the short - lived ones, and they need not be costly.

A good grouping of trees, a lawn, and the house, give the cheapest and most desirable of landscape effects. Two of the loveliest trees on the landscape are the elm and maple. These are trees of relatively slow growth but of lasting value in a garden. Winter lawns can be planted this month by sowing rye grass seed. Use three to five pounds of seed per 1000 square feet of lawn. A light topping of well rotted manure after seed are sown will improve the quality of the winter lawn.

ENCHANTING

An enchanting spot of natural beauty is Holly Bluff Gardens on-The - Jordan. This garden boasts rare camellias, azalias, tropical trees and shrubs and is open the year round from sunrise to sunset. There is a miniature museum full of objects d'art collected by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Crump on their world travels, and the old water wheel, ivy covered. All this — and so close to home, sixty miles east of New Orleans just off U. S. 90 - Bay St. Louis, Miss. Its worth your time and effort.

Wednesday, Mrs. Morris L. Johnson, a member of College Heights Garden Club, will be our special guest on TV. Her topic—"Drying Material for Flower Arrangeing and Dried Arrangements."

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Potpourri Of Weather

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

September is here again with its hot weather, droughts and hurricane rains: a potpourri of violences typical of the weather which southern gardens have to endure. If your garden pulls through late August and September, it will look good the rest of the year.

Were it not for the fall blooming bulbs and a few perennials and trusty annuals, southern gardens would be drab indeed in early September. Already, the sternbergias are beginning to brighten up things with their little golden blossoms. The oxblood colored miniature amaryllises, for some reason, are not open in my garden yet. At least, they were not open yesterday — but they may be in bloom by day after tomorrow. They can come up in nothing flat and surprise you.

NEXT

A few purple colchicums will come next, and then quantities of different kinds in deep and light violet. The showiest of all the colchicums will be The Giant. This one is now for sale in seed stores. Each of the strangely-shaped corms will give you from eight to 24 long stemmed pink violet flowers. The stems are white in this variety, and the flowers last about a week in or out of water.

In the garden, you may pick the blossoms of colchicums just when they are fully grown and before they fall over. The new buds are beautiful as they develop right in sight where they make brilliant patches of color. The old blossoms are very showy sprawled on the ground, but they will last longer in the house out of the sun than in the garden, so you may pick them and manage to have both a garden full and a house full at the same time.

LACK OF WATER

In seasons when we have prolonged droughts, many of the buds of red spiderlilies never have enough water to develop.

The three day show attracts collectors and dealers from various parts of the world and is one of the outstanding events in American Philately.

Second Guess Often Applied To Weather

By HARRY FERGUSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next to a baseball umpire, the weather man gets more second guessing than anybody. The difference is that the U.S. Weather Bureau makes no claim to being infallible and, in fact, spends most of its time revising its previous judgments.

The Jones family decides to spend Saturday driving 40 miles to a beach and having a picnic. At 7 a.m. they check on the weather by looking at the morning papers or turning on the television or radio. It doesn't make any difference where they get their information because it all comes from the same source — the U.S. Weather Bureau. They read or hear this:

SUNNY VIEW

"Mostly sunny today with a high temperature of 82 degrees. Fair and cooler tonight."

The odds are almost seven to one that the Jones family will find things exactly as forecast. But there always is that one chance that it will start raining as soon as they hit the road and continue all day. The heaviest cross the weather bureau has to bear is that when a forecast is correct people take it for granted, but when it is wrong they never forget it.

Over the years the weather bureau has a record of making correct forecasts 87 per cent of the time. When they go astray, it is primarily because of a factor which they call "insufficient sampling." There are 300 full time weather bureaus operating 24 hours a day and about 12,000 volunteer helpers. But it is still impossible to have a weather observer in every town in the country.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"The one chore that 'bugs' me most, is getting the boys' clothes ready for school. Can you please tell me how to make cuffs on boys' slacks when I have to change the length?"

Mrs. P. V. G.

Dear Mrs. P. V. G.:

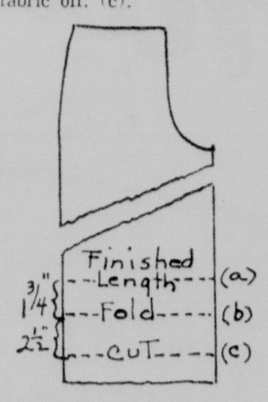
Altering and changing my own (4) children's clothes the week before school starts is no easy job. Having to cuff a pair of trousers for your boys or husband usually faces all of us. Here are easy to follow instructions and a sketch that I hope you will clip and save.

1. Rip out the original cuff and press the trouser legs flat.

2. Mark the correct length of finished trousers. (a).

3. Chalk mark 1¾ inches below first chalk line for width of cuff. (b).

(4) Mark 2½ inches below second line and cut excess fabric off. (c).



Fold hem to wrong side of trousers on the middle chalk line (b). Machine stitch cut edge (c) to trousers. This could also be done by hand with a catch stitch. This stitching line will be covered with the cuff. Fold cuff up to right side of the first chalk line (a), and the cuff should be even and the correct length. Tack the finished cuff to trousers at both seams.

PRE-SHRINK WOOL

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"This summer I picked up some lovely woolens at the woolen mills, but was told they would need to be shrunk before cutting. How is this done at home and is there any way to be sure any woolens we buy have been pre-shrunk?"

Mrs. T. G.

Dear Mrs. T. G.:

The best way to be sure woolens have been pre - shrunk is to ask the sales person when making the purchase. It doesn't take too much time and is well worth the extra effort.

Thoroughly dampen a sheet without leaving any excess water. Lay the sheet over the full length of the wool. Fold the two together in folds about 12" wide. Place a sheet of plastic over this so the moisture will penetrate.

Leave this about 12 hours before unfolding. When you remove the sheet, carefully pat the wool in shape so that the grain is perfect. It is best to do this on the carpet. It will not have enough moisture to hurt the carpet, but the rough surface will help keep the fabric in shape. Let it dry in this position and do NOT press when dry. The beautiful part about wool is that it retains its finish and shape without pressing. After your garment has been completed you can have it professionally pressed.

"Dear Eunice,

"I'm ashamed to admit that everything I own is too long because I have neglected to shorten the skirts so they would be currently in style. What is the correct length for fall?"

Mrs. C. G. E.

Dear Mrs. C. G. E:

I answered this last week but some of you must have missed it. The accepted length of skirts this fall will be just below the knee. A few foreign designers have introduced a longer skirt than we have had for many years, but it is too soon to know whether it will be generally accepted. The important rule that most designers agree on is that you must choose a length that is becoming to you individually.

This week's Tailor Trix winner is Mrs. Teddy English, Framingham, Mass., who suggests:

"When making a full gathered skirt, sew into the hem the stiffening that is used in the headings of curtains and draperies. Use either a 3" or 4" width. When sewed in the skirt, the skirt will have that STAND - AWAY look which young girls love, and fewer slips are required."

If the skirt is circular, you can buy the stiffening by the yard and cut a bias strip instead of a straight one.

Please send your "tips" to Sew Simple. Perhaps you will be lucky enough to win a Tailor Trix Pressing Board. Send your suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Horizons for home movie fans have been enlarged with the announcement of a new portable home movie light with a fast, rechargeable power pack.

It enables a movie maker to shoot a roll of film at night outdoors without the necessity of plugging into an electric outlet to supply the power for his light.

The compact new unit is the GE Portable Cinema Light. It consists of a high - intensity, sealed - beam lamp and a nickel - cadmium battery pack. The lamp is attached to a bracket which holds the camera in alignment. The battery pack is carried by a shoulder strap. Lamp and power pack together weigh only eight and a half pounds.

LIGHT DURATION

When fully charged, the power pack provides at least six minutes of light, enough for a full roll of 8 mm movie film. Then it is recharged by plugging into an electric outlet for one hour. Leaving it in longer, even overnight, does no harm. The lamp bulb itself has a total rated life of three hours, providing enough light to shoot between 30 to 40 rolls of home movie film.

The portable cinema light will give best results with indoor color films (Type A) at distances from four to 10 feet. Its guide number is 20 with ASA 40 speed films. The beam of the light is broad enough to cover the view of a wide - angle lens or a zoom lens at the wide angle position.

In addition, two other lamps are available as accessories which extend the beam of light by narrowing its angle. One lamp, the DWJ, is designed for normal 15mm lenses. Its range with ASA 40 film is up to 14 feet. The third lamp, the DWG, is designed for telephoto lenses. Its narrow spotlight beam goes out 40 to 50 feet and will give good color exposures with an f-1.9 lens with ASA 40 film. The lamps can be exchanged within a matter of minutes.

INNOVATION

Another innovation is introduced in home movie projection with the new Kodak Automatic 8 Projector, Model 1, — automatic rewinding.

With this machine, the operator places a reel of film (up to 200 - foot capacity) on the supply spindle, turns the projector on and inserts the film into a slot at the top of the gate. Then he sits back and relaxes.

The film is automatically fed through the gate onto an enclosed take - up reel and is projected, as has been done heretofore. But when the end of the film is reached, the projector turns the projection lamp off and a room lamp on, automatically rewinds the film and then turns the projector motor off!

Actually one preliminary move on the part of the operator is necessary before this projector automation is possible: a "rewind film clip" must be attached to the trailing end of any film to be shown. Once on, it stays on and triggers the mechanism into its rewind action.

However, the machine also has a rewind lever so that the automatic rewind can be started manually at any time during projection.

NIGHT OUTDOOR HOME MOVIES are possible now with a new GE Portable Cinema Light unit. A home movie fan can shoot aboard a boat, at a beach picnic, on trains and planes, at carnivals and state fairs where an electric outlet isn't handy. A compact power pack provides on-the-spot power for a roll of 8mm film.

EXTENSION NEWS

Seasonal Azalea Ills

By AUDREY DAWSON

Your azaleas at this season may show symptoms of several ills which can be easily corrected. Probably the most common is chlorosis, the leaves turns yellow between the veins and the veins remain dark green.

This is caused by lack of iron. If this condition exists, it can be corrected by the addition of aluminum sulphate to the soil. Apply this at the rate of one-fourth to one - half pound per square yard of surface soil. Scatter or broadcast on top of the soil, under and just beyond the spread of the branches. Be careful not to exceed one - half pound per square of surface soil at any application as there is danger of making the soil too acid.

There is another method which you may use, but it is only temporary. Apply ferrous sulphate commonly called copperas to the foliage. Spray the azalea leaves with a solution containing one ounce of ferrous sulphate to a gallon of water.

Remember, when watering azaleas it is much better to give them a thorough soaking once each week than to water several times a week. A thorough soaking once a week is all that is necessary.

BULLETIN

Next month is daffodil planting time, so now is the time to make plans and talk with your nurseryman or feed store to make sure of obtaining just what you want. We have a bulletin, "Daffodils for the Yard," which gives the varieties, planting and care. If you want a copy call FA 3-2251. The narcissus starts blooming early in the year and blooms for about eight weeks. You may select colors from white to dark yellow.

Some varieties have pink tints. There are really three popular groups of bulbs, narcissus, jonquils, and daffodils. The jonquils have round leaves and produce yellow flowers but seem not to be quite as hardy as the narcissus, but they have an advantage separated as often as narcissus because they do not become too crowded.

There are ever so many varieties of daffodils and the varieties recommended for this area are listed in the bulletin offered. So, if you want color in your yard or garden in the early part of 1963, be sure to get some bulbs planted next month. The bulbs will produce flowers the first season because the bloom bulbs have already been formed in the bulb you buy.

PEARS

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have pears and you need a preserve recipe, we have a bulletin, "Jellies, Jams, and Preserves," which you may have by calling FA 3-2251. This is one of the services of your Agricultural Extension Office. There's other ways of using pears — as pear butter, pear honey, pear conserve, pear marmalade, directions for making these are all found in the bulletin. Remember our Ouachita Valley Fair, October 8-13. Don't you want to exhibit your prize winning pear preserves.

BOYS WEAR

Mrs. Homemaker, if you have boys in your family, you will be interested in a test that was made recently on T - shirts and Jeans. The clothes were worn by fourth and fifth grade boys and washed after each wearing for 10, 20, 30, and 40 times. Results showed that cotton shirts undergo their biggest change at the first laundering. T - shirts shrank no matter how they were washed and the jeans all shrank more than the one per cent indicated on the label.

Cotton shirts shrank lengthwise, sometimes so much they no longer fitted the boys.

Cotton orlon sport shirts, although marked machine washable were not colorfast at 120 degrees F.

Tests also included gingham and flannel shirts. The gingham shirts did not shrink and they did not fade after repeated washings. But they did not stand up as well as the flannel shirts. Even during the first 10 washings, elbows and cuffs grew thin. However, the flannel shirts shrank and faded more than the gingham.

ROCKEFELLER LEGACY

Exhibit Scheduled Of Primitive Art

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The primitive art collected by Michael Rockefeller in the savage land where he disappeared 10 months ago goes on display Tuesday.

It is the legacy of a young man with a boyish enthusiasm for life and an unquenchable desire for knowledge of people in strange and remote place.

His family's million meant little to him.

To Michael at 23, the riches of life lay in the rugged task of exploring jungle territory half way around the world, studying the life of savages there and collecting specimens of their primitive art works.

It was the fascination of this endeavor which carried him to Dutch New Guinea and to his disappearance off the swampy southeast coast of the Asmat region.

Michael's bent was inherited from his father, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has been a lifelong devotee of primitive art.

The father is president of New York's Museum of Primitive Art, and Michael was a trustee. It is there that Michael's collection will be displayed through Nov. 11.

The governor flew to New Guinea to supervise the search for his son.

About the only tangible evidence of Michael's fate was a ca-can from the boat he had used. Since then, there has been nothing else.

A spokesman for the Rockefellers said the family position is that "Michael is lost and presumed dead, but no legal proceedings have been instituted."

Early in 1961, Michael went to Dutch New Guinea on an expedition sponsored by Harvard's Peabody Museum of Archeology and Ethnology, and the Dutch government.

Michael returned home in September, when the expedition ended.

Michael then returned to New Guinea to make motion pictures and collect articles for the Museum of Primitive Art here and for a national museum to be established at Hollandia, New Guinea.

Pleas Of Guilty Entered By Two In 'Pep Pill' Case

RAYVILLE (Special)—L. C. Hogan and his wife, Lois, both of Rayville, appeared in Fifth District Court here Friday and pled guilty to charges of possessing and selling drugs.

Mrs. Hogan pleaded guilty to possessing and selling central nervous system stimulant drugs and was fined $500 and costs and given a 12-month suspended jail sentence by Judge Vernon Sims.

Hogan was also fined $500 plus costs and given a six months suspended sentence after pleading guilty to the same charges.

The two were arrested about two months ago at the Lois and Jack Truck Stop, about two miles east of Rayville. They own the truck stop.

Funds Needed For Operation

JONESVILLE (Special)—About two more weeks remain for donations to the Gary Busn heart fund which is short of the anticipated goal of $1500, according to W. A. Book, treasurer.

A total of $959.12 has been donated to date, leaving a blance of $540.88 to make the goal.

Seven-year-old Gary is scheduled to report to the Methodist Children's hospital, Houston, Texas, the last week in September for a delicate heart operation.

Gilbert To Host Area Officials

JONESVILLE, (Special) — Elected officials of a three-parish area have been invited to attend a barbecue at the home of Senator J. C. Gilbert at Sicily Island and meet with state highway officials, Thursday, September 13, at 5:30 p.m.

Senator Gilbert sent out invitations to all police jurors, school board members, sheriffs, clerk of court, assessors, mayors, district attorneys, coroners, levee board members, and presidents of each men's civic club within Catahoula, Franklin and Richland parishes.

Nine States Set To Vote In Primaries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Hampshire with a spirited four-way Republican contest for the Senate seat of the late Styles Bridges and a heated battle for governor easily takes the spotlight in nine state primaries Tuesday.

Of the four senatorial nomination contestants, Rep. Perkins Bass and Bridges' widow, Mrs. Doloris Bridges, are believed to have the best chance. The others in the race are Sen. Maurice J. Murphy Jr., an interim appointee, and Rep. Chester E. Merrow.

Republican Gov. Wesley Powell, who has made no secret that he would like to have the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, is seeking an unprecedented third term nomination in a lively battle with John Pillsbury, a state legislator. Powell is believed to have the edge, but it could be close. In all, candidates for 8 Senate, 7 governor and 39 House seats will be chosen Tuesday, the biggest primary day of this election year. In addition to New Hampshire there are elections in Arizona, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Vermont, Utah, Rhode Island and Washington.

After a hot Democratic gubernatorial race is decided in Georgia on Wednesday, candidate-picking in Massachusetts Sept. 18, in New York Sept. 17-19, and Hawaii Oct. 6 will complete the roster of nominees for the first mid-term election of the Kennedy administration.

Few incumbents appear to be in danger on Tuesday. The dean of Congress, 84-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., has opposition for renomination, but his friends consider him safe.

Billie Sol Estes figures in a House race in Minnesota. There could be a senatorial upset in Utah, but the chances seem slim.

Opening Of Bids Slated On Dam

JONESVILLE (Special) — Bids for the reconstruction of the Larto Lake dam another five feet higher as a safety measure against future washouts will be opened by the Department of Public Works office in Baton Rouge on Sept. 17, according to Rep. W. S. Beck Jr.

The dam has washed out twice since it was originally constructed a few years ago. It washed out again last year and again this year. The department of public works has just completed rebuilding the dam back to the original level which was even with the banks on either side of the lake.

ROCKEFELLER LEGACY

Exhibit Scheduled Of Primitive Art

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The primitive art collected by Michael Rockefeller in the savage land where he disappeared 10 months ago goes on display Tuesday.

It is the legacy of a young man with a boyish enthusiasm for life and an unquenchable desire for knowledge of people in strange and remote places.

His family's millions meant little to him.

To Michael at 23, the riches of life lay in the rugged task of exploring jungle territory half-way around the world, studying the life of savages there and collecting specimens of their primitive art works.

It was the fascination of this endeavor which carried him to Dutch New Guinea—and to his disappearance off the swampy southeast coast of the Asmat region.

Michael's bent was inherited from his father, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has been a lifelong devotee of primitive art.

The father is president of New York's Museum of Primitive Art, and Michael was a trustee. It is there that Michael's collection will be displayed through Nov. 11.

The governor flew to New Guinea to supervise the search for his son.

About the only tangible evidence of Michael's fate was a gas can from the boat he had used.

Since then, there has been nothing else.

A spokesman for the Rockefellers said the family position is that "Michael is lost and presumed dead, but no legal proceedings have been instituted."

Early in 1961, Michael went to Dutch New Guinea on an expedition sponsored by Harvard's Peabody Museum of Archeology and Ethnology, and the Dutch government.

Michael returned home in September, when the expedition ended.

Michael then returned to New Guinea to make motion pictures and collect articles for the Museum of Primitive Art here and for a national museum to be established at Hollandia, New Guinea.

Pleas Of Guilty Entered By Two In 'Pep Pill' Case

RAYVILLE (Special)—L. C. Hogan and his wife, Lois, both of Rayville, appeared in Fifth District Court here Friday and pled guilty to charges of possessing and selling drugs.

Mrs. Hogan pleaded guilty to possessing and selling central nervous system stimulant drugs and was fined $500 and costs and given a 12-month suspended jail sentence by Judge Vernon Sims.

Hogan was also fined $500 plus costs and given a six months suspended sentence after pleading guilty to the same charges.

The two were arrested about two months ago at the Lois and Jack Truck Stop, about two miles east of Rayville. They own the truck stop.

Funds Needed For Operation

JONESVILLE (Special)—About two more weeks remain for donations to the Gary Bush heart fund which is short of the anticipated goal of $1500, according to W. A. Book, treasurer.

A total of $959.12 has been donated to date, leaving a blance of $540.88 to make the goal.

Seven-year-old Gary is scheduled to report to the Methodist Children's hospital, Houston, Texas, the last week in September for a delicate heart operation.

Gilbert To Host Area Officials

JONESVILLE, (Special) — Elected officials of a three-parish area have been invited to attend a barbecue at the home of Senator J. C. Gilbert at Sicily Island and meet with state highway officials, Thursday, September 13, at 5:30 p.m.

Senator Gilbert sent out invitations to all police jurors, school board members, sheriffs, clerk of court, assessors, mayors, district attorneys, coroners, levee board members, and presidents of each men's civic club within Catahoula, Franklin and Richland parishes.

Nine States Set To Vote In Primaries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Hampshire with a spirited four-way Republican contest for the Senate seat of the late Styles Bridges and a heated battle for governor easily takes the spotlight in nine state primaries Tuesday.

Of the four senatorial nomination contestants, Rep. Perkins Bass and Bridges' widow, Mrs. Doloris Bridges, are believed to have the best chance. The others in the race are Sen. Maurice J. Murphy Jr., an interim appointee, and Rep. Chester E. Merrow.

Republican Gov. Wesley Powell, who has made no secret that he would like to have the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, is seeking an unprecedented third term nomination in a lively battle with John Pillsbury, a state legislator. Powell is believed to have the edge, but it could be close. In all, candidates for 8 Senate, 7 governor and 39 House seats will be chosen Tuesday, the biggest primary day of this election year. In addition to New Hampshire there are elections in Arizona, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Vermont, Utah, Rhode Island and Washington.

After a hot Democratic gubernatorial race is decided in Georgia on Wednesday, candidate-picking in Massachusetts Sept. 18, in New York Sept. 17-19, and Hawaii Oct. 6 will complete the roster of nominees for the first mid-term election of the Kennedy administration.

Few incumbents appear to be in danger on Tuesday. The dean of Congress, 84-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., has opposition for renomination, but his friends consider him safe.

Billie Sol Estes figures in a House race in Minnesota. There could be a senatorial upset in Utah, but the chances seem slim.

Opening Of Bids Slated On Dam

JONESVILLE (Special) — Bids for the reconstruction of the Larto Lake dam another five feet higher as a safety measure against future washouts will be opened by the Department of Public Works office in Baton Rouge on Sept. 17, according to Rep. W. S. Beck Jr.

The dam has washed out twice since it was originally constructed a few years ago. It washed out again last year and again this year. The department of public works has just completed rebuilding the dam back to the original level which was even with the banks on either side of the lake.

TAX REVISIONS

JFK May Settle For Senate Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration appears likely to settle generally for the Senate provisions of the tax revision bill instead of the more stringent House language.

This was the prediction Saturday of legislators who have worked for months on the complex measure and of congressional tax experts as they prepared for the Senate-House conference. The Senate passed the 410-page measure — it grew 18 pages during its floor consideration — by a 59-24 vote Thursday. The House cleared it 219-196 last March 29.

The controversial bill, described as imperfect by its supporters and as a tax dodgers' delight by its foes, still has hurdles to clear.

There is some talk an effort may be made in the House to block the bill from going to conference. An objection by one member could send it into the Rules Committee, which would then have to grant its consent to the conference.

But Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has let it be known he does not expect any trouble on this score.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who will head the Senate delegation, told a reporter he does not expect the compromise efforts to begin before the week starting Sept. 16.

During Senate debate, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon sent a letter to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., which generously praised that branch's version.

That was regarded as the tipoff that the Treasury was bowing to the Senate changes, although Dillon left the door open to appeal for some of the House provisions. Normally, the Treasury's views carry weight in a tax bill.

However, if the Senate version does prevail, the bill will turn out to be a revenue loser by the Treasury's estimates. It figures the House version would yield an annual $325-million surplus on a full year but that the Senate changes would switch this to a $210-million deficit.

President Kennedy originally proposed enough new revenue producers to yield a $600-million surplus over the cost of the business modernization incentive feature of the legislation.

By far the biggest Senate revision was to eliminate the section to establish a withholding plan on dividend and inerest income.

The administration would like to see this restored, and Mills has said he will try. But six of the seven Senate conferees will be adamantly against it.

The major provision of the bill, the 7 per cent investment credit designed as an incentive to business to buy the latest machinery, is about the same in both Senate and House versions.

Farm Leader Asserts Meat Supply Short

CORNING, Iowa (AP)—A shortage of meat in grocery stores and meat markets is likely within a week, the president of the National Farmers Organization said Saturday.

"We've got the processors and buyers in a very tight spot," said Oren Lee Staley. "If they don't get out and buy a lot of livestock in the next few days there could be a severe shortage of meat by the end of the week."

"We could be over the hump then," he added, "but we expect ups and downs yet, which probably will continue into the following week."

The NFO began its second week Saturday of a 16-state program to hold livestock from markets in an effort to force food processors to sign long-term contracts guaranteeing higher prices to farmers for their products.

Since the holding action started, receipts of hogs, cattle and sheep have declined at stockyards and prices have gone up.

Stores in several Midwest cities have raised retail prices from 5 to 10 cents a pound on certain cuts.

"These increased prices to consumers are completely unfair and uncalled for," Staley said. "The meat being sold is from livestock purchased before livestock prices rose during our holding action."

In Omaha, the president of Cudahy Packing Co., Paul B. Thompson, said meat processors are not taking an unfair advantage by boosting prices.

Missing Girl Found Dead In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A 14-year-old schoolgirl missing from her suburban home for almost two days was found dead Saturday, floating in a water-filled quarry. The district attorney said her death was an apparent homicide.

The body of Pamela A. Moss of Penfield was discovered by volunteer firemen who had been searching for her.

Dist. Atty. John Conway said a roundup of suspects would begin immediately, presumably people with records of molesting.

Firemen found the girl a few feet from the edge of the quarry in about two feet of water. The quarry is located in a commercial gravel pit about three miles from her home.

Pamela had been missing since Thursday evening. When she failed to show up to baby-sit for neighbors. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Moss, said she returned home from school and went out, saying she would be home for supper before going to baby-sit.

Police said the girl was clad only in a blouse. Other parts of clothing, including a sneaker, underclothes, and brown shorts, were found on the quarry slope.

The Mosses have three other children, Gregory, 11, Cynthia, 7, and Mary, 3. Mrs. Moss is expecting another child.

Moss is s aupervisor of production and control at General Dynamics Corp., here.

Congo Chief Of Balubas Escapes Jail

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Albert Kalonji, emperor of Baluba tribesmen and one of the Congo's unsuccessful secessionists has escaped jail, apparently as the result of official skullduggery, qualified sources reported Saturday.

The informants said he was taken from prison at Luzumu, 50 miles outside Leopoldville for a pretended court appearance, and flown to Bakawanga, capital of the secessionist South Kasai mining state which he attempted to set up as an independent country two years ago.

Kalonji, 33, was said to have been handed forged documents requesting his appearance in court and to have been escorted out of prison by two men, one of them believed to be a Baluba tribesman holding an official position in the Congo government.

Congolese authorities arrested the Belgian director of Air Brusse, a charter airline, which flew him to Bakawanga. But the Belgian Embassy intervened on behalf of the company, claiming the director was not aware of the passenger's identity and that the plane had been properly requisitioned by official documents.

The escape of the colorful tribal leader may stir up excitement among Baluba tribesmen, but may not prove a serious threat to the Congo government.

The secessionist movement appears to be on the wane now that the most successful secessionist leader, President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, is showing signs of yielding to pressure to reunite with the main body of the Congo.

Kalonji seceded from the Congo Aug. 26, 1960, soon after independence, while the new nation still was being led by the late Patrice Lumumba. The next April he assumed a title that had been vacant for 400 years—emperor of the Balubas—after colorful week-long tribal ceremonies.

The title was extinguished in ancient tribal warfare with the Luluas, warfare that was revived in bloody fighting soon after the Congo's independence.

Ike To Give Kennedy Report On Europe Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy is having lunch Monday at the White House with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to get a first-hand report on the latter's recent trip to Europe.

Kennedy wrote him 2½ weeks ago to express interest in the general's trip and extended the invitation.

"I would like very much to have an opportunity to talk about our relations in Europe," the President said in part, according to Asst. White House press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher.

Eisenhower visited France, Germany, Sweden, England and Scotland, among other places.

Hatcher said the President and Eisenhower may lunch alone, but that possibly one or two White House aides would join them.

The President began Saturday's activities with a telephone report from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who returned to Washington Friday night after a trip which took him to six nations in the Middle East and Mediterranean area.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy and their two children were to go out for a cruise and lunch aboard the yacht Honey Fitz, but he switched plans, and went out for a sail instead on the Coast Guard's 62-foot ocean racing Yawl, Manitou.

Hatcher announced the itinerary for the President's swing to U.S. space centers Tuesday and Wednesday, with a speech Wednesday morning at the Rice University Stadium in Houston.

The President leaves from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington for a visit to the Redstone Army Air Base at Huntsville, Ala.

He leaves Redstone after a visit to the rocket arsenal for Cape Canaveral, Fla., a 2½ hour visit.

He takes off from Canaveral for Houston International Airport. He will stay overnight at the Rice Hotel.

The Rice Stadium speech is scheduled for 10 a.m., on Wednesday.

The stadium seats 73,000 and the public is to be admitted.

The Senate passed the 410-page measure — it grew 18 pages during its floor consideration — by a 59-24 vote Thursday. The House cleared it 219-196 last March 29.

The controversial bill, described as imperfect by its supporters and as a tax dodgers' delight by its foes, still has hurdles to clear.

There is some talk an effort may be made in the House to block the bill from going to conference. An objection by one member could send it into the Rules Committee, which would then have to grant its consent to the conference.

But Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has let it be known he does not expect any trouble on this score.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who will head the Senate delegation, told a reporter he does not expect the compromise efforts to begin before the week starting Sept. 16.

During Senate debate, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon sent a letter to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., which generously praised that branch's version.

That was regarded as the tipoff that the Treasury was bowing to the Senate changes, although Dillon left the door open to appeal for some of the House provisions. Normally, the Treasury's views carry weight in a tax bill.

However, if the Senate version does prevail, the bill will turn out to be a revenue loser by the Treasury's estimates. It figures the House version would yield an annual $325-million surplus on a full year but that the Senate changes would switch this to a $210-million deficit.

President Kennedy originally proposed enough new revenue producers to yield a $600-million surplus over the cost of the business modernization incentive feature of the legislation.

By far the biggest Senate revision was to eliminate the section to establish a withholding plan on dividend and inerest income.

The administration would like to see this restored, and Mills has said he will try. But six of the seven Senate conferees will be adamantly against it.

The major provision of the bill, the 7 per cent investment credit designed as an incentive to business to buy the latest machinery, is about the same in both Senate and House versions.

Farm Leader Asserts Meat Supply Short

CORNING, Iowa (AP)—A shortage of meat in grocery stores and meat markets is likely within a week, the president of the National Farmers Organization said Saturday.

"We've got the processors and buyers in a very tight spot," said Oren Lee Staley. "If they don't get out and buy a lot of livestock in the next few days there could be a severe shortage of meat by the end of the week."

"We could be over the hump then," he added, "but we expect ups and downs yet, which probably will continue into the following week."

The NFO began its second week Saturday of a 16-state program to hold livestock from markets in an effort to force food processors to sign long-term contracts guaranteeing higher prices to farmers for their products.

Since the holding action started, receipts of hogs, cattle and sheep have declined at stockyards and prices have gone up.

Stores in several Midwest cities have raised retail prices from 5 to 10 cents a pound on certain cuts.

"These increased prices to consumers are completely unfair and uncalled for," Staley said. "The meat being sold is from livestock purchased before livestock prices rose during our holding action."

In Omaha, the president of Cudahy Packing Co., Paul B. Thompson, said meat processors are not taking an unfair advantage by boosting prices.

Missing Girl Found Dead In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A 14-year-old schoolgirl missing from her suburban home for almost two days was found dead Saturday, floating in a water-filled quarry. The district attorney said her death was an apparent homicide.

The body of Pamela A. Moss of Penfield was discovered by volunteer firemen who had been searching for her.

Dist. Atty. John Conway said a roundup of suspects would begin immediately, presumably people with records of molesting.

Firemen found the girl a few feet from the edge of the quarry in about two feet of water. The quarry is located in a commercial gravel pit about three miles from her home.

Pamela had been missing since Thursday evening. When she failed to show up to baby-sit for neighbors. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Moss, said she returned home from school and went out, saying she would be home for supper before going to baby-sit.

Police said the girl was clad only in a blouse. Other parts of clothing, including a sneaker, underclothes, and brown shorts, were found on the quarry slope.

The Mosses have three other children, Gregory, 11, Cynthia, 7, and Mary, 3. Mrs. Moss is expecting another child.

Moss is s aupervisor of production and control at General Dynamics Corp., here.

Congo Chief Of Balubas Escapes Jail

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Albert Kalonji, emperor of Baluba tribesmen and one of the Congo's unsuccessful secessionists has escaped jail, apparently as the result of official skullduggery, qualified sources reported Saturday.

The informants said he was taken from prison at Luzumu, 50 miles outside Leopoldville for a pretended court appearance, and flown to Bakawanga, capital of the secessionist South Kasai mining state which he attempted to set up as an independent country two years ago.

Kalonji, 33, was said to have been handed forged documents requesting his appearance in court and to have been escorted out of prison by two men, one of them believed to be a Baluba tribesman holding an official position in the Congo government.

Congolese authorities arrested the Belgian director of Air Brusse, a charter airline, which flew him to Bakawanga. But the Belgian Embassy intervened on behalf of the company, claiming the director was not aware of the passenger's identity and that the plane had been properly requisitioned by official documents.

The escape of the colorful tribal leader may stir up excitement among Baluba tribesmen, but may not prove a serious threat to the Congo government.

The secessionist movement appears to be on the wane now that the most successful secessionist leader, President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, is showing signs of yielding to pressure to reunite with the main body of the Congo.

Kalonji seceded from the Congo Aug. 26, 1960, soon after independence, while the new nation still was being led by the late Patrice Lumumba. The next April he assumed a title that had been vacant for 400 years—emperor of the Balubas—after colorful week-long tribal ceremonies.

The title was extinguished in ancient tribal warfare with the Luluas, warfare that was revived in bloody fighting soon after the Congo's independence.

Ike To Give Kennedy Report On Europe Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy is having lunch Monday at the White House with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to get a first-hand report on the latter's recent trip to Europe.

Kennedy wrote him 2½ weeks ago to express interest in the general's trip and extended the invitation.

"I would like very much to have an opportunity to talk about our relations in Europe," the President said in part, according to Asst. White House press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher.

Eisenhower visited France, Germany, Sweden, England and Scotland, among other places.

Hatcher said the President and Eisenhower may lunch alone, but that possibly one or two White House aides would join them.

The President began Saturday's activities with a telephone report from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who returned to Washington Friday night after a trip which took him to six nations in the Middle East and Mediterranean area.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy and their two children were to go out for a cruise and lunch aboard the yacht Honey Fitz, but he switched plans, and went out for a sail instead on the Coast Guard's 62-foot ocean racing Yawl, Manitou.

Hatcher announced the itinerary for the President's swing to U.S. space centers Tuesday and Wednesday, with a speech Wednesday morning at the Rice University Stadium in Houston.

The President leaves from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington for a visit to the Redstone Army Air Base at Huntsville, Ala.

He leaves Redstone after a visit to the rocket arsenal for Cape Canaveral, Fla., a 2½ hour visit.

He takes off from Canaveral for Houston International Airport. He will stay overnight at the Rice Hotel.

The Rice Stadium speech is scheduled for 10 a.m., on Wednesday.

The stadium seats 73,000 and the public is to be admitted.

Actor Takes Swim With Clothes On

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Lawford, who shares his Kennedy in-laws' love of water sports, went swimming with his clothes on Friday night.

It all happened at a gay Hollywood poolside party given by Texas playboy Bob Neal. The Lawfords were guests of honor.

Some famous guests, who usually like publicity but don't want their names used this time, said Peter was pushed playfully into the pool by his wife, Pat Kennedy Lawford, sister of the President.

The actor, British and gallant, said not so.

"Pat did not push me into the pool," he said. "Neither did anyone else. I was standing on the edge. I took a step backward and fell into the water. It was unfortunate, and sort of silly, but that's the way it happened."

Pool dunkings — while fairly common at Hollywood parties — also happens in Washington. Just last June, the Lawfords were guests of honor at a poolside party at the home of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

At that party Lawford kept dry but Mrs. Robert Kennedy, White House insider Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and Mrs. Spencer Davis wound up in Bobby's pool.

Peter's audience Friday night was more cinematic than political. Janet Leigh, Julie Newmar, Brett Halsey, Arthur Loew Jr., Jill St. John, Lance Reventlow and Sid Luft were among the onlookers.

All applauded Lawford's nonchalance about the whole, soggy mess.

Another guest was nightclub comic Mort Sahl, whose political satire often deals with the Kennedy family's love of sports, both on land and sea.

He could not be reached.

A spokesman commented: "I think Mort is rewriting his act after last night."

Pilot Sights No Life In Iran Villages

KAZVIN, Iran (AP) — There are no signs of life in "scores of villages," still unreached by rescue and relief teams working in Iran's earthquake belt, an American helicopter pilot reported Saturday.

The report of Capt. Dallas W. Goodwin, PHI Medical Co., suggested the death toll of the earthquake of a week ago might go higher than the present official estimate of 10,000.

Rescue teams have concentrated on stricken villages on both sides of the Avch Mountains west of Tehran. Goodwin, 31, of Aberdeen, Miss., said the dead mud brick hamlets he saw were in the foothills or high on mountain slopes.

"There is nothing left of them but rubble," said the captain, who has been flying victims to the U.S. field hospital here since Friday.

U.S. Ambassador Julius C. Holmes, who visited the U.S. Army's 8th Evacuation Hospital, flew over the devastated area Saturday and said he saw a convoy of trucks headed up a dry river bed with relief supplies toward some foothill villages.

A doctor with Red Lion and Sun, Iran's Red Cross, said some of the mountain villages can be reached only by donkey caravan but expeditions will be sent.

Sixteen women nurses, headed by Maj. Winifred Craig, gave up their cots to patients at the hospital and camped in pup tents on stony ground.

Most patients still are caked with mud from collapsed walls when they arrive in surgery.

The hospital, with a crew of 195 under Lt. Col. Alexander Boysen of Bemidji, Minn., was flown in from Landstuhl, Germany, on nine hours' notice.

Eighteen U.S. Army doctors, 22 nurses and 10 medics worked 12 hours nonstop under field tents when the first batch of patients arrived, most suffering fractures or burns.

"But many villagers are too frightened to be carried or flown here," said male nurse Capt. Jerome Baumen, of Binghamton, N.Y. "They have never seen a doctor before and some seem to think the Americans will sell their children if they give them to us."

SLAYING CASE 'PAWNS'

Mother Reunited With Young Sons

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Two Florida boys—unsuspecting pawns in a gruesome double slaying were reunited with their mother Saturday.

Mrs. Kenneth Allen flew in from Fort Myers, to recover her two boys, who had been brought from Florida with her permission by their grandmother, Iva Kroeger. The 44-year-old missing grandmother has been sought since two strangled bodies were found last month buried in the basement of the Kroeger home in San Francisco.

The worried mother rejoined her children, Kenneth Charles Jr., 4, and William, 3, at the Alameda County Juvenile Home where they had been quartered since the case developed.

Mrs. Kroeger abandoned the boys on an Oakland street, Aug. 21, the day that the body of Mildred Arneson, 58, was dug up in a steamer trunk in the Kroeger basement.

The day before, diggers found the body of Jay Arneson, 70.

The Arnesons had disappeared last December and January after which Mrs. Kroeger took over operation of their Santa Rosa motel. Mrs. Kroeger herself vanished last May after being pressed for payment of a $2,500 loan.

When she appeared at Fort Myers, Fla., on July 31 and got permission to take the boys to California, the secret of the Kroeger basement remained intact.

One of the boys, Kenneth, 4½, testified before the grand jury which indicted his grandparents for murder. The grandfather, Ralph Kroeger, 61, has been under arrest since the bodies were found.

A Juvenile Court hearing will be held Tuesday for the boys but it is considered routine, prior to releasing them to their mother.

Clarification

In a court list carried Saturday, it was said that Augustus C. Smith Jr., of 313 Pelican Drive, West Monroe, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. It should have stated that he was convicted of the charge in Fourth District Court. The original court docket merely listed the word guilty and the amount of fine.

Plan For Nixon, Brown Debate Apparently Off

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I've lost patience with this fellow," said Gov. Edmund G. Brown of Richard M. Nixon. And that, apparently, was the end Saturday of a plan for a Brown-Nixon television debate.

The blame for the debate's demise was assessed this way:

By Brown: Nixon killed it, by insisting on the format Nixon preferred.

By Nixon: Brown killed it, by insisting on the format Brown preferred.

(Nixon wanted the two gubernatorial candidates to question one another. Brown wanted them to face questions from a panel of newsmen.)

Democrat Brown had given Republican Nixon until 5 p.m. Friday to agree to the panel-quiz type of format.

The deadline passed with Nixon suggesting four debates—two of each.

That was when Brown lost patience. He said Saturday, "I will not consider this or any offer he might come up with in the future."

"I'm going ahead with my own campaign, and I suggest he do the same," he added.

Florida Reports New Sleeping Sickness Death

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Another encephalitis death was reported Saturday, bringing to 13 the number of persons in Pinellas County who have died of the illness in the last 49 days.

The county health department said six new suspected cases were under observation. This brings the number of reported cases to 164.

However, the department said only 50 of the 164 cases have been proved by laboratory tests to be encephalitis, or sleeping sickness. The tests take several days to complete.

Encephalitis is a virus inflamation of the brain and nervous system. It is believed to be carried by migrating birds, and transmitted to people by mosquitoes. It is not contagious.

Three deaths have occurred outside Pinellas County since that outbreak began July 21, making a total of 16 for the state.

Suicide Ruled In Death Case

BOSTON (AP) — A verdict of presumed suicide was given Saturday in what officials had feared was the seventh strangulation in Greater Boston since summer began.

Medical Examiner Richard Ford said an autopsy of the body of Frank Stubbs, 52, showed death was "a presumed suicide." Death was caused by asphyxiation by ligature, or a binding, from a nylon stocking knotted tightly around Stubbs' neck, Dr. Ford said.

Sutbs' body was found in the bathroom of his apartment Friday night.

A stocking had been the murder weapon in three of six stranglings. All the victims were middle-aged or elderly women and five of them had lived alone.

There was no forced entry nor were valuables taken in any of the six stranglings.

Smallpox Hit, Brazil Orders Vaccinations

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Health authorities, concerned about an outbreak of smallpox in the nearby port of Santos, Saturday ordered a mass vaccination of Sao Paulo city and state residents beginning Tuesday.

Eighteen cases of smallpox were reported by hospital officials in Santos. So far there have been no deaths announced among those who've currently contracted the disease there.

Dr. Edgar Cruz, technical assistant of the Sao Paulo State health department, said outbreak was no cause for undue alarm. He said it was "routine" and could not be called an epidemic.

Health officials estimated about 100 cases of smallpox throughout Sao Paul State have been reported so far this year. By comparison last year there were 400.

The disease is brought into the area from the poverty-stricken notheast, officials said, where few if any health measures can be carried out to check carriers of the disease.

A mass vaccination of Sao Paulo city's four million population—expected to take three months—will get underway Tuesday at 200 health centers with 1,600 medical personnel participating.

Texan 'Rolled,' Five Suspects Are Arrested

NASHVILLE (UPI)—Police arrested five persons, including a former policeman, Saturday after a Texan complained he was "rolled" during a party at a local motel.

The arrests were made on a complaint signed by Junior Lee Lester, 26, of Arlington, Tex., who claimed he missed $450 after a party in his motel room.

Lester said he arrived here Friday from Louisville, Ky., enroute to his home and was taken to the motel in a cab driven by Perry Gene Taylor after making a round of mixing bars.

He said he missed the money after two women and another cab driver came to his room for the party.

The ex-policeman, Steve Moore Hailey, and the two cab drivers were arrested on charges of larceny and aiding and abetting prostitution. The women were arrested on charges of grand larceny and prostitution.

Cuban Petitions To Remain In Federal Prison

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A Cuban now serving five years on a narcotics conviction is asking for asylum in the United States —even if it means he'll have to remain in federal prison.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Saturday the petition came from Pedro P. Padron-Manoz, 26, formerly of Havana and now an inmate at the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury.

Padron-Munoz described himself as anti-Castro.

Immigration officials said he entered the United States in 1959 as a stowaway. In May, he was sentenced by a federal judge in New York to five years in prison for selling, transporting and receiving heroin.

Because of the conviction and the illegal entry, immigration officials said, he normally would be deported. They are presently considering his request.

Actor Takes Swim With Clothes On

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Lawford, who shares his Kennedy in-laws' love of water sports, went swimming with his clothes on Friday night.

It all happened at a gay Hollywood poolside party given by Texas playboy Bob Neal. The Lawfords were guests of honor.

Some famous guests, who usually like publicity but don't want their names used this time, said Peter was pushed playfully into the pool by his wife, Pat Kennedy Lawford, sister of the President.

The actor, British and gallant, said not so.

"Pat did not push me into the pool," he said. "Neither did anyone else. I was standing on the edge. I took a step backward and fell into the water. It was unfortunate, and sort of silly, but that's the way it happened."

Pool dunkings — while fairly common at Hollywood parties—also happens in Washington. Just last June, the Lawfords were guests of honor at a poolside party at the home of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

At that party Lawford kept dry but Mrs. Robert Kennedy, White House insider Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and Mrs. Spencer Davis wound up in Bobby's pool.

Peter's audience Friday night was more cinematic than political. Janet Leigh, Julie Newmar, Brett Halsey, Arthur Loew Jr., Jill St. John, Lance Reventlow and Sid Luft were among the onlookers.

All applauded Lawford's nonchalance about the whole, soggy mess.

Another guest was nightclub comic Mort Sahl, whose political satire often deals with the Kennedy family's love of sports, both on land and sea.

He could not be reached.

A spokesman commented: "I think Mort is rewriting his act after last night."

Plan For Nixon, Brown Debate Apparently Off

LOS ANGELES (AP) —"I've lost patience with this fellow," said Gov. Edmund G. Brown of Richard M. Nixon. And that, apparently, was the end Saturday of a plan for a Brown-Nixon television debate.

The blame for the debate's demise was assessed this way:

By Brown: Nixon killed it, by insisting on the format Nixon preferred.

By Nixon: Brown killed it, by insisting on the format Brown preferred.

(Nixon wanted the two gubernatorial candidates to question one another. Brown wanted them to face questions from a panel of newsmen.)

Democrat Brown had given Republican Nixon until 5 p.m. Friday to agree to the panel-quiz type of format.

The deadline passed with Nixon suggesting four debates—two of each.

That was when Brown lost patience. He said Saturday: "I will not consider this or any offer he might come up with in the future."

"I'm going ahead with my own campaign, and I suggest he do the same," he added.

Florida Reports New Sleeping Sickness Death

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Another encephalitis death was reported Saturday, bringing to 13 the number of persons in Pinellas County who have died of the illness in the last 49 days.

The county health department said six new suspected cases were under observation. This brings the number of reported cases to 164.

However, the department said only 50 of the 164 cases have been proved by laboratory tests to be encephalitis, or sleeping sickness. The tests take several days to complete.

Encephalitis is a virus inflamation of the brain and nervous system. It is believed to be carried by migrating birds, and transmitted to people by mosquitoes. It is not contagious.

Three deaths have occurred outside Pinellas County since that outbreak began July 21, making a total of 16 for the state.

Suicide Ruled In Death Case

BOSTON (AP) — A verdict of presumed suicide was given Saturday in what officials had feared was the seventh strangulation in Greater Boston since summer began.

Medical Examiner Richard Ford said an autopsy of the body of Frank Stubbs, 52, showed death was "a presumed suicide." Death was caused by asphyxiation by ligature, or a binding, from a nylon stocking knotted tightly around Stubbs' neck, Dr. Ford said.

Sutbs' body was found in the bathroom of his apartment Friday night.

A stocking had been the murder weapon in three of six stranglings. All the victims were middle-aged or elderly women and five of them had lived alone.

There was no forced entry nor were valuables taken in any of the six stranglings.

Pilot Sights No Life In Iran Villages

KAZVIN, Iran (AP)—There are no signs of life in "scores of villages" still unreached by rescue and relief teams working in Iran's earthquake belt, an American helicopter pilot reported Saturday.

The report of Capt. Dallas W. Goodwin, 421st Medical Co., suggested the death toll of the earthquake of a week ago might go higher than the present official estimate of 10,000.

Rescue teams have concentrated on stricken villages on both sides of the Aveh Mountains west of Tehran. Goodwin, 34, of Aberdeen, Miss., said the dead mud brick hamlets he saw were in the foothills or high on mountain slopes.

"There is nothing left of them but rubble," said the captain, who has been flying victims to the U.S. field hospital here since Friday.

U.S. Ambassador Julius C. Holmes, who visited the U.S. Army's 8th Evacuation Hospital, flew over the devastated area Saturday and said he saw a convoy of trucks headed up a dry river bed with relief supplies toward some foothill villages.

A doctor with Red Lion and Sun, Iran's Red Cross, said some of the mountain villages can be reached only by donkey caravan but expeditions will be sent.

Sixteen women nurses, headed by Maj. Winifred Craig, gave up their cots to patients at the hospital and camped in pup tents on stony ground.

Most patients still are caked with mud from collapsed walls when they arrive in surgery.

The hospital, with a crew of 195 under Lt. Col. Alexander Boysen of Bemidji, Minn., was flown in from Landstuhl, Germany, on nine hours' notice.

Eighteen U.S. Army doctors, 22 nurses and 10 medics worked 17 hours nonstop under field tents when the first batch of patients arrived, most suffering fractures or burns.

"But many villagers are too frightened to be carried or flown here," said male nurse Capt. Jerome Baumen, of Binghamton, N.Y. "They have never seen a doctor before and some seem to think the Americans will sell their children if they give them to us."

Smallpox Hit, Brazil Orders Vaccinations

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Health authorities, concerned about an outbreak of smallpox in the nearby port of Santos, Saturday ordered a mass vaccination of Sao Paulo city and state residents beginning Tuesday.

Eighteen cases of smallpox were reported by hospital officials in Santos. So far there have been no deaths announced among those who've currently contracted the disease there.

Dr. Edgar Cruz, technical assistant of the Sao Paulo State health department, said outbreak was no cause for undue alarm He said it was "routine" and could not be called an epidemic.

Health officials estimated about 100 cases of smallpox throughout Sao Paul State have been reported so far this year. By comparison last year there were 400.

The disease is brought into the area from the poverty-stricken notheast, officials said, where few if any health measures can be carried out to check carriers of the disease.

A mass vaccination of Sao Paulo city's four million population—expected to take three months—will get underway Tuesday at 200 health centers with 1,600 medical personnel participating.

SLAYING CASE 'PAWNS'

Mother Reunited With Young Sons

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) —Two Florida boys—unsuspecting pawns in a gruesome double slaying were reunited with their mother Saturday.

Mrs. Kenneth Allen flew in from Fort Myers, to recover her two boys, who had been brought from Florida with her permission by their grandmother, Iva Kroeger. The 44-year-old missing grandmother has been sought since two strangled bodies were found last month buried in the basement of the Kroeger home in San Francisco.

The worried mother rejoined her children, Kenneth Charles Jr., 4, and William, 3, at the Alameda County Juvenile Home where they had been quartered since the case developed.

Mrs. Kroeger abandoned the boys on an Oakland street, Aug. 21, the day that the body of Mildred Arneson, 58, was dug up in a steamer trunk in the Kroeger basement.

The day before, diggers found the body of Jay Arneson, 70.

The Arnesons had disappeared last December and January after which Mrs. Kroeger took over operation of their Santa Rosa motel. Mrs. Kroeger herself vanished last May after being pressed for payment of a $2,500 loan.

When she appeared at Fort Myers, Fla., on July 31 and got permission to take the boys to California, the secret of the Kroeger basement remained intact.

One of the boys, Kenneth, 4½, testified before the grand jury which indicted his grandparents for murder. The grandfather, Ralph Kroeger, 61, has been under arrest since the bodies were found.

A Juvenile Court hearing will be held Tuesday for the boys but it is considered routine, prior to releasing them to their mother.

Texan 'Rolled,' Five Suspects Are Arrested

NASHVILLE (UPI)—Police arrested five persons, including a former policeman, Saturday after a Texan complained he was "rolled" during a party at a local motel.

The arrests were made on a complaint signed by Junior Lee Lester, 26, of Arlington, Tex., who claimed he missed $450 after a party in his motel room.

Lester said he arrived here Friday from Louisville, Ky., enroute to his home and was taken to the motel in a cab driven by Perry Gene Taylor after making a round of mixing bars.

He said he missed the money after two women and another cab driver came to his room for the party.

The ex-policeman, Steve Moore Hailey, and the two cab drivers were arrested on charges of larceny and aiding and abetting prostitution. The women were arrested on charges of grand larceny and prostitution.

Cuban Petitions To Remain In Federal Prison

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A Cuban now serving five years on a narcotics conviction is asking for asylum in the United States —even if it means he'll have to remain in federal prison.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Saturday the petition came from Pedro P. Padron-Munoz, 26, formerly of Havana and now an inmate at the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury.

Padron-Munoz described himself as anti-Castro.

Immigration officials said he entered the United States in 1959 as a stowaway. In May, he was sentenced by a federal judge in New York to five years in prison for selling, transporting and receiving heroin.

Because of the conviction and the illegal entry, immigration officials said, he normally would be deported. They are presently considering his request.

LUNCHEON WITH QUEEN

LONDON (AP) — Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, will lunch with Queen Elizabeth II and dine with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan on his round of farewells before quitting his post, the Foreign Office announced.

Clarification

In a court list carried Saturday, it was said that Augustus C. Smith Jr., of 313 Pelican Drive, West Monroe, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. It should have stated that he was convicted of the charge in Fourth District Court. The original court docket merely listed the word guilty and the amount of fine.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found the most wonderful way to sprinkle my clothes . . . without effort and energy!

I just hang my laundry on the clothesline overnight . . . to dampen in the dew. In the morning it's just right to iron!

There are almost no wrinkles to iron out and also no clothes lying around inside the house in baskets waiting for me to get them sprinkled and then ironed.

The clothes may be taken down any time. If it happens to rain . . . then just wait a little while, but the most important thing about it is that they are sprinkled evenly. No over-sprinkling job either.

I do this the year around.
—June

* * *

DEAR HELOISE:
To prevent burns and heat spots on my Formica drainboard . . . I just keep a cake rack sitting on the counter at all times. The little space between the rack and the Formica has prevented all blisters and damage. Racks cost so little in comparison to a new drain.
Pauline Didiey

STICK 'EM UP

DEAR HELOISE:
When you are sewing or ripping out a hem . . . those little pieces of thread on the floor can be picked up easily without getting out the vacuum cleaner. Simply tear off a piece of masking tape and pat the floor with it.

The threads will stick to the tape. Your rug and floor will be spotlessly clean and you will have saved wear and tear on yourself.
—Mac

MAGIC MAGNET

DEAR HELOISE:
Those little one-inch magnets are the "brains" of our house. Can be bought at any dime store.

We use 'em to anchor reminder notes on the ice-box door, the stove, the instrument panel of the car or any old place that's metal and that we think might be a likely place to "jolt" us at the right time.

Saves lots of arguments and is very convenient in many ways.
Alice Russ

PUNCH AND JUICY

DEAR HELOISE:
When I use my roaster, I always line the bottom of it with foil, and place another piece over the meat rack. Then I punch holes in the foil where the holes in the rack are! The roaster is much easier to clean and works just as well.
Mrs. Dayton Young

EASY TWEEZE

DEAR HELOISE:
For the ladies who wear bifocal glasses and who find it difficult to tweeze eyebrows . . . remove the glasses and put them on upside down!

This will allow you to see better. The shape of the glasses gives more room around the eye to pluck eyebrows.
—Mrs. E. R. Martin

* * *

Dear Mrs. Martin:
You're terrific. How did you find out?
—Heloise

NARROW SKIRTS

DEAR HELOISE:
To put a skirt around a bed . . . one that will be easy to launder and also stay put . . . attach a round curtain rod (from the headboard to footboard) and slip the heading of the skirt over it as if it were a short curtain. Place between mattress and box springs.

This makes the skirt easy to iron as it is in 18-inch strips instead of all those yards and yards of material that a flounce usually is made of.
—H. Oakley

TOWEL SAVER

DEAR HELOISE:
If towel racks are not removable, and there are small children in the house . . . buy a home gripper kit.

Put three grippers on each end of the towel, using the snaps on one end and the grip parts on the other. When these are fastened, you will have a roller that can easily be removed for washing. There will be no towels dropped on the floor by the kiddies.
—Nancy Phillips

MANICURE DEPT.

DEAR HELOISE:
I put a few drops of remover in my bottle of fingernail polish and let it sit awhile before using. It thins my old thick polish so that it is usable again. Shake well before using. This will not change the color.
Maureen Flynn

BUZZ ON FUZZ

DEAR HELOISE:
To keep nylon stretch sox from getting little balls and fuzz . . . turn them inside out before putting in the washing machine. This also keeps them from fading when hanging in the sun . . . especially if they are black or colored socks.
Mrs. P. J. R.

SHIRT TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband's old shirts make the most wonderful dish towels imaginable and they have absolutely no lint. I often wondered what to do with them. It seemed such a waste to just cut the buttons off and discard them.

The center back is much too nice to use for ordinary rags. So I pink the edges with shears and use the backs for dish towels. They have been washed so often that they are nice and soft. And the colored shirts are so pretty hanging in the kitchen.
Patsy McSullivan

TIMBER-R-R

DEAR HELOISE:
To keep the bottom of an iron slick while ironing . . . break off a little branch of cedar tree and place on the end of your ironing board on a piece of paper. Swipe your iron across this as you work.

The results are marvelous and your iron will be about 10 times slicker than when using waxed paper.
M. D.

THE ACID TEST

I boil a weak solution of vinegar water in my aluminum pots and pans for a few minutes to remove all the dark stains.

Did you know that canned tomatoes would do the same thing? Any time I am having scalloped tomatoes, I always use the darkest pan I have. Apricots will also do the same.
Marsha Darvon

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper.

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband's old shirts make the most wonderful dish towels imaginable and they have absolutely no lint. I often wondered what to do with them. It seemed such a waste to just cut the buttons off and discard them.

The center back is much too nice to use for ordinary rags. So I pink the edges with shears and use the backs for dish towels. They have been washed so often that they are nice and soft. And the colored shirts are so pretty hanging in the kitchen.

TIMBER-R-R

DEAR HELOISE:
To keep the bottom of an iron slick while ironing . . . break off a little branch of cedar tree and place on the end of your ironing board on a piece of paper. Swipe your iron across this as you work.

The results are marvelous and your iron will be about 10 times slicker than when using waxed paper.

THE ACID TEST

I boil a weak solution of vinegar water in my aluminum pots and pans for a few minutes to remove all the dark stains.

Did you know that canned tomatoes would do the same thing? Any time I am having scalloped tomatoes, I always use the darkest pan I have. Apricots will also do the same.
